AT HOME.

Tuesday evening at the palatial mansion of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Cobb rendezvoused the beauty and gallantry of Greenville and her fair visitors, who fairly reveled in the various amusements provided for the happy, laughing throng by these hospitable young married folk who proved themselves to be ideal hosts of delightful guests. The entertainment was given complimentary to Misses Jennie Williams and Bessie Jarvis, friends of Mrs. Cobb, and every one else who has the pleasure of knowing these most estimable young ladies. Mrs. G. B. King, Jarvis Snugg with Miss Bessie Jarvis, E. G. Flanagan with Miss Louise Latham and W. H. Long with Miss Jennie Williams assisted Mr. and Mrs. Cobb in receiving with beaming gladness, which made their friends feel doubly welcome. Souvenirs of the evening were presented to each guest. The splendid home was brilliantly lighted from pit to dome and in the spacious lawn innumerable oriental lanterns overhung inviting vine-clad nooks, lending that soft mellow light so desirable to "love's young dream." The devotees of Terpsichore were in great glee when the inspiring strains of Sousa's "Washington Post" issued from the ample ball room, while those who had compunctions, or had not the art or dispositions to dance, beguiled the time with card playing, music and tete-a-tete in the aforementioned sequestered nooks.

About the time another day was ushered in the inner man began to assert itself and was greatly appeased by the good things provided for the merry company. After refreshments were served the german was danced and those who did not participate watched the intricate mazes with evident approval. But inexorable time goes apace, and all too soon four hours of incessant merriment had sped by and farewells were being said as these evening dressed beaux and belles took their reluctant departure.

Did She Die From Ill Treatment.

A colored female convict died at the penitentiary yesterday morning. Before dying the woman made a post-mortem statement alleging that her death was caused by the ill-treatment of one of the matrons under the old administration. She alleged that she was confined in a cold cell without cover during several cold, bitter nights last winter.—Raleigh Press Visitor.

Something we would like to know about this is how did the woman manage to make a "post-mortem" statement before she died.

Base Ball.

Louisville, July 19.—The Colonels won the game today in the first inning, batting McJames for four earned runs. Wagner who was secured from the Patterson, N. J., team made his first appearance. His playing was first class. Score. Louisville, 6; Washington, 2.

Cleveland, July 10.—Today's game was played on wet grounds and part of the time in the rain. Cuppy's poor pitching gave the Orioles a big lead. The Indians could not hit Pond effectively. Score. Cleveland, 1; Baltimore, 7.

St. Louis, July 19.—McDermott made his debut with the Browns today and was pounded at will by the Giants. Coleman succeeded McDermott in the seventh. Score. St. Louis, 6; New York, 11.

Cincinnati, July 19.—About 8,000 people saw the Reds defeated by the Bostons today. Dammann was relieved by Ehret in the fifth inning. The Reds were unable to hit Nichols. Score. Cincinnati, 3; Boston, 9.

Chicago, July 19.—The Colts won out in the ninth, after a close and exciting game. Score. Chicago, 7; Philadelphia, 6.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 21, 1897.

Recent gold finds in Alaska has caused an immigration fever to break out in the western borders of our country, and thousands of people are flocking to the land of snow and ice in search of the yellow article. The rush is said to almost equal that in California back in the forties.

CURSED GOD AND IS PUNISHED

A special from Adrian, Ga., to the Atlanta Journal of the 15th, says:

This community is thoroughly aroused over the weird rumor of a divine visitation which comes from Troop's Ferry, just beyond the Oconee river and about twenty-five miles from here. The story while it surpasses belief, is repeated in every quarter and the people of the surrounding country are wrought up to the highest pitch of religious excitement over it. The strange story follows:

One night last week several negro turpentine workers were playing cards near the ferry. One negro had $7.00 at the beginning of the game, but lost steadily until at last he had left only $1.00. Holding this high above his head, he swore that if he lost it, he would curse God. In the next deal he lost it, and in consequence, he executed his oath.

No sooner had he done so, than he was heard to scream, and his companions on looking at him, saw that sulphurous flames poured from his mouth, ears, eyes and nose.

Terrible frightened, they at first ran away, but soon returned and endeavored to relieve his sufferings. Water poured upon him was without avail. A blanket was brought forward and they attempted to wrap him with it, in order to extinguish the flames, but the would be rescuers were kept away by some mysterious power. About four feet was as near as an approach could be made to the unfortunate victim.

Then, thinking that the log on which he sat was in some way responsible for his predicament they began to saw it off near the point on which he sat. The first incision of the saw caused blood to drip from it and to fall with the sawdust, to the ground. An ax was next sent for, but its use revealed the fact that in every part the log was filled with veins of blood.

Then they threw a noose of a rope over the negro's body and tried to pull him away from his position.

According to reports they might as well have attempted to draw a star from the sky. The rope in consequence of its contact with the body of the victim, rendered as naught the great strength of those who would save him.

There he sits, rumor says, consuming, yet with no probability of ever being utterly consumed—dying always, yet not dead—living in and breathing the fires of hell, crying for water, which poured upon him causes him to scream as mortal was never heard to shriek before.

It is said that people flock to see him, but appalled by the sight, turn and flee, some with a terror that is piteous to witness.

The children of Adrian are terrorized by the rumor and speak of it in whispers of horror. Night is no more welcomed, and sleep with them has only the meaning of a Platonian dream.

(Signed.) T. M. CHETHAM.

Get to ether.

The colored Republican office seekers are quite disgruntled at the small success that is attending their efforts and it is said that some of them are making some dreadful threats for the future. In the light of past experience, there is no dependence to be placed in such threats. The negro indulges in such antics between elections, but when voting time rolls around he walks up like a tin soldier and kisses the hand that smote him and again puts in his ballot for the same old gang that has used him for these many years as a stepping-stone to office. Truly, "Ephraim is joined to his idol," and, usually, it is time wasted to do otherwise than follow the injunction, "let him alone. While the colored voters are almost solidly arrayed against the best interests of their best friends, as well as against their own interests, in their slavish devotion to political tricksters, they are powerless to do much harm if the white voters are true to their race and to their State.

Unfortunately, in recent years, enough white men have strayed away from the landmarks of their fathers to place State affairs under the control of incompetent scalawags. Some were lured away by the temptations of the fleshpots of the Radical camp and some have been actuated by a spirit of resentment for imaginary wrongs and some have felt, perhaps, that certain reforms could be secured earlier through another political organization. Whatever the cause for this drifting, it must be apparent, from the disaster it has brought, that it is necessary for the white people who have the welfare of the State at heart to get together and rescue North Carolina from her present perilous situation.

The history of the State is an open book from which all men may read. If they read it correctly, they will find this important fact, in letters that cannot be erased and in language that cannot be misinterpreted: Democracy has always given good government; Republicanism has always given bad government. Which kind of government do North Carolinians prefer? They can have either and the way to each is plain.—Winston Sentinel.

Within the past four years the equivalent of $1,000,000,000 in silver, has been invested by foreign capitalists in enterprises in Mexico. English capitalists have put in $213,302,225, French and German $441,387,774, and Americans $345,316,000. This doesn't indicate a quaking fear as to the future of that benighted silver standard country.—Wilmington Star.

The average depth of the Atlantic ocean is 4015 yards.

An Awful Lesson.

When once a habit is fastened upon a man it is hard for him to break away. The most startling lessons fail to have any effect on him. Among the many things which are killing off young men especially is the cigarette habit that is growing worse and worse all the time.

A most vivid lesson of the danger lurking in their use was given here yesterday and Saturday afternoon. A young man by the name of Nowell, who is a printer, and who worked for several printers here within the past month, dropped into Clegg's about noon on Saturday. As he sat down to the table he fell over with most horrible convulsions. He was a stranger there, having boarded up town, but a physician was summoned and remained with him most of the afternoon and night.

His symptoms were so alarming that another physician was called in for consultation, when it was learned that the young man was addicted to the cigarette habit. He had been in the habit of smoking as many as fifty or seventy five a day, often getting up out of his bed to smoke. It seems he had taken treatment for them and was better, but on Saturday he commenced smoking again, when the spasms returned. His sufferings were intense and it looked at every paroxysm like he would die.—Greensboro Record.

The opinion has become general that the President has abandoned the idea of sending in a message recommending that he be given authority to appoint a commission to examine into and report upon the best plans and methods of reforming the currency and financial systems of the country. It was given out with something of a flourish of trumpets immediately upon the passage of the tariff bill through the Senate that the executive would urge Congress to give him the necessary authority to name an official monetary commission. The days since then have sped by, as days have a habit of doing when they are not watched, and the message has not come in. The public was assured that it was written and only needed the signature of the President and the service of Major Ruden to lay it before Congress and the people.—Raleigh Press Visitor.
