Even Brutes Recognize Civility.

Throw a bone to a dog, according to a shrewd observer, and he will run off with it in his mouth, with no vibration in his tail. Call the dog to you pat him on the head, let him take the bone from your hand, and his tail will wag with gratitude. The animal recognizes the good deed, and the gracious manner of doing it. Those who throw their good deeds should not expect them to be caught with a thankful smile.

Thousands of well-meaning boys and girls have been failures largely from gruff coarse, rude manners, which repel customers and people with whom they come in contact. A fine manner is irresistible, it often dispels the strongest prejudices, and sometimes forces us to love even those whom we consider our natural enemies. Southerners who hated Wendell Phillips were powerfully drawn to him when in the north and could not resist the temptation to hear him lecture whenever an opportunity presented.

A fine courtesy is a fortune in itself. The good-mannered can do without riches, for they have passports everywhere. All doors fly open to them, and they enter without money or price. They can enjoy nearly everything without the trouble of buying or owning. They are as welcome in every household as the sunshine; and why not? For they carry light, sunshine and joy everywhere. They disarm jealousy and envy, for they bear good will to everybody. Buns will not sting a man smeared with honey.

"A man's own good breeding," says Chesterfield, "is the best security against other people's ill manners. It carries along with it a dignity that is respected by the most petulant. Ill breeding invites and authorizes the familiarity of the most timid. No man ever said a pert thing to the Duke of Marlborough, or a civil one to Robert Welpole.

It is said that Albert Lawrence was courteous and lordly to his customers. He exhibited his goods as if he were doing a person a favor. He was liberal in his style of doing things, throwing in the odd quarter of a yard of cloth, the odd shilling in the change. When he gained a customer he kept him. The house of the Lawrence's held a monopoly of heavy beavers and wide broadcloths. A country trader bought a few yards of cloth at ten dollars a yard. On returning home and measuring the goods he found one piece to be short a quarter of a yard. He was almost afraid to speak of so small a matter to so courtly a merchant.

On his next trip to Boston, however, he plucked up courage to say: "Mr. Lawrence, when I was here a few months ago, I bought a few yards of fine broadcloth at $10 a yard. According to my measurement, it fell short a quarter of a yard."

"Fell short a quarter? That will never do, it should have overrun a quarter." Turning to his bookkeeper, he said: "Credit this gentleman with half a yard of our best broadcloth." The bookkeeper did so, and the customer was nailed for life.—Success.

There is no accounting for the taste of some women. A white woman, handsome and educated, daughter of a U. S. Army chaplain in Montana, and a teacher in the Fort Shaw schools, stole a march on her friends a few days ago by slipping off and marrying a full-blooded Piegan Indian. She was a widow and will probably soon wish she was another widow. She took her red man East on a wedding tour.

WAREHOUSE CHANGES.

The Fifth Sales House to be Built for Next Season.

There have recently been some important changes in tobacco warehouse circles here, that look to the enlargement and strengthening of the Greenville market. Mr. G. F. Evans, one of the proprietors of the Eastern Warehouse, sold his interest in that house to Mr. G. B. Hughes, of Tarboro. Later Mr. Hughes and Mr. O. L. Joyner both sold their interest in the Eastern to Mr. O. Hooker, leaving the latter sole owner of that house.

Messrs. Joyner and Hughes then formed a new copartnership to engage in the warehouse business. They will have a new warehouse built on the Munford property, just across Dickinson avenue opposite the terminus of Ninth street. This new house will be 100 x 200 feet in size, the largest on the market, and will be a modernly constructed warehouse in every respect.

The members of this new firm are thoroughly acquainted, by long and active experience, with every detail of the tobacco warehouse business. Everybody who has ever sold tobacco on the Greenville market, and many who have not, knows Othas Joyner. He has spent more time and hard work, and been more active in advancing the market than any other one man.

Mr. Hughes is a native of Virginia. He has been closely identified with tobacco business since before he was grown. For the past few years, under adverse circumstances, he has successfully operated a warehouse in Tarboro, and has many friends in this county. His coming here will add much strength to the Greenville market.

Applies to Rome.

The Plymouth Beacon says: "Don't expect your county paper to whoop up your business while you take some other paper and send to some other place to have your job work done. It is as much as you could expect for the paper you do not support, to talk up the interest of your town and county, the result of which you naturally get the benefit of."

Wanamaker for Governor.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 2.—A conference of business men from all over the State met here this afternoon under the auspices of the Business Man's League and resolved to request John Wanamaker to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, as against the candidate favored by United States Senator Quay. Vigorous anti-Quay resolutions were adopted.

BIG MONEY.

Offered for Trotters and Runners. Eleven Thousand and Four Hundred Dollars in Purses.

The New Bern, Washington, Greenville and Rocky Mount Fair Associations have arranged a circuit of four weeks racing, and offer the large sum of eleven thousand and four hundred dollars in purses.

The classes range from four minutes to a free for all and the purses range from $100 to $500 each. The races of this circuit commence at New Bern on March 1st; Washington March 9th; Greenville March 18th and Rocky Mount March 23rd. There will be four days racing each place. The entries for the first two races close on Feb. 12th and the last two on March 1st.

Mr. George Green is the Secretary for the New Bern Fair and Mr. R. L. Davis, of Washington, N. C., acts for the other three places.—Washington, N. C. Progress.

JUST FOR FUN

The undertaker's motto—"While there's death there's hope."

Doctor—"Triplets, sir?" Pat—"Phwat!! O! well, there's luck in odd numbers."

Hoax—"He's still living in his house, isn't he?" Joax—"In it and on it." "How do you mean?" "It's hid to mortgage it to buy grub."

At the florist's.—Brown—"Hello! Smith, how's the family?" Smith—"What family?" "Why, aren't you married yet?" "Don't you see, I'm buying roses at $10 per dozen."

Mr. Gabbie—"Mrs. De Tanque said she was so sorry your husband came home drunk every night." Mrs. So Kly—"Sorry! She's jealous. Her husband hasn't enough money or friends to require more than half a load."

Electric Light Bills should be added to the current expense list.

Many prosperous but unscrupulous business men fail to succeed.

Jiggs—"So long as I'm a bachelor I'll be free from care." Biggs—"Consider marriage a failure, eh?" Jiggs—"Well, I know that troubles never come singly."

Jingle bell! jingle bell, Jingle all the day!
O! what fun it is to ride
In a one-horse open sleigh—
That is, if you can just forget
The bill you'll have to pay.

LOWEST PRICES.

Its to quickly lower the Suit and Overcoat stock---that's the whole story. Its our one good reason for making prices so astonishingly low. Buyers like prices that way---just the styles they want---but they never expect such little prices or such big values. Every sale made is a spring trade-bringer, that our share.

A man in Binghamton, N. Y., out of the kindness of his heart, said recently that he would be a father to the children of a destitute widow...

How do You Walk.

Obstinaey is indicated by the slow, heavy and flat-footed style of walking, while miserliness may be suspected from short, nervous and anxious footsteps.

Turned in toes generally characterize the absent-minded, and a stoop the studious and deeply reflective, whose thoughts are anywhere rather than with themselves.

Slouching people walk with a noiseless, even and stealthy tread, resembling that of a cat. A proud person generally takes even steps, holds the figure upright and the head a little back, and turns the toes well out.

A gay and volatile person trims lightly and easily, in sympathy with his or her nature. Character is shown by all sorts of oddities in gait, but for grace and elegance no civilian's walk will bear comparison with that of the man who has received military training.

No two people walk exactly alike, and the student of character finds as much to interest him in the way people walk as in any peculiarity they may have of feature. Quick steps denote agitation; slow steps, either long or short, suggest a gentle or contemplative turn of mind.

A Whale in the Chesapeake.

A whale in the Chesapeake in the winter season is an innovation. Captain Thomas Woolford stated yesterday, says the Baltimore Sun of January 31, that on Friday, when he was off Black river in the tug Maud H., his attention was directed to an object in the water which he knew was not an upturned vessel. He steamed toward it and discovered that it was a whale, 40 feet of whose back was above the water. When the tug approached, the monster made a dive, came up in close proximity to the Maud H., and spurted water into the air that went higher than the tug's smokestack. Captain Woolford thought it would be discreet to move away, and as he did so with all steam, the whale departing in an opposite direction in a leisurely way.

Thirty Geese in Thirty Days.

Charles Wurz of South Bend, Ind., undertook three weeks ago to eat a goose a day until he put away thirty geese. He has already disposed of twenty three geese. If he eats the remaining seven in seven days he will win $200. If he fails he will lose a like amount to Charles Rose.

By the terms of the wager Wurz is allowed twenty four hours for each bird. The geese, after being picked and cleaned, must weigh not less than six nor more than eleven pounds. The eating must be done in the presence of appointed witnesses, fellow members of an Elks lodge. Rose furnishes the geese.

The breast is boiled, the wings and the legs are fried, and the back is roasted brown. All, including the gizzard, must be eaten.

Some Forgotten Facts.

How many people know that North Carolina has yet two royal gifts? One of these is the clock in the tower of the court house at Hillsboro which yet tells the hours and the other the charter of Wake county. Both gifts were from His Most Gracious Majesty, King George III.

Another fact not generally known even in this county is that its first county seat was Bloomsburg, named in honor to My Lady Tryon's town house in London. Of course, though everybody is acquainted with the fact the county was named for Miss Esther Wake, Gov. Tryon's beautiful sister-in-law.—Raleigh News and Observer.

If You want to be Loved.

- Don't find fault. Don't believe all the evil you hear. Don't jeer at everybody's religious beliefs. Don't be rude to your inferiors in social position. Don't repeat gossip, even if it does interest a crowd. Don't underrate any thing because you don't possess it. Don't go untidy on the plea that everybody knows you. Don't contradict people, even if you are sure you are right.—Christian Uplook.

Beecher's Idea of Heaven.

"I could hardly wish to enter heaven did I believe its inhabitants were idly to sit by purling stream, fanned by balmy air.

"Heaven, to be a place of happiness, must be a place of activity. Has the far reaching mind of Newton ceased its profound investigations? Has David hung up his harp as the dusty arms in Westminster Abbey? Has Paul, glowing with God-like enthusiasm ceased itinerating the universe of God? Are Peter and Cyprian and Edwards and Payson and Everts idling away an eternity in mere psalm singing? Heaven is a place of restless activity, the abode of never-tiring thought. David and Isaiah will sweep nobler and loftier strains in eternity and the minds of saints, unclogged by cumbersome clay, will forever feast on the banquet of rich and glorious thought. My young friends, go on; you will never get through. An eternity of untiring action is before you, and the universe of thought is your field."

Why the People of Corea Cannot Get Married

Corea's Emperor, now that he has buried his last consort, is looking about for a new wife. The Corean people do not care whom he selects, but wish him to marry soon so that they may have lawful marriages again, all marrying and giving in marriage throughout the country having come to an end according to custom the moment the late Queen was murdered, more than two years ago. This custom, now brought to public notice, should inspire some comic librettist with a plot as "The Mikado."—Philadelphia Record.

More Strange Insects.

An army of insects, perfectly black, and as small as chigoes has appeared in this section, and no one knows whence they came, or what their mission may be. They appear in low, marshy places, and are indifferent to water and mire. Millions of them are to be seen in any low place, especially in the blackjacks. Mr. J. W. Betts had an envelope full on exhibition a few days ago, and all who saw them said that the insect is a stranger in this section. Although so small, they look somewhat like fleas. So far they do not appear to have done any harm, and seem to have no special mission.—Rock Hill Herald.

Common Mistakes.

It is a mistake to work when you are not in a fit condition to do so; to take of heavy underclothing because you have become overheated; to think that the more a person eats the healthier he will become; to believe that children can do as much work as grown up people, and the more they study the more they learn; to go to bed late at night and rise at daybreak and imagine that every hour taken from sleep is an hour gained; to imagine that if a little work or exercise is good, violent or prolonged exercise is better; to conclude that the smallest room in the house is large enough to sleep in; to sleep exposed to a direct draught at any season; to imagine that whatever remedy causes one to feel immediately better, as alcoholic stimulants for example, is good for the system without regard to the after effects; to eat as if you had only a minute in which to finish the meal or to eat without an appetite, or to continue after it has been satisfied to gratify the taste; to give unnecessary time to a certain established routine of house-keeping when it could be much more profitably spent in rest or recreation.—London Family Doctor.

Got Rid of the Loafers.

"There's nothing so good as congenial company, and few things worse than uncongenial associates," remarked Captain R. J. Smith to a Paducah (Ky.) Sun reporter. "I remember once when I was young a lot of fellows used to hang around my place that were not the most desirable companions imaginable. One day a friend said, 'Do you want to get rid of those fellows?' I said that I did, if I could do it without offending them. He suggested a plan, and the result was I provided myself with an English history, a Bible and several other books I don't guess those fellows ever heard of before. The next time they came in I began reading aloud to them from the books. It wasn't long before they began to look at one another, and finally one said as they all got up, 'Well, Jim, we'll drop in again after awhile.' Whenever they dropped in I always pulled my books, and soon they were afraid to come at all."

Not Necessary.

"I suppose," said the village deacon to the minister, "that your constant prayer is that you may ever be poor and humble?" "Not exactly," replied the minister. "I pray that I may remain humble, but my congregation attends to the other part of it."

FREE TO MILLIONS. A Valuable Little Book Sent Free for the Asking.

Medical books are not always interesting reading, especially to people enjoying good health, but as a matter of fact scarcely one person in ten is perfectly healthy, and even with such, sooner or later sickness must come. It is also a well established truth that nine-tenths of all diseases originate with a breaking down of the digestion, a weak stomach weakens and impoverishes the system, making it easy for disease to gain a foothold. Nobody need fear consumption, kidney disease, liver trouble or a weak heart and nervous system as long as the digestion is good and the stomach able to assimilate plenty of wholesome food.

Stomach weakness shows itself in a score of ways and this little book describes the symptoms and causes and points the way to a cure so simple that anyone can understand and apply. Thousands have some form of stomach trouble and do not know it. They ascribe the headaches, the languor, nervousness, insomnia, palpitation, constipation and similar symptoms to some other cause than the true one. Get your digestion on the right track and the heart trouble, lung trouble, liver disease or nervous debility will rapidly disappear.

This little book treats entirely on the cause and removal of indigestion and its accompanying annoyances.

It describes the symptoms of Acid Dyspepsia, Nervous Dyspepsia, Slow Dyspepsia, Amylaceous Dyspepsia, Catarrh of Stomach and all affections of the digestive organs in plain language easily understood and the cause removed.

It gives valuable suggestions as to diet, and contains a table giving length of time required to digest various articles of food something every person with weak digestion should know.

No price is asked but simply send your name and address plainly written on postal card to the F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., requesting a little book on Stomach Diseases and it will be sent promptly by return mail.

will guarantee a gain of five pounds a month, and if you can sleep a great deal of double that amount.

To Have a White Skin.—Eat no meat at all. Become a vegetarian; they always have beautiful skins.
Once in six weeks or so eat a meal of fresh meat. This does away with the tendency to scurvy—that curse of the vegetarian. Drink as much water as you can, eat little grease and touch no tea or coffee. Your breakfast may be oatmeal and oranges; your dinner fruit, nuts, fruit tea—preferably quince tea—graham muffins, cauliflower croquettes, marmalade and dishes of stewed vegetables. The diet is not so bad when you get used to it. In large towns you will find one or two restaurants catering to such as you.

To Become Very Muscular.—Walk a great deal, carrying something always in the hands. This develops the arms. To roll a hoop might be good if one were brave enough to do so in public. Practice lifting a little every day. Never strain or tire yourself. Eat meat, drink milk and practice bending backward, forward and sideways every day. At night rub about a tablespoonful of brandy or rum into your skin on the under and tender part of the arms.

To Have Plump Hands.—Rub them with sweet oil night and morning. Exercise them by rubbing together. Never wear tight sleeves or snug gloves.

To Keep One's Feet Small.—This is difficult. The first sign that one has passed youth is the tendency to wear a larger pair of shoes—and this is necessary. The feet spread and really grow. To remedy this wear shoes as long as can be managed, but not as wide as seem necessary. Never wear old slippers around the house, unless they are snug in the width, and be careful of corns. These are never necessary while the chiropodist exists.

To Have a Fine Color.—Wash the face with the juice of preserved strawberries in the winter and in summer rub a ripe berry on the face.

For a Smooth, White Skin, Without Dieting.—Bathe the face daily with buttermilk. A preparation of tincture of benzoin and rosewater is excellent for whitening purposes.
There are very good prepared creams, but these are never cheap.
Do not go under $1 for them if you want them compounded of fine and pure materials.

To Have One's Garments Sweet Scented.—Make sachet bags and slip them in the linings of dresses. They will, if good at first, keep their scent for a year or more. Fold the bodices of the scented gowns and lay them away in airtight boxes. This fills them with scent. — Philadelphia Times.

What She Cost.

On the occasion of his golden wedding a methodical English husband figured up from his carefully kept accounts what his wife had cost him. He had an assured income of $2,500 a year throughout his life.
Winning his wife, what with presents, engagement ring and extra expenditure on his own personal adornment, cost him $500. Her share of the household expenses was $625 a year. Her clothing and linen cost $250 yearly. Presents, medical attendance, amusements and summer excursions amounted for her share to $450 annually. He therefore spent for her in 50 years $66,750.

AMERICA IN 1800.

The Population Centered In a Very Few Cities Near the Coast.

In St. Nicholas there is a article on the Greater New York entitled "Reasoning Out a Metropolis," by Ernest Ingersoll. Writing of the distribution of the population at the beginning of the century, Mr. Ingersoll says:

Montreal and Quebec were then large towns, but making no progress. Nothing had come of the expected cities along the coast of Maine. Old Salem had been outstripped by Boston, which already numbered 30,000 citizens; Newport, New London and New Haven were disappointingly small and sleepy; New York, which had borne the brunt of the Revolutionary war, included only some 60,000 inhabitants; while Philadelphia, unharmed by the war, was flourishing and led the list with a population numbering over 81,000. Farther south, Baltimore, with about 27,000 people; Charleston, with 20,000, and New Orleans (then in French territory), with 10,000, were the only coast towns worth mentioning. Civilization had scarcely found its way across the Alleghanies, Chicago did not exist, and Oswego, Buffalo, Detroit, Pittsburg and Cincinnati were mere frontier villages or Indian trading posts. New England and eastern Pennsylvania and Maryland were dotted with villages, but the largest inland towns were those of northern New Jersey and the valley of the Hudson, where Newburg, Kingston and Albany took the lead of all.

Let us see what happened during the next 30 years.

As soon as peace and a firm, united government were gained by the war for independence we Americans began to think about finding out and making use of the wealth of our new country first by setting as many persons as possible to clearing away the forests and planting fields, and great numbers from the older states and from Europe moved west and received from the government tracts of land for which the only pay asked was a promise to stay and cultivate them.

But it was plain that there was no use in farming, no matter how cheap and fertile the soil, or in cutting timber or digging minerals, no matter how accessible and abundant, unless the pioneers had some way to send the grain they grew or the timber or minerals to market.
Roads were therefore of the first importance. Nobody but a hunter or an explorer could travel into the heavily wooded interior, except along some navigable river, and at first only the valleys of these rivers were cultivated. Next a few roads were laid out, connecting the coast and riverside towns, but none penetrated inland very far, and these were mostly mere tracks for pack horses. All frontier goods were carried by horses until almost the beginning of this century, as they are yet in remote parts of the far west.
This method is exceedingly expensive. It cost, for instance, $249 a ton, or about 12½ cents a pound, to carry merchandise by pack horses from Philadelphia to Erie in 1784, and when, in 1789, the first wagon road was opened over the Pennsylvania mountains the cost of freightage was $3 a ton for that part alone —about 140 miles. It was not until 1804 that the first through line of stages was established from Philadelphia to Pittsburg, making the trip in seven days.

These things show how gradual, but how sure, was the advance of civilization westward.

The Curly Haired Juror.

It is not generally known that there is a well defined prejudice against curly haired men when it comes to choosing a jury to try criminal cases. The prejudice, when it is manifested, comes from the defense. When asked to explain the objection to curly haired men, a prominent practitioner said: "When I was just starting, my legal mentor inculcated that idea in me. He said that curly haired men had almost invariably been the pampered darlings of their parents, and in their youth had been so used to having their own way that they had come to believe that everybody on earth was wrong except themselves. In this way the seeds of opposition were sown, and when they grow older they make it a point to disagree with everybody and everything. If everybody else on the jury votes for acquittal, they vote for conviction as a matter of course.
They live on combat and are as stubborn as the days are long. A curly haired man never goes on the jury without understanding a man if I can get him in time."—New Orleans

FINE ADDRESS.

Delivered by Mr. Hilliard—Other Interesting Features.

There was a very large attendance upon the meeting of the Baptist Young People's Union Thursday night, the church being nearly filled in spite of the cold weather.

The address of Mr. E. E. Hilliard, to Scotland Neck, on the life of John Bunyan was an admirable one and delighted his hearers. He spoke interestingly of the important periods in Bunyan's life—his childhood, youth, young manhood, twelve years in Bedford jail and sixteen years preaching the Gospel—making forcible and often beautiful applications as he went along—He gave his hearers a deeper insight into the true character and greatness of the man chosen for his subject.

Miss Hennie Sheppard and Rosa Hooker each gave a charming recitation, and M. S. T. E. Hooker sang a beautiful solo accompanied by Prof. A. A. Forbes with violin obligato and Miss Lula White with organ.
