ORIGINAL OBSERVATIONS.

Made by the Orange, Va., Observer.

Half a loaf is better than no vacation. The leaves are flushing and taking a tumble.

The hypocritical friend (?) is more to be shunned than a rattlesnake or a mad dog.

An honorable person never started a lie nor retailed one started by some one else.

The more a person has of inherited or natural dishonesty the easier does he believe evil reports.

'Tis kindness that oft wins a friend, 'tis love to which we condescend, 'tis skill we labor with to please, 'tis cash that helps us take our ease.

The Home Paper

Only those who have lived in a small town can realize the power and fascination of a home paper. It occupies a place that no other publication can fill.

The home newspaper comes first, always. Everybody looks through every column to see if his or her "name is in the paper." Each bit of local gossip is read and discussed. Sometimes it is a birth, sometimes it is a death, sometimes a marriage. No matter what it is, every name mentioned is familiar to all, and for this one reason alone the home paper is prized above and beyond anything the "literary fellows" in the cities can produce.

It doesn't take a great while to read the news in the home papers; there's time to read the advertisements, and the advertisements are read, just the same as the news. Every business man in every town where a paper is printed should be represented in that paper. If he is not it is he, and not the publisher, who is the loser.—Exchange.

Special Services

Mr. N. B. Broughton, of Raleigh, is expected on the evening train and will conduct the services in the Baptist church tomorrow. At the night services a Baptist Young People's Union will be organized.

Beginning tomorrow Rev. N. M. Watson will hold a series of meetings for some days in the Methodist church. Rev. J. A. Hornaday, of Weldon, will arrive Monday to assist him. All Christians of the community should give their support to the meeting.

When?

The Raleigh Press Visitor says Harris Nickel Plate Show will exhibit in Raleigh Oct. 10th. We believe the Press Visitor is wrong on two counts—first, circuses don't usually exhibit in this State on Sunday; second, as this show will be in Kinston on the 9th and Greenville on the 11th it could hardly strike around by Raleigh on the intervening day even if it was not Sunday.

The Autumnal Textiles are in radiant profusion on our counters. No store in the South ever exhibited so much exclusiveness and elegance. There are gorgeous groups of stuffs from Paris, Vienna, Picardy, Roubaix, Glouchau, Gera, Bradford, Leeds, Glasgow and other famous trans-Atlantic manufacturing cities. We selected the best that the makers of France, Germany, Austria, England and Scotland have produced, and you are invited to examine them while they are yet in their exquisite state of freshness and beauty. There are multitudes of plain makes in mono-colors, and an aggregation of fancy effects in multi-colors showing designs and combinations that are too kaleidoscopic for any advertising pen, to describe. Price is no object with us.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1897.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct 1, '97.
 The Treasury deficit is still the fly in the administration's milk. The deficit for the third month of the first quarter of the fiscal year, which closed yesterday, was not so great as for the first two months of the quarter, but that was because of a heavy decrease in expenditures and not because of any large increase in receipts. The deficit for the quarter is in the neighborhood of $30,000,000, and there is no good reason for expecting that it will be much less in the second quarter, although members of the administration are now predicting that the receipts of the government will equal the expenditures by the first of January. It is known that this continued deficit has been a source of considerable worry to Mr. McKinley and his cabinet, and believed that it was one of the reasons why the administration was so willing to have the sale of the Union Pacific Railroad rushed before Congress meets. They count upon the government's share of the purchase money to increase the available cash in the Treasury.

Mr. McKinley has returned to Washington, but his traveling isn't over for the season, as Boss Hanna needs him in his business, and has arranged another trip to Ohio for him. It is understood that this trip will be made the latter part of this month and that while in Ohio Mr. McKinley will make at least one speech for Hanna. If a little thing like consistency cut any figure with the Hanna-McKinley combine, it would be pertinent to ask if there was impropriety in the Secretary of State taking part in the Ohio campaign, why the President can do so with propriety?

The little gathering of goldbugs calling themselves a "monetary commission" and claiming to represent the entire country has, after dividing themselves up into committees on metallic currency, demand obligations, and banking, taken a recess until October 11. So far as the public is concerned they might as well have adjourned sine die.

The machinery of the Pension Bureau is being unblushingly used to help along the campaign of Boss Hanna in Ohio. A number of clerks have been transferred to the middle division, in which Ohio is, from another division, in order to expedite all applications for pensions for citizens of Ohio now pending, and in order that all pension inquiries made by Ohio Congressmen may be answered the same day they are received. Of course, this is not fair towards applicants for pensions in other States, but it allows the Ohio voter to see what "pull" Hanna has, and after election

Ohio applications will cease to be specially favored.

When a man adopts questionable methods in an avowed attempt to get rich by catching "suckers," as Mr. John Wedderburn, head of the business of John Wedderburn & Co., did, he knowingly accepts all the chances of having himself officially branded as a fraud. Therefore no sympathy was wasted on him when it was announced that the Commissioner of Patents had decided to disbar John Wedderburn & Co. from practice before the U. S. Patent Office, for fraud, and that the postal authorities were being pressed to act upon the request to put the "National Recorder," John Wedderburn & Co.'s paper, on the fraud list. Mr. John Wedderburn although still a young man has so far made use of four aliases in his efforts to catch "suckers"—The Examiner Claims Bureau, The Press Claims Co., The National Recorder, and John Wedderburn & Co.

There was a very warm time in the office of the Postmaster General this week, which resulted in an apology from the Postmaster General to "Dick Kerens, the Missouri republican boss. The row started when Kerens produced a peremptory order from Mr. McKinley directing that a man selected for postmaster at Kirkyville, Mo., by the Postmaster General, should not be appointed. Mr. Gary got so mad that he accused Kerens of wanting to have embezzlers appointed postmasters in Missouri. Then the Missouri boss got "on his ear" and made things so hot for Mr. Gary that he was glad to close the incident by making an apology. What made Mr. Gary mad was that Mr. McKinley would not allow him to appoint a man postmaster who was opposed by Kerens.

breed in the bowels. Kill them and you are safe from the awful disease. Cascarets destroy the germs throughout the system and make it impossible for new ones to form. Cascarets are the only reliable safe guard for young and old against Yellow Jack. 10c, 25c, 50c, all druggists.

Willing to Wait.

It was in the dentist's office. Three women, two girls and a man were in the waiting room, with uneasy expressions on their faces. One of the girls held her hand to her face and was comforted by a companion. The man sat grim as a sphinx. The women were silently mournful. In the front room the dentist was working on a patient. Howls of a more or less subdued character issued at intervals from the spot where he was plying his "jimmy" and "ice tongs," and the women shivered and looked toward the door. The girl with the swollen jaw said to her companion: "Oh, I do wish he would hurry up."

One of the women said to another of her fellow sufferers: "Isn't it strange that a person has to wait so long in a dentist's office?" The answer was: "It's perfectly terrible, ain't it?"

Sudden'y there was a louder howl from the front room than usual. Just then the office door opened and a young fellow came in with his hand to his jaw. He took a seat among the mourners and waited. In a few seconds the dentist came out in the waiting room and said, with a bashful smile: "Who is next?"

The man pointed to the woman with a heroic politeness. The woman indicated the girl with a swollen jaw.

Just then the author of the heart rending howls from the front room made her appearance. She was red eyed and toulzy as to hair. She had been weeping. The waiting girl with the swollen jaw turned to the young fellow who had just come in and said: "I guess you may take my turn for a little."

The young man arose and, with a gesture betokening the courage of despair, entered the lion's den.—Chicago Chronicle.

When Elephants Have Toothache.

It is not easy to tell when an elephant has the toothache, but it is best to keep out of his way when you do know it. A London surgeon, who had been for many years in India, says he would sooner risk a railway accident than meet an elephant with a toothache.

It appears that a toothache affects an elephant in a more severe manner than it does any other animal. Elephants have very sensitive nerves, and a touch of toothache often brings on madness.

Providing you are able to chain down an elephant and draw out the offending tooth, the brute is certain to be affectionate to you afterward. Here is an instance:

An elephant in Bengal, India, became affected with toothache, but the keepers managed to secure it while a dentist drew a decayed tooth—the cause of the trouble. After a time the elephant seemed to understand that the dentist was trying to do something for his pain, and he gave every evidence of appreciating the attention. When the operation was over he frisked round the dentist like a young lamb.—Answers.

A Leaf From the Record

A correspondent of the News and Observer writing from Halifax county, says: "Things have greatly changed in this county during the past few years. Now we have a negro county commissioner, a negro postmaster at every important postoffice in the county, but two, a negro jailor and a negro court crier. The white people are getting very tired of it and from general indications there will be a strong effort for them to come together again."

In ten or twelve counties negroes have been appointed school committeemen the committees having charge of the white as well as the colored schools. In several counties there are colored commissioners. The McKinley administration has appointed in the eastern part of the State a number of negro postmasters, in two instances appointing persons who were not only not residents but had no interest whatever in the place they were to serve. At one place the keeper of a disreputable colored saloon was made postmaster. At a small postoffice in Eastern Carolina one of the most respected white ladies who had held the position for years, was turned out and the place given to a negro woman. At Fair Bluff, Columbus county one of the most odious colored heelers from another section was made postmaster. In Warren, Halifax and other counties colored constables have arrested white men and women, and they have been tried before colored justices of the peace.

These things are accumulating day by day. They are solidifying the white people of this State as nothing else ever could.—Charlotte News.

Women and Postal Banks

Whenever postal savings banks are in operation women are among the most appreciative patrons of the system. As a rule women are more careful of small sums than men, and seem to have a more practical realization of the value of such accumulations. In many families it is only the foresight of the wife that leads to provision being made against a day of adversity.

The desire of women more generally than of men is for a place of absolute safety for their small savings rather than high rates of interest. Consequently they are especially appreciative of the stability which the postal savings bank affords.

Probably Congress could do no other one thing that would so commend it to the women of the country as would the establishment of a postal savings bank system.—Chicago Record.
