A Freight Train Plunges Into Chowan River

(Special to Reflector.)
 TARBORO, N. C., Sept. 3.—At 4:25 o'clock this morning a Southern freight ran into the Chowan river at Tunis. The draw was open for a boat to pass, and the engineer ran into it regardless of the red signal. The engine and two cars went down in the river. Fortunately no one was killed or injured.

A wrecking train was sent down from here today.

The engineer did not go down in the river with the engine. He says he tried all in his power to stop the train but could not do it. He is supposed to have jumped off.

A MAMMOTH ESTABLISHMENT.
Two Story Double Stores and Yet Not Room Enough.

There is no a busier place in town than the store of J. B. Cherry & Co. They have two story double stores—four large rooms—and yet are crowded for space in which to handle their immense stock. One section of their dry goods room has heretofore been used for groceries, but their dry goods business has grown so large that they find it necessary to have more room.

To meet this demand they are building a partition across the north room, putting in more counters and shelving, and will move the grocery stock over to that and leave the entire south room to dry goods and shoes. One section of the north room will be used for groceries, another section for furniture display, with hardware and heavy goods in the rear. The whole upper floor is just packed full of furniture, hardware, bale goods, and such goods as do not have to go on shelves or counters. Everywhere in every department of their establishment are piles and piles of goods until it looks like they have enough to fill a building twice as large as theirs.

The gentlemen composing this firm are to be congratulated upon having such a large business. They have built it up strictly on merit, their honest, square dealing with every customer having won for them the confidence of every one.

BLOODY FIGHT.

Tried to Eject a Tenant and Was Knocked Out.

Ben Williams and Stanley Hardee, both colored, had a big fuss Thursday night. It seems that Ben rented an upper room in Stanley's house, and he and his wife occupied it. The room was situated just over the one occupied by Stanley and his wife on the lower floor. When Ben went home Thursday night he was informed by Stanley that he must move to another room. Ben replied that he was too tired to move then and would have to wait. Stanley took a notion to follow Ben up to his room and make him move any way, when Ben took a big stick and helped Stanley back down stairs with it.

In the rumpuss Stanley was badly beaten about the head and cut through the jaw, but Ben says he fell on his own knife in tumbling down stairs.

Dr. E. A. Moye is moving to his new residence on the Academy hill. It has just been completed and is a pretty home.

JUST FOR FUN.

The oculist is usually an irate individual.

The days will be getting shorter before long.

Even a color blind man knows when he feels blue.

The '97 straw hat is already beginning to look passe.

Nell—"Why does that girl always wear pumps, do you suppose?" Belle—"Maybe she thinks they give a spring to her walk."

Hoax—"They tell me that new clergyman is rather fast." Joax—"Well, I've heard that he has made as high as 15 knots an hour."

The Fat Woman—"These two dwarfs are going to get married." Living Skeleton—"I thought they were very familiar on short acquaintance."

Customer (in restaurant)—"I see you have a sign there which reads 'No smoking.'" Waiter—"Yes, sir." Customer—"Don't you think you could make an exception in the case of my coffee?"

Rounder—"It seems to me De Tanque is putting on a great many airs. What's the matter with him?" Flounders—"He's invented a new excuse to give his wife for getting home late, and it has worked."

'Tis now the merry bath-er
 Into the surl doth go
 And screams with fright
 When crabs do bite
 The tempting undertoe.

Nothing in a Name.

There is nothing in name. Seth Low is urged as candidate for Mayor of Greater New York because of his high character. On the other hand, Mr. High, a merchant of Atlanta, claims to sell at prices lower than anybody else in the town.—Galveston News.

Oh, pshaw! Greenville can lay that away back in the shade and not go out of town to do it. Here we have a Mr. Long who is about the shortest man in town, and Mr. Little who is a big man. Then we have a Mr. Brown who is red, a Mr. Green who is white, a Mr. Cherry who eats apples, and we can raise a Blow on the calmest day in the year.

 And these two sons were brothers;
 One of them bought his clothes of us,
 Our neighbor bought the other.

 He looks a little "ratty."

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1897.

At Klondike whiskey is selling at $16 a quart, 50 cents a drink and 35 cents a half drink. Some folks will not be over anxious to go after learning this.

We congratulate the Pittsboro Record upon just entering the twentieth year of its career. All these years it has been under the editorial guidance of Maj. H. A. London, and no paper in the State has been edited with more ability.

Things politically are running at a pretty rate around Raleigh. Some Republicans are denouncing Governor Russell and want him turned out of office. They want the Republican State executive committee to meet and read him out of the party. It strikes us they had better been thinking a year ago of the kind of man Dan Russell is and not been howling themselves hoarse all over the State for him. They had plenty of warning of the kind of Governor he would make. It is their fight—let the fur fly.

A Brazen But Futile Falsehood.

A crowd of politicians got together at Raleigh recently and promulgated an address to the people, in which they stated that their party had taken our public school system out of politics and put in the hands of the people. We try to have patience; we try to use mild terms, whether in praise or denunciation; but in this instance it were weakness to brand this statement more mildly than the heading of this paragraph.

It is false because these schools are steeped in politics; because committeemen, teachers, county boards and supervisors, with only a few exceptions, have been selected upon political lines. The State Board of Examiners and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction are the only parts of the school system that are not rotten with politics. It is brazen because these men who wrote the document knew this; knew it—why they had just seen politics smite into failure and defeat the best measure North Carolina ever had for building up her schools.

It is futile because the people know, and they will not be deceived. They may be fooled; but you cannot openly deceive them. The parties in power had a splendid opportunity, an unrivaled opportunity; they failed signally. People talk about the crime of '73—the crime of the century; the crime of all political crimes is that which was done in the counties in July, 1897, when the hope of 600,000 children was shattered at the demand of a few politicians, whose greed for office was counted above the good of North Carolina's children.

The people will not endure this. You may try to direct their minds to other issues, but all who are true to their God, their children and their homes will demand that the slimy coils of politics be unloosed from the schools of the children.—Biblical Recorder.

In the Klondike Gold Region.

San Francisco, Sept. 1.—The Bulletin has received a letter from Charles Haines, dated Dawson City, July 26. Mr. Haines is a well known newspaper writer, and his letter is the first written by a trained newspaper man to come out of the Klondike gold region.

He says: "The rich diggings have been comparatively idle during the summer, although the output from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks was famous and there is plenty of gold in sight. There is every prospect for an immense output of gold from this district next spring. The total output of about seven millions of dollars, the season is, as near as I can judge, but very little of the ground has been worked, and the dumps will, like the tailings of the old California placers, pan out thousands of dollars when worked with improved machinery. The placers are the most puzzling and deceiving I have ever seen. Imagine a man working on good 'color' and finding the ground worth only a few dollars per day, and then turning to a waste of mud and moss, with no surface indications, and unearthing a bonanza. This is the situation here and all over Alaska. The man who comes here to mine does so at the expense of health and happiness and it is with him a question of making a fortune quickly or taking chances with death.

"About Meade are scores of men who can weigh their gold by the bucketful and who value their claims at millions. Four hundred valuable diggings are stretched along the creeks and every digging is a fabulous mine of gold. Yet there are weary men who have gone and returned to Dawson after searching the great country there, and never a nugget do they show for their toil, their long tramp over broken ground and into a country whose disadvantages are exceeded by no other place on earth. This Alaska Northwest Territory is an old prize drawing that I can liken to nothing that admits of a better comparison than a lottery.

"A number of spots are selected on the creeks and rivers and for one year the miner labors. The year closes, the water runs, and the season's output barely pays expenses. Not two miles away from an unfortunate one works a man who has taken from an uninviting bit of earth a sackful of gold. The lucky one did not strike the pocket because of his ability as a miner; chance favored him, and that was all. In short, the miner guesses at it and locates any and everywhere. In 19 cases out of 20 he misses it and has to wait another year for a new trial. Dawson is merely a collection of log huts, saloons and a mass of tents, about six hundred in number. When the long nights come and the glass goes down to 65 degrees below zero, there will be intense suffering here, and I shudder to think of the results.

"Provisions are going to be very scarce, and there is little reason to doubt that the entire town will have to go on short rations during the winter and that scurvy will be rampant. The gold that will go down to the river for San Francisco and Seattle will amount to about $2,000,000. There is a lot of gold that will remain in camp, for it is legal tender at $17 per ounce. Of the 3,000 or 4,000 inhabitants only a couple of hundred at the most have made big strikes. There is plenty of work at from $15 to $20 a day, and many men have paid $250 or less for living and saved the balance. Reports of other strikes are constantly received here, and many are authentic, so far as Stewart and Polly rivers are concerned, but nothing like so rich as Klondike. Quite a number of people are preparing to leave here for Juneau in case the steamers cannot get through with provisions, and the outlook for a good grub supply is not encouraging. In conclusion, the Alaska and Northwest Territory gold fields will be developed slowly.

"Ten thousand men may come here but they will be lost in the vast country when they spread out to prospect. No more than 500 of them will strike a mine. When they do strike pay gravel their fortunes will be made. In years to come, when, at the sacrifice of human life and energy, the treasures of this great land are located, the wealth of the North will be something beyond comprehension."

Country Store Advertising.

Country store advertising is improving, and as it improves it grows more interesting and all the better for the interest it excites. It was formerly of little consequence, because country storekeepers took little interest in this department of their own business. The advertising was unpopular, was neglected, and regarded as a bore because it was considered an expense rather than a source of profit. Shrewd men have taken the advertising expense account from the blacklist it formerly occupied, and put it in the light so that we can plainly see just what its value is and its probable and profitable returns. Money is now spent, not grudgingly as formerly, but freely and voluntarily, and in some instances, lavishly. That may be thrown away, the quality of country store advertising should be carefully considered and every help toward goodness adopted. We quote the following suggestion from an exchange, as possibly a useful one:

"A good plan for busy dealers to put into operation, and one that has been tried with success, is to put every clerk in the house upon his mettle and award some prize to the one who gets up the best arranged or most attractive advertisement. The moment they feel a spirit of good natured rivalry they begin to devote their spare moments to the question, and oftentimes they think out a policy that is not only a surprise to themselves, but to their employers. It also serves as a drill in one of the first essentials to a good merchant. This applies as well to circular announcements as to newspaper ads."

The average country clerk has no conception of any special talent or adaptability he may possess that might be usefully applied to business affairs. He regards the "Old Man" as an oracle; wonders how he happens to know so much, and where he learned it, but doesn't dream of setting out to likewise learn, nor even of probing for any latent talent he may himself possess. He needs spurring, and it will be to his employer's advantage to use the spur. We speak by the card in this matter; we were a country clerk ourself once upon a time, and retrospect holds up to us today more than a trifle of time wasted for want of a spurring—Dry Goods Chronicle.

How the Old Man Was Converted.

"This here speculation in wheat on the stock exchange is gamblin' pure an' simple," said the farmer, who was a deacon and a strict disciplinarian, "an' the Lord won't prosper them that wins by it."

"Well, father," replied his son, "I'm sorry to hear that, for I placed that money you gave me and made $900 by the deal."

The old man coughed, wiped his glasses, and then said:

"Well, well! Providence does work in mysterious ways. The parson wuz rayin' last week that church needed paintin' an' besides that's a mortgage on the farm that orter be lifted, an' one or two other little accounts that's got to be squared. Well, well."—Atlanta Constitution.

The Farmer was Fixed for Him

A well to do Georgia farmer invited a merchant friend to dine with him. The merchant was known for his crankiness, and had once or twice tried to shoot people for imagined wrongs.
The farmer had considerable busness dealings with him, and they were on the best of terms. However, the farmer kept a wary eye on him.

Several days after the dinner at the farmer's house the merchant
said to him:

"I can't account for the queer feelings and impulses I have occasionally. For instance, the other day when I was dining at your table, it suddenly came into my mind to kill you though I had nothing in the world against you.
I had a pistol in my pocket at the time, and once I had my hand on it when the strange feeling passed from me."

"Don't let that bother you,"
said the farmer. "I knowed all about your failin's in that line, an' I wuzn't asleep when I saw your

A Colored Girl Raped

Franklinton, N. C.; Aug 31.—A warrant was issued this afternoon for the arrest of Josh Winder and Turner Debnam, colored boys about fifteen years old, charged with rape on the person of a colored girl about eleven years old. The crime was committed at the home of the little girl in the absence of her parents.

Debnam held her with his hand
over her mouth, while Winder, with an open knife, outraged her under threat of death, if she made any outcry. Both boys are rather slender. Winder, yellow and Debnam, black. They left here on local freight, beating their way to Raleigh.

THE BAL POUFRE.

A Fete After the Order of Colonial Times.

The good old days of long ago were with us again Thursday evening; days of colonial dames and ceremonious cavaliers, with powdered hair, plaited cut, rustling brocade and krickerbockers, the stately minuet and old Virginia reel.

The fete was given by Misses Myra and Winnie Skinner in honor of Misses Fanny Skinner and Eva Palm, who have for some time been visitors most welcome to Greenville society.

The young gentlemen were instructed to repair at 8:00 to the respective homes of the young ladies whom they were to escort, and there endure to be properly curled and powdered and burnt with things as warm to the tender scalp as ardent glances are to tender hearts, but "O, Die immortelles," how different the sensation.

By ten o'clock Germania hall was well filled with beauty and chivalry, sounds of revelry and music's voluptuous swell. The german was gracefully and skilfully led by that most fascinating dancer, Miss Winnie Skinner, who is nothing if not original; hence the dancers tripped out of time-worn and conventional figures into new, ever varying and intricate mazas that would have done honor even to Terpsichore herself.

At 2 A. M. with reluctant foot, though grateful hearts and memories that will linger, the gay masqueraders stepped out of ye olden THEN, with its shadowy and hallowed halo, into prosaic NOW.

There were in attendance about thirty couples chaperoned by Mesdames Harry Skinner, Charles Skinner, R. J. Cobb, B. E. Parham, Chas. Laughinghouse, T. J. Jarvis, A. L. Blow and G. B. King. As a correct list of the couples in attendance could not be procured early enough for publication the names have been omitted.

Enlarging

Mr. Charles Skinner, proprietor of Hotel Macon, says he fully agrees with the REFLECTOR that Greenville needs a modern hotel, and having waited and waited in vain to see if any movement would be started to get one he has contracted for eight additional rooms and other improvements to his place. We commend Mr. Skinner for this step, but there will still be room and need for an up to date hotel.
