JUST FOR FUN.

Mothers-in-law are preparing for their usual Thanksgiving visits.

The best fed turkeys in the barnyard are wearing that worried look.

Luetgert isn't mentioned so much nowadays and sausage is selling again.

Now that the election returns are all in it is certain that the country is saved.

Critique—"Why do you call that miserable landscape 'Home'?" D. Auber—"Because there's no place like it."

"Some men," says the Manayunk Philosopher, "are so suspicious that if you give them the right answer to a conundrum, they always insist that you have heard it before."

Hoax—It'll be horrible up in the Klondike this winter. Joax—Yes, indeed. Hundreds will starve to death. Hoax—Oh, I was thinking of the long nights, when Wahkeen Miller will insist upon reading some of his poems.

Later Election News.

Definite information from the elections where the contest was close has been hard to get. The latest we could learn from Ohio today was that the State is Republican by a very small majority, Bushnell is elected Governor but there is yet doubt if the majority in the Legislature will be enough to elect Hanna.

Van Wyck's plurality has been increased to 86,000 in New York city and Democrats have swept the entire State.

The Republicans will control the Legislature of Maryland by a very small majority on joint ballot. This will elect a Republican U. S. Senator from that State.

The Democratic majority in Kentucky is 25,000.

Democrats came near getting the whole of the Virginia Legislature. Things in Kansas look Republican.

Even in States where the Democrats have fared the worst this year they have managed to cut the McKinley majorities of 1896 in half. No party can long stand up against that sort of pounding.

STATE NEWS.

Gen. Thos. L. Clirgman died in the State hospital at Morganton, Wednesday.

Two men have been sent to the penitentiary from Carteret county for stealing terrapins.

According to the report of the secretary of state there are more than 2,300 insurance agents in the State.

Oxford has a Klondike store, Winston has a Pupkin Party and Greensboro is going to have Klondike Digging.

Robert A. Van Wyck, who on Tuesday was elected Mayor of Greater New York, is a North Carolinian by birth, and graduated at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The old town well in Richlands Onslow county, was cleaned out the other day, among the articles brought to the surface were 27 tin dippers, 19 pocket knives, 7 pounds of keys, 3 tuckets, 45 feet of chain, and what is supposed to be the remains of a glass factory.—Goldsboro Headlight.

Married.

Wednesday evening 3rd inst., at the home of the bride, near Greenville, Mr. Joseph Ross and Miss Vicie Tucker were married by Justice J. A. Lang.

Mince Meat, Prunes, and Select Dates at J. S. Tunstall's.

Hints for the Thrifty.

News of our doings is of general consequence because the store is rich with there, too. People who are alive usually do. But he'd have to buy up to date garments. We don't keep the style he wore. And what a grand choice he'd have.

Sack suits, single and double breasted cutaways, Prince Alberts each with a style peculiar to us.

Cheviots, Cassimeres, Thibets and Worsted, plaids and checks and stripes in bewildering variety, blacks, blues, browns, olives and all sorts of beautiful combinations of colors.

Suits for dress, for business, for sport, suits in all prices.

Yes, Washington would certainly buy his Clothing from FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1897.

Of the children born alive one fourth die before eleven months old, one third before the twenty third month, half before the eighth year, two thirds of mankind before the thirty ninth year, three-fourths before their fifty first year, and of about 12,000 only one survives a whole century.

New York and New Jersey fighting their way back among the sisterhood of Democratic States; Ohio staggering and uncertain which flag to follow; Massachusetts faltering in its Republican allegiance; Democratic gains in all the McKinley strongholds—these are not the sequences that were to follow fast upon the heels of renewed Protection and returning Prosperity. The people of the United States appear to be sadly dubious in the face of triumphant Dingleyism.—Philadelphia Record.

Taxes have been raised by the fusion reformers—the honest voters are not to blame. They are the ones upon whom the burdens fall. But mark this prediction: If it were necessary to raise taxes this year to meet the extravagant expenditures of the fusion bosses, it will be more necessary to raise them next year. The cost of such management gets more and more and soon another raise will be in demand. It is utterly impossible for these fellows to get along with as little money as it formerly took to run the State. And yet they cry retrenchment and reform.—Lexington Dispatch.

Newspapers in Schools.

The idea of substituting newspapers for reading books in public schools has taken hold of some minds and occasioned some discussion. There are some newspapers which could be used with profit, there are others which would impress into the plastic minds of the children false ideas. The question, therefore, of the newspaper to be used is important, and the person to make the selection should be considered. If the teacher is to select a political paper to promulgate his own politics we might view the scheme with suspicion.—Baltimore Sun.

Making Opportunity.

Improving opportunities is well, but making opportunities is better. Many a man says that he could do something if he only had the opportunity, but the man who is determined to do something will secure the opportunity, even if has to make it. Bacon says: "A wise man will make more opportunities than he finds."—Sunday School Times.

Let Us Stop to Think.

Let us stop to think of the good-bye kiss. Better miss a car than leave a heart ache.

Let us stop to think of the children. We, too, were children once and loved to be remembered.

Let us stop to think of the aged. For us, too, the evening shadows will close at length and we shall, perchance, be left at desolate hearthstones. We shall need to be remembered then.

Let us stop to think of the stranger. We, too, have been alone and have needed the touch of the kindly hand upon our lives and many a life has gone out in the blackness of darkness for the lack of such as any one of us might have given.

Let us stop and think of God and the future. At best the time is short and the end is near. And when it shall come, blessed will be he to whom the entrance upon another life will be but the realization of dear and familiar dreams the consummation of a lifetime of longings. Let us stop to think. If there be any virtue, if there be any praise, let us stop to think upon these things.—Outlook.

A Question to Answer.

The elections of 1897 are over, but the following question propounded by Mr. Bryan in one of his Ohio speeches will be asked every Republican speaker until Bryan is elected President in 1900.

"Why do the Republicans claim credit for the rise in wheat and neglect to claim credit for a rise in sugar, due to the fact that the sugar trust made the schedule in the Dingley bill?"

"If the Republican party raised the price of wheat, why did it lower the price of corn and cotton?"

Put this question to every man who supported McKinley or Palmer last November.—Raleigh Observer.

Asked in all Fairness.

If President McKinley wants to accord recognition to the negroes because of their loyalty to the Republican party, it can be asked in all fairness. Why does he not go into close States like Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio where the negro vote turns the scale to his party, and give post-offices there to black politicians? The President will not do this, because he knows that it would be taken as a "manifest purpose to affront and humiliate a community of American citizens for no other reason than difference in party affiliation."—St. Louis Republic.

The mismanagement of our State penitentiary forcibly illustrates the kind of "reform" that has been inaugurated in poor old North Carolina by those to whom our State government has been entrusted. And in order to excuse some of the wasteful extravagance, with which the penitentiary is now mismanaged, an attempt has been made to make it appear that similar extravagance characterized its former management by the Democrats. But this attempt has signally failed. The former Democratic superintendent, Hon. A. Leazer, has published a statement giving the official figures, which completely proves that, when he turned over the penitentiary to its present board of directors, it was not only self-supporting but actually had on hand a large surplus!

Ex-Supt. Leazer proves that during the past year (1896) the penitentiary sustained itself—was entirely self supporting—and did not cost the taxpayers one dollar. And not only that, but after paying all expenses it had on hand, on the 1st day of January, farm products and other assets to the amount of $63,347.72. All of this has been expended by the new "reform" management and the penitentiary is in debt!

How do honest taxpayers like this kind of "reform?"—Charlotte Observer.

I don't care how big and rich and widely known a concern is, let it take its ads out of all papers for say two seasons and it will never again be able to catch up. Why, some dealers take it to be a sure sign that a company is falling back, perhaps getting ready to make an assignment when it stops ads and keeps out for a longer time than usual. You can send him all the catalogues, circulars, letters, etc., you please, but unless he can find you ad in his paper he don't count you as being in the front rank. No business man can afford to let his ads drop out of the papers that reach his customers.—Greensboro Record.

A Magnetic Egg.

Mr. Sam Colvert has quite a remarkable egg. It is an ordinary looking hen egg except under size. It was taken out of a nest a few days ago with a lot of others and when laid down it was found that it would only lie in a certain position. It elevates itself almost on one end—the small end of the egg—and when laid in any other position immediately whirls back to that point as if there was some magnetism at that end. The egg is very light and apparently is nothing but shell. It is quite curiosity.—Statesville Landmark.

Philosophy at the Zoo.

Two youths looked into a cage of monkeys.

Through their nostrils puffs of smoke came fourth at regular intervals from white wrapped cigarettes. Their heads were nicely balanced by a wealth of hair parted exactly in the middle.

Light bamboo canes grasped firmly in the middle showed they were full grown men.

"See," said one, "what we have descended from!"

And they looked into the cage of monkeys and laughed.

The mother monkey called her children about her.

They climbed gravely on the perch to listen to her words.

She pointed to the young men.

"See," said the mother monkey, "what some of our ancestors have degenerated into!"

And the children monkeys returned to their corners and wept.—Chicago Record.

Coke and Cole.

Senator Coke of Texas was once pitted in some kind of race against a man named Cole, who was an eloquent speaker and was getting rather the better of him. The Coke party gave a big barbecue, but their best speaker could not be on hand. The committee discovered that no talent was available except a rough and tumble fellow who had been a coal miner in West Virginia. He consented, when called on, and the committee was in fear and trembling, wondering what he would do. But they didn't fear and tremble long. "Feller citizens," said the speaker, "I am here today to talk to you about Coke and Cole. You know me, and you know I know what I'm talking about, and I want to ask you if you know the difference between Coke and Cole. But it ain't necessary; every man of you knows that the difference between them is the gas that is in the Cole."—San Francisco Argonaut.

India Dialects.

India has hundreds of dialects, which may all be classed under three great heads, the Sanscrit, Pracrit and Magadhi. The Sanscrit is the fundamental language and that of the Vedas; the Pracrit, the vernacular language in many dialects, and the Magadhi or Misra is that of Ceylon and the islands.

OF COURSE SHE DID NOT BUY

She Had Tried All the Samples, and the Result Was Unpleasant.

"Mamma gets tired so easily. Now that we have her safely seated, let's look around a little bit," said Miss Brown.

"With pleasure," replied Mr. Smith, who was in the department store, but not as happy as he looked.

"I suppose all men detest shopping?"

"I guess you never asked them to shop with you."

"That's ingenious, Mr. Smith. That would be a good way to ascertain whether they do or not, wouldn't it? But I haven't the heart to dissect a plausible argument, especially when it's offered in that spirit."

"Miss Brown, you are a cynic. You are making me ashamed of my real sentiments."

"Do tell me how."

"You laugh at everything that's serious, and my sentiments are serious."

"Now, Mr. Smith, you must stop. This wouldn't be shopping at all if we talked coherently. You are evidently melancholy. They say that dyspepsia gives people those kind of thoughts, but I think that those kind of thoughts give people dyspepsia. You should avoid them, Mr. Smith. Try to be like me. I never do anything that would be likely to give me dyspepsia. But let's get to business. I've been trying for a long time to discover something new in food that papa would like. Here are samples of 25 novelties. Don't they look just exquisite! And aren't the girls that give them out just too daintily get up for any thing? Just smell that tomato soup! Mr. Smith, we must try some of that tomato soup."

"Er—ah—of course, if I were you I should certainly sample it. If I was intrusted tacitly as you are with a commission from a dear relative, I should determine the merits of every new brand of tomato soup or die. But, as it is, my physician says that I must confine myself absolutely to vermicelli."

"That was simply delicious. You'll never know how much you missed by not taking it, Mr. Smith. I shall certainly have to order two cans of that. And, now that you didn't take the soup, you surely can't refuse to try some of those little pickles. Aren't they the cutest things you ever saw? Do try one. No? Mr. Smith, you're a martyr. Just look at those vanilla wafers. They're made out of that new kind of cereal. Don't they look as though they would melt before they could be swallowed? And they're just as good as they look too. Really, I must have another. Oh, and there's some of that cheese they're all talking about. Have you tried that cheese, Mr. Smith? It has set the epicures wild, you know. I don't see how you can be so mean. I don't believe you've taken a bite of one thing except the graham wafers. Do look at those doughnuts swimming in that amber colored grease. It's absolutely the newest thing out, entirely vegetable, made from beets, I believe. I declare they taste just too good for anything. I must have a memorandum of that. And here are those new preserves which Alice Miller told me about. An entirely new system, you know. Dear! Would you imagine they'd give such a quantity away as a sample? Why, did you ever think of it, Mr. Smith, one could almost lunch here for nothing. I'm beginning to—there, that girl wants us to try some American olives. And there's a new sort of pickled ham. Isn't it wonderful how they give samples of everything?"

"Now that there seems to be nothing else to eat in sight it just occurs to me that you've had nothing to drink. Come with me instantly and we'll get some soda water."

"Really, Mr. Smith, that's very kind of you, indeed, and I shall avail myself of it. I'll take some ice cream soda with fruit flavors, raspberry and pineapple mixed."

"This store certainly ought to sell a great deal, they are so generous with their samples," said Mr. Smith as they sipped the soda."

"Oh, it pays them to be so."

Three days later on Mr. Brown's veranda Mr. Smith asked, "Well, Miss Brown, have you bought any of those goods you tried when we were down town?"

"I guess not!" she replied. "How could you expect me to when the samples made me so sick?"—Chicago Times-Herald.

A True Bill.

Strong drink expels reason, drowns the memory, defaces beauty, diminishes the strength, inflames the blood, causes external, internal and incurable wounds, is a witch to the senses, a devil to the soul, a thief to the purse, the beggar's companion, the wife's woes, the children's sorrow, makes a strong man weak and a wise man a fool.—Oxford Ledger.

Tenderness

Tenderness does not mean weakness, softness, effeminateness. It is consistent with strength, manliness, truth and brave. It does not show itself alone in the touch, but in unselfishness, thoughtfulness, considerateness, forbearance, patience and long suffering. But however it shows itself; it is as the bloom on the peach, as spring showers on the earth as the music of the angels stealing down on the plain of Bethlehem. You may not have much of this world's wealth to distribute, but you may give something better and spend a useful and beneficent life, if you will practice this lesson of shedding around you the grace of human tenderness, in word and act and spirit of your life.

During the year ending October 31st there had been 309 marriage licenses issued by the Register of Deeds for Wayne county.—Goldsboro Argus.
