Are You Always Tired?

WINDSON, N. C., May 2, '97.

Five years ago I was completely run down from general debility. My liver didn't act, I had indigestion, I was just as nervous as I could be, and was always tired. The least exertion would bring on shortness of breath and it was a drag to me to keep up. A friend of mine who had been cured by using Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy told me to take it. I bought a dozen bottles and took it just because I knew I would have to try something. I suffered greatly from wakefulness would lay awake often the greater part of the night, unable to rest or sleep. When I was on the second bottle I got so I could sleep, and when I had finished the six bottles I WAS WELL. Indigestion cured, that shortness of breath cured, and I feel like another person. Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy is a wonderful medicine. It did me more good than anything I ever took in my life.

TODAY'S WAR NEWS.

Washington, July 20.—Reports have reached here from Madrid that the Spanish cabinet held an all night session last night and reached a decision to negotiate for peace.

The list of Spanish prisoners handed by Gen. Toral to Gen. Shafter foots up to the number of 22,750.

Gen. Miles, 10,000 troops and four light batteries left Guantanamo yesterday for Porto Rico. Admiral Sampson accompanied him with a strong convoy of ships and will bombard San Juan by the end of the week. He will then cover the landing of the troops. Gen. Brooks and Cottinger will be seconds in command of Gen. Miles. The assault, if one is necessary, by land forces will not take place in less than ten days.

The Americans and Cubans near Santiago are at outs. The Cubans wanted to go in and loot the city. There is a probability of an early collision between them. Our officers show openly their contempt at the conduct of the Cubans. They will neither work nor fight.

The captured Mauser rifles will be used by our army. Some twenty thousand old guns mounted on forts, etc., will be sent to the United States as souvenirs.

An explosion occurred Tuesday on the Spanish battleship, Pelayo, off the coast of Tunis, and is said to have done considerable damage. The battleship had to be taken in tow by a Spanish cruiser.

Gen. Shafter and Admiral Sampson disagree as to whom the prizes found in the harbor at Santiago belong. Both claim them.

Another Prize at Key West

Key West, July 18.—The British schooner Three Bells, with a prize crew on board, arrived here to-day. The Three Bells and the sloop Pilgrim were captured by the auxiliary cruiser Dixie after a number of shots had been fired in the chase.

Starving New York Recruits

Hempstead, L. I., July 18.—The 300 Seventy-first Regiment recruits in Camp Black refused duty today, alleging that Captain Stoddard was starving them. The captain at once left camp, and had not returned up to a late hour. Lieutenant Kopter confesses that he entered into Stoddard's suggestion to call for short rations and divide the profits, but that the captain kept it all. There is now no morsel of food in the commissary department.

American Coin at Santiago

New York, July 18.—The Resolute sails tomorrow for Santiago with $70,000 in $1 bills and $680,000 in gold and small silver coins with which to pay the past two months' wages to the army. The shipment weighs 3½ tons. The men will be instructed to accept nothing but American money in change from Cuban storkeepers, who will of necessity have to stop dealing in Spanish money and help introduce American currency and coin in Eastern Cuba.

County Convicts Can be used in Towns and Cities.

Messrs. Watson & Buxton, counsel for the town of Salem, say that the working of county convicts upon the public highways of a town and city is legal and any agreement to this effect between the county commissioners and a municipality is in full compliance with their interpretation of the law.—Winston Republican.

Government of Santiago

Washington, July 18.—The President today sent to Gen. Shafter for publication in English and Spanish instructions for his guidance in governing Santiago.

He is ordered to proclaim to the people that the United States government does not come to make war upon the inhabitants in Cuba, nor any party or faction among them, but to protect them in their home, employments and religious rights.

Our occupation should be as free of severity as possible. Though Shafter's powers are absolute, municipal laws, such as affect the private rights of person and property, are to continue in force.

Judges and other officials connected with the administration of justice may, if they affect the supremacy of the United States, continue to administer the ordinary laws, under the supervision of the American commander in chief.

The local police will be maintained and the freedom of the people will not be abridged, unless required to maintain law and order.

If the conduct of the people is unruly there will be no hesitation in resorting to measures that will speedily restore order.

If necessary native officials will be expelled and new ones put in their places. The taxes paid to the former government will be collected by the military occupant, who will seize and hold all public buildings, cable lines, railroads, etc.

Private property for use of the army is to be paid for. All ports and places in Cuba in our hands will be opened to the commerce of neutral countries.

Scene of the Surrender.

Santiago de Cuba, July 17.—Amid impressive ceremonies the Spanish troops laid down their arms between the lines of the Spanish and American forces at 9 o'clock this morning.

Gen. Shafter and the American division and brigade commanders and their staffs were escorted by a troop of cavalry and Gen. Toral and his staff by 100 picked men.

Trumpeters on both sides saluted with flourishes.

Gen. Shafter returned to Gen. Toral the latter's sword after it had been handed to the American commander.

Our troops, lined up at the trenches, were eye witnesses of the ceremony. Gen. Shafter and his escort, accompanied by Gen. Toral, rode through the city, taking formal possession.

The city had been sacked before they arrived by the Spaniards.

At the palace elaborate ceremonies took place. Exactly at noon the American flag was raised over the Governor's palace and was saluted by twenty-one guns by Capt. Capron's battery. At the same time all the regimental bands in our line played "The Star Spangled banner," after which President McKinley's congratulatory telegram was read to regiment.

The Thirteenth and Ninth Regiments of Infantry will remain in the city to enforce order and exercise municipal authority. The Spanish forces are to encamp outside of our lines.

Gen. McKibbin has been appointed temporary Military Governor.

The ceremony of hoisting the Stars and Stripes was worth all the blood and treasures it cost. A vast concourse of 10,000 people witnessed the stirring and thrilling scene that will live forever in the minds of all the Americans present.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 20, 1898.

A man remarked to THE REFLECTOR the other day, that he had been with the Populists for eight years but had now become sick of their doings and was ready to back to go the Democratic party, the only party that has ever given good government.

During the ceremonies attending the surrender of Santiago, on Sunday morning, there was a difficulty between General Shafter and Mr. Scovel is a correspondent of the New York World, in which Scovel is charged with striking Shafter a blow.

Elsewhere in this paper is published a notice from Chairman W. B. Rodman, of the district executive committee, calling a meeting of the committee, at Washington the 26th inst.

A pastor of a church in Whiting Iowa, promised to marry twenty-seven women of his flock. When the announcement of his prospective marriage with one of them was made the others raised a racket and wanted the pastor "churched" for duplicity in love affairs.

Two rival newspapers at Warrensburg, Mo., having found the town too small to support both, have entered into a novel agreement for a division of the spoils.

Lieutenant Hobson has been offered by an enterprising agent $10,000 for a lecture tour through the United States to recount his experiences at Santiago.

A soldier correspondent with the army of invasion in Cuba relates this incident as illustrative of the discipline practiced by Cuban officers: "Yesterday a Cuban insurgent killed a horse, presumably for food. For punishment, Garcia ordered him placed in an old barn, his feet put in stocks and the carcass of the dead animal placed beside him. He can eat from the bones of this dead horse or starve during his six days confinement. I would not have believed such a tale as this if I had not seen the thing with my own eyes."

Bad Effects of the Check Tax.

The Atlanta Journal is laboring under the delusion that the requirement of putting a stamp on checks was "intended to make the wealth of the country contribute to the expenses of the war." Congress deliberately voted down almost every proposition looking to that end.

The Journal is right in saying that the check tax will fall heaviest on men conducting small business operations, and will result in a considerable withdrawal of money from banks. Men who have many small accounts to pay will keep their money in their sales instead of depositing in banks.

THE GREAT PACIFIC.

The Future of That Ocean Is the Future of the World.

The relations of the great powers are changing, and the Pacific is becoming the center of their striving. The powers that adjoin this ocean are destined to be the actors in the next drama of the world and the Pacific the stage thereof. England is the greatest of these powers. This she owes to Canada and to her possessions in the east. Russia is destined to a future greater than England's present.

Our country cannot shut its eyes to this condition. The people of America, with a rapidly increasing population producing more than they can consume, with an aggressive character that brooks no opposition, with a coast line greater than that of any power of Europe, dotted with flourishing cities, constitute a factor in the future of the orient that no apathy, no neglect, can belittle.

The markets of the orient are the heritage of her merchants and the time will inevitably come when the voice of the republic will be heard in oriental courts with the same accent of authority as in the commonwealths of South America.

BEATRICE CENCI.

The Beautiful Italian Who Was a Murderess or a Martyr.

One of the most interesting events of Roman mediæval times was the trial and execution of Beatrice Cenci for the part she played in the murder of her father, Francesco Cenci, which took place in his palace on the night of Sept. 10, 1598, the day before his fiftieth birthday.

To every one the birth, ancestry and fate of Beatrice Cenci have had a weird charm. By many this beautiful and unfortunate Italian girl is regarded as a deliberate murderess, while others regard her as a martyr. This sentiment is aroused by the romantic story of the girl's life and death, as told by Shelley in his great tragedy. Few persons in history have had a greater glamour of romance cast over their lives than she.

By her own confession it is known that Beatrice Cenci was accessory to the murder of her father. It is further known that she and her brothers were the instigators of it, but it was Beatrice especially who arranged the murder with her lover, Olimpio Calvitti, and her stepmother, Lucretia. The whole life of Beatrice in the palace, Rocca di Petrela, had been one of extreme unhappiness and cruel treatment.

Resentment rose to revenge in the heart of Beatrice Cenci, inspiring her to commit the heinous crime, and she determined, with the aid of her stepmother, Lucretia, and her lover, Calvitti, to carry out her terrible purpose. She it was who gave Calvitti and his accomplice the weapons with which to strike the sleeping man, afterward going to a near window to watch the scene, as she said she would. The assassin then threw the body of Cenci from the window to the terrace below to make it appear that he had fallen accidentally.

All Rome was excited over the event and the subsequent arrest of those accused of the crime. After a patient examination the pope finally decided upon the extreme penalty of the law on Beatrice, Lucretia and Giacomo, the eldest brother, who was to be driven through the city in a cart and then flayed until he died. The sentence of Beatrice and Lucretia was supposed to be a less violent death, as they were women. It was decreed that they should be driven to the Ponte Sant Angelo and there be beheaded. The execution took place in the afternoon, and four hours later the bodies of Beatrice and Lucretia were conveyed to the Church of San Pietro and there interred in obedience to the dying wish of the former.—Detroit Free Press.

A purple moment of bright blue bliss
Was mine, oh, green haired maid,
When from your lips a yellow kiss
I sipped in the dark red shade.

The eery moon hung on a tree,
We sat by a vertical brook.
You wore a-laughing in olive pink glee
And reading the edge of a book.

And I was singing a lavender song,
Speckled and mingled with blue,
But I stopped for a moment, perhaps not too long,
And kissed you, I took perhaps two.

By the red hills topped with golden snow,
By the trees tearing holes in the sky,
I swore the red world I would overthrow
For your love, or lie down and die.

But away from my vowing I was rudely snatched
And thrust far, far from you.
The color I wore with the landscape matched,
And that would, alas! never do.

And now among the blue lilies afloat
On a sea of brown and red
I sit on the edge of an olive green boat
And hold my pea green head.

GEMS MADE LOVELIER.

How Jewelers Cleverly Paint and Join Broken Jewels.

It seems truly like painting the lily and gilding refined gold to attempt to embellish and increase the delicacy and beauty of the precious stones—diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires—which have taken nature centuries of labor to perfect in their pristine charm. So fastidious, however, has man become that he is no longer satisfied with the delicate shades and hues in the gems of nature's own making, and he must improve upon them and adapt them to prevailing tastes and fashions.

A process frequently used to improve the appearance of precious stones that are faulty, dull or of an ordinary hue is that of burning. Blemishes are removed by this process, or the color and brilliance of the stone are enhanced. Very often the color of the gem is entirely changed.

Even the delicate turquoise must occasionally resign itself to artificial embellishment. Many sensitive turquoises become bleached and faded from exposure to the sunlight. Ammonia and fatty substances are applied to restore the original blue color, but such treatment does not accomplish lasting results. By another process the faded turquoise is impregnated with prussian blue. The pigment does not penetrate very deeply, however, and may easily be scraped off with a knife. Such artificial coloring is easily discernible by lamplight, which transforms the delicate shade into an unsightly gray.

Artificial methods are adopted also to render gems colorless. The yellow tinge of Cape diamonds obscures their luster and cheapens their value. It is therefore found profitable to deprive them of the objectionable tint, and the method is very simple. The yellow diamond is placed in a violet colored chemical liquid and after being dried is found covered with a very thin scale of the violet substance.

Highly ingenious and deceptive is the art of joining precious stones. Upper and under layers are frequently fastened with mastic in this fashion, and so cleverly as to deceive even the experienced eye. Joined stones are quite common, for the significant reason that a large brilliant diamond or other gem is far more costly than two smaller ones.

The art of "doubling" is carried to the extent of making false doublets, which are naturally manufactured at slight cost when inferior stones or imitation ones are used. Some doublets are composed of an upper portion of colorless glass or mountain crystal and an under portion of colored glass. The latter imparts its hue to the former. The effect is also obtained by placing a layer of coloring matter between two colorless portions, or using a bit of leaf metal or tinted gelatin. There are also hollow doublets, pieces of crystal or glass in which are sealed drops of colored liquid.

Many sharp practices are in vogue among jewelers in the mounting of stones. Where the setting is not an open one and the gem rests in a solid bit of metal, opportunity is given for many shrewd devices to enhance the appearance of the jewel, conceal its flaws and increase its brilliance. A pigment composed of burned ivory and mastic is commonly applied to the surface of the metal setting where it is found necessary to conceal the presence of dark and unsightly spots in precious stones. The black pigment is placed beneath those portions of the stone that are free from the dark flaws.

Even more frequently thin bits of gold, silver, copper, or zinc foil, retaining their original color, are laid beneath the gems, rendering them more brilliant and improving their color. —New York Commercial.

Coons Scare Fish Away

There is a great scarcity of fish at Morehead City—as to shipping, and it is seldom that dealers in this city have any choice fish for sale of late. This condition has existed for several weeks and the fishermen down there say that it is due to the negro soldiers at Fort Maccus. There are 1,100 mobilized there, and ever since their arrival they have spent much time in the surf in large numbers, and the schools of fish, mistaking their black forms leaping about in the water for those of porpoise, have betaken themselves to the high seas for safety.—Goldsboro Argus.

A Grand Sermon.

While it was very hot and inconvenient to do anything that can be put off, yet those good people of Greenville and vicinity who failed to attend the services conducted by Rev. N. M. Watson in the Methodist church, Sunday night, missed a gem of rarest ray, "Lord, Thou hast been my dwelling place," was the subject of this distinguished divine, and in a most masterly manner did he present it to the few who were present. The reference to Capt. Phillips, of the warship Texas, who when the smoke of battle had cleared away, when all was excitement and joy on the side of the Americans, and defeat and death of the Spaniards surrounded the victorious fleet of the stars and stripes, that man of God, feeling the glory of the Father in the great conflict, called his men to the deck of his gallant ship and with uncovered heads bowed and gave thanks to the Deity who rides on the storm and reigns amid the scenes of battle, was most opportune and so earnestly uttered by the speaker. There seemed to be an inspiration that was sweetly beautiful. Indeed it was one of the most impressive and learned discourses that Mr. Watson has ever delivered, and that is saying a great deal.

Greenville will miss this distinguished divine when he is gone, and go he must some day by the rules of the Methodist church.

"Oh, for a closer walk with God,
A calm and heavenly frame,
A light to shine upon the road
That leads me to the Lamb,
What peaceful hours I once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still,
But they have left an aching void
The world can never fill."

Nell—"I don't mind what she says about me, but she has been telling around that my people are low and vulgar." Belle—"I didn't know she knew your people dear."

Mrs. Newlywed—"Where did you meet that young lady who nodded to you?" Mr. Newlywed—"I picked her up on the street." "Why, George, I am shocked!" "So was she. She had fallen from her wheel."

Notice the Cards.

Manager Atkins has had cards printed to be placed on the front of phones, calling attention to the fact that no phones can be used by non-subscribers for messages on country lines except No. 80 at THE REFLECTOR office, No. 54 at King's Weekly office and at Central office. This is necessary because under the new revenue law messages must now be reported and accounted for so the tax thereon can be paid. All subscribers should assist in compliance with this by not allowing their phones to be used by non-subscribers in calling country lines.

Have you been to Lang's? His stock is being closed out and there are bargains for all.

Firemen Here.

The Salamander Fire Company, colored, of Washington, came to Greenville today on an excursion. They were met at the wharf by a delegation of the Rough and Ready Fire Company and headed by the Elmo band marched through town and up to Cherry's hall. The Salamanders are uniformed with red shirts and helmets, and are an orderly body of men, well drilled and look capable of doing good service. Capt. Sylvester Dibble was along with the firemen. He is a veteran in the company and has done many heroic deeds at fires in his town.

We hope for the Salamanders a pleasant visit as the guests of the Rough and Ready boys.
