Tetter on the Hands.

For several years I was a sufferer from Tetter on my hands. It would come in little watery pimples, and the itching was almost more than I could stand. The skin was tender and the itching would swell so I could hardly bend my fingers. Sometimes my hands would become perfectly raw from the scratching or breaking of the pimples. When I was in this condition I tried one-half dozen bottles of Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy and some Wash in 1884, and by the time I took it my hands were cured, and I am now well of the trouble. It has since broken out a little at times, but not enough to inconvenience me or make me try more medicine. I am now well.

Warehousemen, Drummers, Pinhookers And Leaf Dealers

Warehousemen who buy and sell tobacco on commission are liable to special tax at each place where they carry on business. The basis of computation of such tax includes the quantity sold for farmers or other persons on commissions and the quantity sold on the warehouseman's own account.

Persons who go from farm to farm and purchase leaf tobacco and then place it in sales warehouses will be liable to special tax as dealers in leaf tobacco at the several places where the tobacco is stored and sold.

Pinhookers who buy from the farmers while the tobacco is upon the warehouse floor are liable to tax as dealers in leaf tobacco when it is resold, even though they may sell the same in the name of the farmer.

All drafts issued by warehousemen, or orders for payment of money issued by them for tobacco sold by them, are subject to stamp tax.

All dealers in leaf tobacco are required to register with the collector, and will be liable to additional special tax as such dealers at each place where they carry on the business, and they will be required to register for each place.—Winston Tobacco Journal.

Still Catching Them.

A. H. Critcher and Gus Forbes went out again Thursday evening and brought in another fox. They sent an invitation to the editor to join them in a hunt Saturday, but it has got to be a cooler day than this when this scribe goes out to run a fox.

A Greenville Pastor.

Rev. A. W. Setzer, pastor of the Baptist church in Greenville, preached in the Baptist church here last Sunday morning and night. His sermons were strong and forceful and he made glad all who heard him. Mr. Setzer is quite a young man to occupy so important a pastorate, but his sermons here indicate that he is equal to the work. Rather tall, with long arms and piercing eyes, most pleasing enunciation, a strong, clear voice, of easy and graceful gesture, Mr. Setzer easily claims the attention of his audience from the very first, and so finds it easy to speak with proper preparation, which his sermons Sunday showed he had made.

There was nothing stiff on the cut-and-dried-order, but an easy flow of language conveying clear thought in a way that showed the speaker was filled with the subject. We have no space for an analysis of the sermons. In the morning he preached from the circumstance of the burning bush which Moses saw, giving the gospel in the burning bush and the mission of the burning bush. At night he preached from the words, "Where is He?" The question referred to Christ, and the speaker beautifully pointed out where Christ has been found in the past, is found now and may be found in the future. He touchingly showed that one of the sweetest realizations of a touch with Christ is in the field of service. The audiences were delighted with the service and Scotland Neck people will be glad to see and hear Mr. Setzer again.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

Strictly Business

The publisher of a newspaper has one thing to sell and one thing to rent. He has his newspaper to sell and a part of his columns to rent. Can any one tell why he should be expected to give away either one or the other? He can do so if he chooses, and as a matter of fact he does furnish a good deal of his newspaper space rent free. But it does not follow that he should be expected to do so. It should be recognized as a contribution, exactly as the giving away of goods by merchants would be, but strange to say it is not looked upon in that light at all. Yet everyone knows that the existence of a newspaper depends upon the rent of a portion of its space and the sale of the paper, the same as a merchant's success depends upon the sale of his goods instead of giving them away.—Chenoa Gazette.

Scotland Neck at last has a negro postmaster. Sometime ago a negro barkeeper was appointed postmaster of that town, but such a stir was raised over it that the Senate declined to confirm him. It was then hoped that the administration would have some consideration for the wishes of the people of that community and would appoint a white man to the position. Vain hope, however. Another negro was appointed and he has taken charge of the office. Such things as this ought to help drive the white people and cause them to overthrow the party that inflicts such outrages upon them. This is a white man's government and it is time white men were asserting themselves.

How little can I do and hold my place? is the question too many employes allow to hamper their services to their employer. It ought to be, How can I make my time fully worth what I get for my services and make myself useful and indispensable otherwise? One can not be too faithful to his employer, and the most faithful employe now will make the most successful employer in the years to come.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

A contemporary remarks that Spain is "shooting the rapids of domestic anarchy." Spain is an expert at this sort of shooting. It was her inefficiency at the other sort that proved her downfall

Worth Considering

Time and time again in talking with men who have achieved distinguished success we have wondered how they did it. Men of small talent often succeed while men of greater talent stay poor because they dare not trust in themselves. It is a question of decision of character, of nerve, of gall—sometimes—but these men "get there" by daring to try. In many of such cases the first step insures success. Then take it! You will find numbered among the successful many a low-browed, quick-action, sedate fellow, while men with three times the amount of brains and of talent are day-dreaming their lives away because they lack the sand to take the initiative and then trust in No. 2 to put up a winning fight. If they would take the first step and resolve to stay by the game until the last call, four out of five of them would win out. We believe in men who dare believe in themselves, and who stick to it.—Agricultural Advertising.

Chiding a contemporary for raising the race issue in this campaign, The Progressive Farmer says: "We call attention to it for the purpose of emphasizing the enormous wickedness that will seek to drive any classes of citizens apart and set them into permanent hostility to one another. The experience of the past in our own country, and the lessons we learn from all history, teach that the arraying of class against class and the stirring up of blind passions between them, often leads to bloody results." Coming from a paper whose meat and drink it is to arouse class prejudice by appeals to the worst passions and prejudices of the populace, from a paper which has revealed in this unworthy business from the day it was founded, and from an editor who has gotten his reward, in the form of a lucrative office, for his successful efforts to divide our people and set them by the ears on class lines, this is a piece of effrontery the like of which is not encountered more than once in a life-time.—Charlotte Observer.

The Cost of the Maine

Spain has already lost her navy. The Pelayo and the Carlos V. are all that remain of her fighting ships. As a naval power Spain now racks with Chili or with Portugal.

Spain has also lost all of her colonies which were of any importance. This is bad enough, but "worse remains behind."

With the loss of her naval power and her colonial empire Spain drops from the ranks of the first class powers of the world. Unable either to help or harm, not worth regarding either as friend or foe, Spain loses her rank in diplomacy. The Ambassadors at her court will be replaced by Ministers, and in the affairs of Europe and the world she will have neither voice nor weight. Historic Spain, the Spain of great traditions and of some possibilities, came to an end in that dark night when the Maine was blown up in Havana.—New York World.

The State Divided Up Under the Provisions of the Bankruptcy Law

Acting upon authority conferred by the national bankruptcy law, passed at the recent session of Congress Judge Purnell has issued the following order dividing the Eastern district into minor districts:

The Second district shall be composed of the following counties:

Hertford, Bertie, Martin, Washington, Turrell, Edgecombe, Halifax, Northampton, Beaufort, Nash and Pitt.

Third district: Craven, Greene, Lenoir, Jones, Pamlico, Carteret, Wayne and Onslow.

Fourth district: New Hanover, Pender, Brunswick, Columbus, Bladen, Robeson, Sampson, Duplin, Cumberland and Richmond.

Fifth district: Wake, Chatham, Johnston, Harnett, Wilson, Durham, Person, Granville, Franklin, Vance, Warren and Moore.

Matters in bankruptcy filed in the several district courts in the Eastern district of North Carolina shall be referred as provided by said act to the referee most convenient for all; the interests of the estate and the creditors, railroad connections, water courses and other matters being duly considered. Clerks and deputy clerks will until referees are appointed immediately inform the judge of the district of any petitions in bankruptcy which may be filed in their several courts. Any petitioner in bankruptcy or creditor who may be dissatisfied with a reference may have the same changed or confirmed by a reference to the judge.

"Goose-cutting."
 Another game, that of "goose-cutting," has been added to the long list in vogue at social gatherings. The hostess provides a well-drawn outline of a goose, which is usually of red cloth, or, if made of paper, is colored red or black. This is merely for the purpose of distinctness. Two pairs of scissors are provided and a number of sheets of plain brown paper. Each gentleman invites a lady to cut a goose with him and in turn these couples are seated back to back in two chairs in the centre of the room. When the model goose has been studied, the pair are blindfolded, and proceed to evolve with their scissors and sheet of paper copies of the fowl. Having finished, each paper is duly signed by its creator and laid aside. Great merriment is always aroused by the process of cutting, as the pair work in full view of the rest of the company. When finished, all the results are laid out on the parlor floor, names down, and two judges, who have not been present at the cutting, pass upon the merits of the geese submitted and prizes reward the workers according to their merits.

Fire Furniture.
 The record of fires in buildings professionally fireproof shows the need of drastic regulations of their furniture. Brick walls, iron beams and stone floors may be little better than nothing without restrictions regarding the inflammability of the property stowed in them. There must be a regular fireproof-building "brand" of desks and chairs. They must be made of metal, or something that won't burn, to please the owner's taste. No common lath for plastering; no wood for casings, doors and windows. All must be made fireproof, or nothing will be fireproof. Private papers are the only things that can be permitted to remain liable to burn.

Queen Victoria's Boudoir.
 The Queen's boudoir in Windsor Castle is shown only to a few favored visitors. Its state has remained unaltered since Her Majesty's widowhood. On the door is inscribed: "Every article in this room my deeply lamented husband selected for me in the twenty-fourth year of my reign." The Queen's bridal wreath, with the first bouquet Prince Albert presented to her, lies withered within a glass case, and on every side are evidences of the thoughtful devotion of the Prince Consort to his wife.

The Cause of Untold Misery.
 The stream of horrible profits which drunkards pour into the enormous reservoir of the drink trade is a stream swollen by untold misery to the innocent, and a stream which everywhere leaves the slime of its overflow over devastated areas of society, declares Canon Farrar. But, apart from drunkenness and all its ruinous incubus upon the well-being of the country, the amount of hopeless waste caused by the drinking habits of our poorer population is the main cause of pauperism and demoralization with which, for so many weary years, the best have struggled in vain. If there were no other and deeper grounds for temperance efforts, they would be amply justified by the immense prosperity which the working classes might achieve for themselves if they would divert into the channels of useful trade the vastness of wealth—amounting, according to some calculations, to £60,000,000 a year—which they spend on an article of consumption which is not good but a needless stimulant, and which even in measures that are deemed moderate is to large multitudes of men a source not of strength, but of weakness; not of health, but of widespread anguish and disease.

Inebriety in the Young.
 It sometimes happens, says Charles Follen Palmer in "Inebriety," that evidences of inebriety exhibit themselves very early in life. If this be the case it shows unmistakably that the youth is organically unbalanced, that his brain centres are disturbed, and that all effeminate treatment will be only adding to the intensity of the disease. There must be no delay, no indulgence, in the hope that he will see the error of his ways, and amend of his own moral violation, and the same association and home discipline can be maintained.
 The environment must be broken immediately, and the patient regarded not as a wilful violator of decency, of religion and the sacred home, to be punished for his wilful sinning, but as one who has suddenly developed symptoms of a dangerous mental malady which requires immediate restorative measures to cure. And as the only known cure of disease of the nervous mental organization, involving the loss of self-control and the power of moral resistance, is by strengthening the self-control by thoroughly building up the general health of mind and body, no immediate steps should be taken to carry out every available plan of doing this, continually bearing in mind that the new training and treatment must begin at the foundation and be very gradual.

SEE THAT?

Not Second-Class.

A Georgia editor makes this bid for public favor: "Get a first-class newspaper while you are about it. Our contemporary over the way keeps this notice at the head of his journal: 'Entered at the post-office as second-class matter.' You don't want that kind of a newspaper, do you?"—Newspaperdom.

It takes as much courage and conviction sometimes to stick to your advertising through the dull seasons as it would take to place an army. But it is the man with the courage to stick to his task who wins out in the end. Ceaseless pounding is what counts. Advertising to-day, to-morrow and the day after is what brings trade. It is money thrown away to advertise a day, a week or two weeks, unless it is followed up.—Shoe and Leather Gazette.

Advertising is the royal herald telling of new and better conveniences, of economies to the very poorest, of wares from every corner of the earth, once rare and dear, now cheapened and put within the reach of all by the wide influence of modern advertising.—Artemas Ward.
