AN IMPORTANT CONNECTION.

The A. C. L., to Make Transportation Connections With A. & N. C.

Some important dealings are going on between the Atlantic Coast Line and the Atlantic & North Carolina railroad, looking to better mutual transportation facilities for both roads, in and out of this city.

The present situation of both roads here offers nothing in common. The W. & N. crosses the A. & N. C. at right angles and any business transacted must be done by transfer, not even a switch offering transportation facilities for freight between the roads.

It is now proposed to buy property lying between the two roads in this city, put in a Y, and thus connect both roads.

It is also said that the A. C. L. will make traffic arrangements with the A. & N. C. to use its tracks to Kinston, and will from Kinston make connections to run a train to Norfolk. In this way it will run a through passenger and freight service from Wilmington to the North via New Berne.

An arrangement of this kind means important things to this section.—New Berne Journal.

Museum Agent (1905)—I've got a great freak. Found him in the back woods." Manager—"What is it?" Agent—"Why, he's never used a bicycle, and he has a perfectly straight spine."

Hoax—"I thought Jiggers was going to buy a wheel. He said he had enough money." Joax—"Yes; he had a balance in bank of $72, just the price of the wheel." "Well, why didn't he buy it?" "He realized that if he bought the wheel he couldn't keep his balance."

Forest fires are threatening a number of villages in Montana.

A girl at Port Tampa, Fla., started a fire with kerosene with the usual result—house destroyed and three lives lost.

The latest intelligence from Klondike gold field is to the effect that there is plenty of gold there, but not enough food. Famine is predicted before it will be possible to transport to the miners sufficient supplies for the coming winter.

It is rumored that E. B. Cuthbert & Co., members of the New York Exchange who had several branch offices in this State, made an assignment Tuesday.

Spain's Exhaustion by the Cuban War.

People here hardly realize what Spain has done in the course of the struggle with Cuba. She has sent so many conscripts to die there of fever and homesickness and wretchedness that at present the Spanish War Office has a greater experience in the matter of the transport of troops by sea, not merely than any other war office of modern times, but of any times. Spain in the last few years has put 250,000 men into Cuba. That she does not have to provide for bringing them home is the most dreadful and disastrous fact of all.

The Cuban war has done much to exhaust Spain in three ways. It has cost huge sums of money, has absorbed the energies of government, and, more important, it has robbed the country of half her crop of young men. The conscripts have been sent to die in Cuba at the very moment when they ought to have been using their young energies in tilling the soil, winning iron from the mines, or working in the trades. In a land where the men have an invincible longing to rest in the shade after toiling, and are old at fifty, the nation cannot do without its youths. Spain, then under its present conditions, is exactly the country in which one would expect the gospel of anarchy to flourish and abound.—London Spectator.

It Looked Like a Section of Klondike.

The store of the Wallace Bros. wore a somewhat Klondikish look for a part of the day Tuesday. One of their customers, Mr. J. G. Mabe, of Hartland, Caldwell county, came down on the vestibule early that morning, came over to their store, bought a bill of goods and handed over the gold in nuggets and dust for them. The total amount of the gold, which was exceptionally pure, was 581 pennyweights, which at 85 cents the pennyweight was worth very nearly $500. It was mostly in nuggets, the two largest of which were about 3 1/2 inches long, 1 1/2 inches wide and weighed 90 and 86 pennyweights, respectively.

Mr. Mabe was of course uncommunicative as to the exact spot where he found the treasure, but it was learned that it was found within a few miles of the old Baker mine, in Caldwell county, and near the surface.

The Wallace Bros. Company expressed the gold to the assay office at Charlotte Tuesday evening. They have the goods and would like to hand more of them out for the "dust"—Satesville Mascot.

The Montgomery Advertiser tells us that Alabama now produces 1,000,000 bales of cotton, 50,800,000 bushels of corn, 1,000,000 tons of pig iron and 6,000,000 tons of coal; and that the State can easily increase these productions to 2,000,000 bales of cotton, 100,000,000 bushels of corn, 5,000,000 tons of pig iron and 25,000,000 tons of coal and maintain this rate of production for an indefinite period.

How to Sleep at Will.

According to the newest theory of sleep, that curious phenomenon results from the brain being literally drowned in blood. The physiologist who has made this discovery has also found out how you may regulate your period of sleep to the minute, and awake as regularly as the punctual cock. All you have to do is to raise or lower your head by means of pillows of various thicknesses. If you want to sleep longer than you do at present, lower the pillow and let in more blood on the brain; if you want to sleep less, raise your pillow and let in less blood. Never take narcotic drugs, as they injure the brain, but lower the pillow more and more till sleep comes. You need not go to the expense of buying an alarm clock, either, since this simple plan will enable you to awake at any hour.

Were Poor, but Fortune Smiles.

New York, August 30.—The late Thomas Hussey, the Alabamian who was recently found helpless with $33,000 in his clothing and in his boots made a will in favor of his granddaughters, Mrs. Harriet Mitchell and Mary Ann Donohue, of Brooklyn. Both are poor and have large families.

The executor of the will thinks the estate will foot up more than $50,000, and may go above $100,000. One of Hussey's assets is a return railroad ticket to Montgomery, Ala. He made annual trips to New York and Philadelphia to collect dividends.

The sentiment which annually greets the return of the oyster from its summer vacation may not be of an aesthetic sort, but certainly it is as remote as possible from mercenary consideration of commerce. And yet the oyster not only stands for a great delicacy, but for a great industry that will in time be vastly greater. It is shown by Government statistics, for instance, that of the 35,000,000 bushels of oysters consumed throughout the world each year, 30,000,000 bushels are supplied by the United States, and that the oyster fishery excels any other fishery in importance. Add to this that the industry is especially important in our sister States of New Jersey and Maryland—the latter alone producing one third of the world's crop—and it will be seen that there are special reasons why Philadelphia should be cordial to the oyster, and should greet its advent with a degree of effusiveness not extended to any other thing in the edible list with the possible exception of the Thanksgiving turkey.—Philadelphia Record

The United States Navy Department's report states that there are now being built for the Federal fleet five battle ships, one gunboat and fourteen torpedo boats. The battleships are the Kearsarge, Kentucky, Alabama, Illinois and Wisconsin; the gunboat is the remaining one of the Annapolis Vicksburg Newport Princeton Wheeling Marietta sextet; and the fourteen torpedo boats include the submarine Plunger of the Holland type.

If the coal strikes were settled it would clear the business horizon of the East cloud that threatens returning prosperity. The tariff may grind us, the grasshoppers and locusts and floods may in turn plague us; but the people are not now tearing their hair over prospective miseries. They are rejoicing in the enjoyment of present blessings and trying to get all the good possible out of the conditions that are.—Philadelphia Record.

An item, which has been going the rounds of the press is to the effect that the stewards in the Methodist Church at Albertville (Ala.), finding their church revenue insufficient, have levied an annual tax of $10 on each tobacco chewing member of the congregation. The plan is said to work admirably and to bring in a goodly revenue.

The Professional Beggar.

The professional beggar is nothing if not ingenious in concocting an up to date story that is likely to touch the sympathy, and the pocket of any one incautious enough to listen. The latest of these narratives was sprung in the cafe of a hotel in Chestnut street, one evening recently. A man who was shabby, but neat, walked up to a group of gentlemen and said:

"Gentlemen, I was on my way to the Klondyke with $500 in my pocket, and it has been stolen from me. Instead of having a prospect to gain a fortune, I have now no prospect of getting supper or a place to sleep unless you will assist me. I am going to work all winter and save enough to take me to the gold fields in the spring. I will not forget you if you assist me now, as I propose to keep a record of the names and addresses of all who aid me in my great misfortune." He took out a soiled notebook and a pencil, as if he fully expected to put down the names of those present. One of the men handed a dime to him and told him to run away and get a drink, and to reflect that "nose paint" costs 50 cents a glass in Alaska.—Philadelphia Press.

A Revised Version.

A colored exhorter, while holding a meeting in Georgia, solicited a special collection to defray the expenses of the meeting. "We'll pass round de hat," he said, "endurin' de singin' of de hymn on page 205—'On Jordan's Stormy Banks.'" And then he proceeded to "line out" the hymn, but so intent was he on collection that he forgot whole lines of it, and supplied others with the following result:

"On Jordan's storm banks I stand
En cast a wistful eye
To Canaan's fair an' happy land—
(Don't let dat hat pass by!)
'O, de transportin', rapturous scene
Dat rises to my sight!
(Drap in dat nicke', Brudder Green!)
En rivers of delight!
"Could I but stand whar Moses stood
En view de landscape o'er,
Not Jordan's stream, or Death's cold flood—
(We wants ten dollars more!"
—Atlanta Constitution.

Put His Trust in God.

No part of the life of William E. Gladstone is more significant than that told of by William T. Stead in a recent biography. Over his study table are these words, found in Isaiah, viii, 3; "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee, because he trusteth in Thee." If any reason were to be assigned for the long and successful life of Mr. Gladstone, soon to enter on his 89th year, it could hardly be better found than in the motto above quoted, which has probably long been not only before Mr. Gladstone's eyes, but in his heart and thoughts.—Jewish Messenger.

A bedroom in a house in Morrisville, Vt., has been made uncomfortable for some time past by honey, which ran down the walls to the bed and the carpet. An investigation into the cause of this manifestation revealed the fact that a swarm of bees had located between the boards and laths. Thirty or forty pounds of very fair honey were taken out, and the bees were induced to enter a hive, where they are living happily at present.

A Young Girl's Pluck.

The daughter of Mrs. W. N. Wright, near Gibsonville in this county, a young lady of perhaps 15 or 16 years, will never come to want if energy and industry count for anything. This summer and spring she sold 156 dozen eggs at good prices, while the entire family had all they wanted. Besides this some 500 or 600 young chickens were hatched out a large number of which were sold on this market.—Greensboro Record.

It is a fact not generally known that the first and last stand of the Confederates were made on land owned by the same man. A part of Bull Run battle field was owned by Mr. McLean. After this famous battle he decided to move to a locality where there would be less fear from the ravages of war. By a strange coincidence he took up his abode at Appomattox, which subsequently proved to be the final battle field of the civil war.

Governor Russell has pardoned Avery Butler, of Sampson county, who was sentenced to be hanged April, 1890, for slaying his father, but whose death sentence was subsequently commuted to life imprisonment on account of extreme youth. Butler was placed in prison when fifteen years old, and has served seven years.

Heavy Turkish Fire.

I must draw attention to that feature of the Turkish tactics which stamped the war of 1877 with a character of its own, a feature evident in all sections in which I took part, in none more than in the one under discussion. I refer to the quick fire of the Turkish infantry, of such power, duration and effect as had never before been dreamed of. General Todleben wrote later, "Such a shower of lead as that with which the Turks hail our troops has never before been employed as a mode of warfare by any European army." It was more instinct, experience, silent consent and confidence in their weapons than training or formulated rules which induced the Turkish foot soldiers to adopt this mode of fighting. I had witnessed quick fire drill in Widdin, but I venture to say that it was not until after the first battle that the officers became really conscious of the terrific power of long sustained quick fire.

Our orders were briefly as follows: "As soon as you know or suppose the enemy to be within range of your rifles cover the space presumably occupied by him or presumably to be traversed by him with quick fire, independent of distance, duration, difficulty of aim, probability of hitting and consumption of cartridges." The awful effect upon the opponent of this rule, if carried out as literally and as much con amore as it was by the Turks, is apparent in the Russian losses, and in the fact that throughout the Plevna campaign the Russian attacks, with few and unimportant exceptions, collapsed, numerical superiority notwithstanding.

The relation of printing to advertising should never be overlooked. Good printing is as essential to good advertising as clear enunciation is to good speaking.—Press and Printer.

What Street Do You Live On?

Half the people living in Greenville do not know the names of the streets of the town. There ought to be sign boards on the corners giving the names of the streets.

Two Negroes Hung.

North Carolina had two hangings today, one at Snow Hill and one at Henderson, and two black fiends who outraged white women paid the penalty of their heinous crime.

Opportunities Slip Away From Us

If Greenville continues neglecting to make some united effort to induce enterprises to locate here, other towns will go on attracting industries that Greenville ought to have. The REFLECTOR has in mind three plants in other towns that it believes would have been in Greenville today if a little effort had been made to secure them. Why not organize a Chamber of Commerce and look after such matters.
