Antitoxine for Swine.

Dr. Salmon chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, has submitted to Secretary Wilson a report upon the experiments made in the treatment of hogs for hog cholera with antitoxin serum, says a Washington Dispatch in the New York Sun. This serum is made upon the same principle as the antitoxin of diphtheria, and is obtained from both horses and cattle which have been inoculated with the hog cholera virus. The blood of such animals, when rejected under the skin of swine, possessed both preventive and curative action.

This serum was first used upon small animals in the laboratory, and being found efficacious was last fall tested on several herds of swine in Page County, Iowa. Out of 244 animals treated, of which 86 were already sick, only 39 died. Consequently 82.86 per cent. of the animals in these herds were saved, while about 85 per cent. of untreated herds died.

Secretary Wilson regards the result of the experiments as most encouraging to the farmers, whose losses from hog cholera for many years have been so enormous as to weigh heavily upon them. He is of opinion that it is absolutely essential during the experimental stage that serum of undoubted quality be used, and he therefore proposes to ask Congress for an appropriation which will enable the Department of Agriculture to furnish 2,000,000 doses of the serum for distribution during the coming year. The present cost of the serum is 10 cents per head of animals treated, only one dose being required.

Fire Insurance Rates Should Decrease.

The present year will no doubt see a still greater downward tendency in insurance rates. Statistics of fire losses in the United States during the past year show an aggregate of $110,000,000, being $5,000,000 less than in 1895. So marked decrease in losses is not so much attributable to good luck, as to improved methods of instruction, vigilance of inspection, and greater efficiency in the fire service. All of these must directly affect the rates charged for insurance, and by a lowering of them, will enable property owners to carry greater protection than they have heretofore done.—Raleigh Post.

Tell the Story Plainly.

There are many firms that keep postponing the day when they will commence advertising in order to gain time for the conception of a "novel" advertising method. This is a profitless policy, and the final result is generally the indefinite postponement of further business transactions on the part of the firm. Even a superficial study of the advertising situation of today must force the conclusion that the brightest and most successful advertisers are not necessarily so because they advance new methods, but simply because they know just how to adapt the old methods to their particular business. And when the subject is thoroughly sifted we find that there is, after all, but one advertising method—to tell the people in plain language what you have to sell, what are its merits and what is its price. It is the same old method, but we have never seen it improved upon, and if it is honestly pursued it will prove a winner every time.—Profitable Advertising.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1898.

A disastrous fire occurred at Spokane, Wash., early Tuesday morning. Property to the value of half a million dollars was destroyed and fifty people lost their lives.

The Maryland Legislature has broken the Senatorial contest by electing Judge L. E. McComas to succeed Arthur P. Gorman. The contest in Tennessee still continues with the end nowhere in sight.

The whistle of a locomotive can be heard 3,300 yards, the noise of a train 3,800 yards, the report of a musket and the bark of a dog 1,800 yards, the roll of a drum 1,600 yards, the croak of a frog 900 yards, a cricket chirp 800 yards, a dinner bell two miles, and a call to get up in the morning 3 feet 7 inches.

The fact that the steamship lines plying to the Klondike already have all the business they can handle, so that they have been compelled to raise their passenger rates, may temporarily tend to thin out the spring rush; but it will as surely operate to enliven competition in the transportation business, and means will somehow be improvised to get all the gold seekers to the Yukon who can pay their passage money. Thus the steamship business will regulate itself; but the larger problem will be to provision and govern the great population which is sure to be massed in that region. In the solution of this question the Government will ultimately have to take part.

A newspaper woman in Washington called on Mrs. John Sherman the other day, says the New York Tribune, to get some information, but found that she was not at home. "Well hasn't she a secretary who can tell me about it?" said the newspaper woman. "Certainly, madam," answered the servant; "this way, please." And leading the way along the hall he threw open a door and ushered her into the presence of the Secretary of State. The Secretary laughed heartily when the quick-witted newspaper woman explained the situation, and acted as his wife's private secretary long enough to give the information that was desired.

It is a pretty good rule that the sooner a pig can be brought to 200 pounds and the sooner he can be gotten to market after reaching this weight, the greater will be the per cent. of profit in feeding him. Aside from the risk of cholera, etc., it has been shown that the gain above 200 pounds costs more, and that even with pork bringing good prices, there is often an actual loss in feeding above 250 pounds.

The Girl in Business

"You may meet your employer socially," writes Ruth Ashmore in an article on "The Business Girl and Her Employer," in the February Ladies' Home Journal, "but during the hours that you are in the office you are employed by him, and you have no right to claim, and he has no right to ask, any social recognition. You can always be polite; you need not be hard-hearted, and there can be, without harm, an exchange of pleasant words. But during business hours there is wisdom in attending to your business and doing nothing else. Your self-respect should not allow you to be free in your manner with the different clerks who are your companions, and you should be wise enough not to have a confidant in the office.

"No matter who your employer is, you cannot afford to accept luncheons, drives, flowers or any special social recognition from him. I do not mean that all men are bad. Again, I thank God there are thousands of good men but masculine human nature is weak, and when things have gone wrong at home there is an immense satisfaction to the average man in getting a sweet sympathy, which he probably does not deserve. From a pretty, charming girl who believes in him. But you are hired to work, not to cater to the emotions of your employer, and when you are doing your work faithfully you are doing all that you are paid for."

How to Treat Mormons.

Why should not the tables be turned and missionary work be undertaken with the Mormons themselves? We send missionaries to tougher sinners than they can possibly be, and with some success. Here is a chance at our very doors, not only to save North Carolinians from running after false prophets, but of converting the false prophets themselves. The pleading that will turn the Chinese from their ways ought at least be powerful enough to send the Mormons back to Utah, if they could not be made to see the error of their doctrine. At all events, where a Mormon preaches there too should be some opponent with the Bible at his command to confute the follower of Brigham Young. In that way the evil may be checked in its incipiency and the Mormons discouraged. This certainly is preferable to threatening them, as has been advised in some quarters.—Asheville Citizen.

An Old Shoe Worth Something.

North Carolina is always "coming to the front." A correspondent at Rocky Mount, that State, writes:

"It is well known that Lord Byron was a cripple in his youth. Mr. Chavasse has one of the shoes with steel rod and anklet, worn during this time by this noted bard. The record is authentic and the shoe was given Mr. Chavasse by his mother who now lives at her home near London, England. 'George Gordon Noel Byron, Lord Byron, of Rockdale, in the county of Lancaster, England,' says the record."

If Mr. Chavasse puts that shoe up at auction there will be some lively bidding.—Atlanta Constitution.

This is True.

A newspaper has 5,000 readers for each 1,000 subscribers. A merchant who puts out 1,000 hand bills gets possibly 300 or 500 people to read them—that is, if the boy who is trusted to distribute them does not put them under the sidewalk bridge. The hand bills cost as much as an advertisement in the newspaper. All the women and girls and half the men and boys read the advertisement. Result: The merchant who uses the newspaper has 3,500 more readers to each 1,000 of the hand-bill's readers. There is no estimating the amount of business that advertising brings a merchant, but that each dollar invested brings $20 to $100 worth of business there can be no doubt.—Goldsboro Argus.

Caught a Possum in His House.

Jack Sprouse, a well known colored man who lives on West Water street, doesn't have to go to the woods to hunt possums—they come to him. About a month ago he caught a possum under his house among his chickens. Recently some "varmint," which Jack supposed to be a cat, has been cawling up between the weather-boarding and ceiling of the house and making its headquarters between the overhead ceiling and the roof. Jack concluded to lay a trap for it, so he crawled up there and set a rabbit gum, baiting it with beef. Friday night he caught a possum in the rabbit gum.—Statesville Landmark.

Choice of Texts.

In the matter of the choice of texts, a curious thing happened to a curate whom I knew on his return from his wedding tour. He only reached home on Saturday evening, when he found a letter from his vicar asking him to preach the next sermon, as he knew he had a sermon not yet preached in the parish which would fit in with the Advent course of sermons then being given. The sermon was on the "Parable of the Ten Virgins." The curate, who preached written sermons, did not look at this particular one till the next morning, half an hour before service, when to his horror he found that his text was, "Behold the bridegroom cometh," and indeed this was the constant refrain of the sermon. It was too late to change, and so he put the best face he could upon it. The congregation may have forgotten the sermon, but they have not forgotten the text.—Cornhill Magazine.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.

A Pleasant Simple, but Safe Efectual Cure for it.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable.

The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs and difficult breathing; headache, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue, and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily, thoroughly digested before it has a time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach.

To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do, and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanston the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Disaste, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids.

These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and, not being a patent medicine, can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. N. J. Booher of 2710 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflamed and the poisonous discharge therefrom, passing backward into the throat, reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me for three years for catarrh of stomach without cure, but today I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feeling.

I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for indigestion, catarrh of stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

Send for little book, mailed free on stomach troubles, by addressing Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. The tablets can be found at all drug stores.

How it Paid Him.

Advertising pays, as will be seen by the following: A Kansas paper recently gave notice that in case a stolen chicken was not returned to a certain place before its next issue, it would publish the name of the thief. The place designated was a coop in a certain back yard. The next day after the notice came out, 27 chickens were found in said coop in the back yard.

Mr. Dingly having explained that the closing of the New England mills was due to the longer hours in a day's work in Southern mills, some of the Massachusetts laborers now want Congress to establish uniform hours of labor in the several State. Congress can only fix the hour of labor employed on Government work; but the new propaganda is an interesting illustration of the Massachusetts idea that the affairs of the universe ought to be cut strictly by the pattern of Bay State's necessities.—Philadelphia Record.

In Louisville, Ky., recently, a clergymen who was called upon by a friend to perform the ceremony at his wedding refused because he was in love with the girl himself. The girl overheard the statement, dismissed her betrothed and married the minister.

The Reason Why.

"No, I never take the newspapers home; I've a family of grown-up daughters, you know."
"Papers too full of crime, eh?"
"No; too full of bargain sales."

A Noted Cook.

Formerly appreciative recognition of successful effort was absolutely essential to the accomplished cook. Some cooks were so sensitive on this point that they could not do justice to themselves if it was withheld. The late Abraham Hayward gives an instance of this in Felix, a noted chef of his time. This artist was in the employ of Lord Seaford, who was obliged to dispense with his services for economical reasons.

Some months afterward a distinguished connoisseur was dining with Lord Seaford and before the first course was half over he detected the handiwork of Felix. He made inquiry and was informed by his host that the great chef was again in his service. He had gone from him to the Duke of Wellington. After a brief experience with the latter he had returned to Lord Seaford and begged to be taken back at reduced wages or no wages at all, for he was determined not to remain at Apsley House. He confessed that the duke was the kindest and most liberal of masters, but that when he served him a dinner that would have made Ude or Francatelli burst with envy the duke said nothing. When Felix went out and left the duke to eat a dinner prepared by the maid, the duke made no complaint. "That, my lord," Felix said, "hurt my feelings."—New York Sun.

WATCHING EMPLOYEES.

How Financial Institutions and Others Keep Track of Their Men.

It has become the custom elsewhere, and it is generally true in this city, that the employees in financial institutions are required to give bond, the amounts varying with the degree of responsibility of the duties which they perform. In addition to this, however, a supervision, varying in method, is maintained over each employee.

It is believed that the cultivation of expensive habits, the contraction of debts which indicate that employees are living beyond their salaries, and the association with undesirable characters all may be looked upon as furnishing ground for suspicion that, if the employee has not actually committed a breach of trust, he is in a fair way to meet a temptation which may prove too much for him.

It is therefore not unusual for an employee in such an institution to receive a summons to appear before the controlling official, and kindly, but firmly, to be given the option to change his course of life or to leave the institution.

It is also felt by those who are interested in the management of such enterprises that the confidence of the public is apt to be impaired when they know that men of bad habits and those keeping improper company are employed in that concern. It is therefore on this ground, as well as for the better security of the funds which are intrusted to their keeping, that financial institutions are in the habit of keeping such a close watch over the daily lives of their employees.

In the case of mercantile establishments, both large and small, in this city, it is not the custom to require bonds of employees except in the cases of a few. Nevertheless, the proprietors of such establishments find it necessary to guard against the danger of the dishonesty of employees, and it is stated that one of the best methods known to modern business men is that of noting the habits and the way of living of the employees.

In all large establishments there are a certain number of employees who occupy confidential positions.
They are supposed to keep the members of the firm posted in regard to what is going on among the force of employees, and they, in turn, are inspected by the members of the firm. It is a matter of everyday occurrence that the head of a large establishment is notified that some employee has made some purchase or acquired some article, perhaps of as small importance as wearing apparel, which seems to be an indication of extravagance.

Such a hint is very apt to lead to an investigation, and the head of the house is soon put in possession of facts which show how the suspected employee spends his time outside of business hours, who are his associates and other facts of a similar character. If what is learned seems to warrant it, the employee is warned that he must change his mode of life. It is believed that by following such methods the beginnings of wrongdoing are checked, and employees having a knowledge of the requirements of the firm in this particular are in a measure fortified to resist temptation to fall in evil ways.—Washington Star.

Palms at Kew.

While acres of fertile soil are covered with all the plants that can stand the English climate, there are others from more sunny climes that must have the protection of glass and heat. The palmhouse, which accommodates the ferns and palms of priceless value, is 362 feet long, 100 feet broad and 66 feet high. It is the largest and most elegant structure of its kind, fitted up with all the modern inventions to make plant life strong and vigorous. A spiral staircase conducts the visitor to a high room or platform where all the exquisite greenery and graceful forests of plants can be viewed.
The view is a glimpse of fairyland, a veritable illusion of the senses, a midsummer night's dream.—George E. Walsh in Lippincott's.

Feeling His Way.

A little boy about 5 years old, too tired for anything but sleep, refused one night to say his prayers. His uncle, who was present, said, "Oh, Harry, would you go to sleep without asking God to take care of you during the night?"
The little fellow answered, "I didn't say 'em last night; I ain't doin to say 'em tonight, and I ain't doin to say 'em tomorrow night, and then, if nothin don't det me, I ain't doin to say 'em no more."

Bad Behavior of College Boys.

A special telegram from Davidson to the News this morning gives the particulars of an occurrence there last night.

Mr. Arthur L. Butt, of this city last night exhibited his projectoscope and phonograph at Davidson. Our correspondent writes: "It was evident after the second picture was shown that a warm reception was in store for Mr. Butt. Before the second was over the phonograph was suffering from a shower of potatoes, bricks and other field products. The fourth picture representing a love episode was greeted with a howl and volley of missiles of every description. At this point the performance went to pieces and pandemonium reigned. The ladies hurriedly betook themselves home. Mr. Butt, however, was so unfortunate as to be locked up in the old chapel, along with Dr. Sheerer, where these gentlemen were compelled to remain until midnight, while bricks, eggs and sticks were thrown against the doors and walls. Mr. Butt at length sallied forth. The students seeing him trying to escape gave chase. Finally he found refuge at his hotel and was not further molested."—Charlotte News.

Wanted to Stable His Horse in the Basement of the Mansion.

It is reported that Governor Russell was recently considering converting the basement at the Governor's mansion into a stable and keeping his horse and buggy there. The basement is very commodious and is divided from the main floor of the mansion by a double-packed floor. With this object in view Governor Russell sent for Col. A. W. Shaffer, a skilled architect, and unfolded his plans to him. Col. Shaffer told the Governor that this would never do that the report would go out all over the State that the Governor had turned the mansion into a horse stable, and the press would howl. The Governor told the colonel that he was right about it and he very wisely accepted his advice. The Governor's claybank pony will have to continue to board.—Raleigh Press-Visitor.
