MICA MINES OF INDIA.

The mica mines of India are in the interior of the country and very inaccessible. The Abreker mine, it is stated, produces the finest mica that has ever been mined, both for lamination and color. It has been sunk about 200 feet, following the pitch of the vein, and all this mica and refuse have been raised and carried away by the natives. No machinery of any kind except drill and hammers is used in their mining operations.
 The refuse and the mica are placed in baskets each holding ten pounds, the baskets being passed up from hand to hand by women, who stand in a line on ladders. The contents of the baskets are deposited at the top, and the baskets are returned down the ladder in the same manner as they went up, but by another line of women. Water is taken out of the mines by means of jugs. It is supposed that this method of operation has been carried on for many hundreds of years, except that there is more care to protect the miners.
 After the crude mica is taken from the mines it is first roughly trimmed, and then sorted into different grades, according to sizes and quality. It is then taken to the mica workers, who split it up and scribe out the size for it to be cut into by the shearers, the cut pieces then being cleaned, weighed and packed ready for shipment. The mica is then transported to general warehouses in baskets on the backs of bullocks and in bullock carts. In this way it is carried hundreds of miles to shipping points at a speed of about ten miles a day.
 The mica can be split down to .0008 of an inch in thickness. Being both fireproof and transparent, it is very useful for many purposes in the arts, besides being an excellent insulator.—Electrical World.

COLOR BLIND PAINTERS.

A London Oculist Asserts That There Are Such Artists.
 To speak of a color blind artist sounds like joking, said a noted oculist; but, strange as it seems, there are several persons so affected who can nevertheless paint extremely well. Numbers of color blind people there are, of course, who draw perfectly in pencil, ink and crayons, but I myself know a scene painter attached to a provincial theater who, though "color blind," paints all its scenery, and has quite a local name, not only for his "interiors" and oak chambers, but even for landscapes.
 I can tell you also of two London ladies who consulted me for color blindness who paint really beautiful pictures. One is the daughter of a late famous artist and was taught painting by her father. She is quite unable to distinguish red from green, but her colors are all labeled with the names, and she has been taught which to use for certain effects. Possibly her painting may seem to her eyes, as it were, drawing with a brush and "shading" with the colors.
 The other is a lady artist of some celebrity, who has for years exhibited annually in London. The public is not aware that she is color blind. She painted the "Wedding Group" for a certain noble bridegroom a year or two ago and also several public men's portraits and one of an eminent physician fetched 500 guineas.
 There is a gentleman residing at Kensington who, having years ago left the navy through finding his advancement hopelessly barred by his color blindness, is at present making several hundreds a year by his brush as an artist, designing most artistic and brightly colored picture posters for advertisement hoardings.—London Answers.

How She Won Her.
 As President McKinley entered the station at Omaha the other day the crowd lined up as usual upon two sides of a passage that was roped off and protected by the police. Half way across the platform a woman with a kodak dodged the guard and sprang out before Mr. McKinley. The chief of police, who led the procession, ordered her away, but the president interfered and took off his hat so that she might get a better view of his face. Backing rapidly a few feet in advance, she got several good snap shots and then disappeared.

He Won Her.
 "I leaped," she said reproachfully, "that you were devoted to no fewer than five girls before you finally proposed to me. How do I know that you didn't make desperate love to all of them?"
 "I did," he replied promptly.
 "You did!" she exclaimed.
 "Certainly," he returned. "You don't suppose for a minute I would be foolhardy enough to try for such a prize as you are without practicing a little at first, do you?"—Chicago Post.

Alaska's Sky Pillar.
 The newly discovered peak in Alaska, which is said to be taller than Mount St. Elias, is away over on the American side of the boundary line and is thus indisputably ours. It will be somewhat rough on Elias to lose his long reputed pre-eminence, but as the great landmark of the international boundary line he may yet get some consolation.—New York Tribune.

Dr. and Mrs. Nash Receive

Last night the Rev. Dr. Nash and his excellent wife received their friends at the Parsonage on Gillespie street. It was in honor of the twenty fifth anniversary of their wedding day, or silver wedding, as it is called. The most of the lower floor was thrown open, and great numbers of friends and well-wishers of the able divine and popular wife, of all denominations, crowded the handsomely decorated apartments from 8:30 to 11 o'clock.

Dr. and Mrs. Nash received in the drawing room; all manner of presents in silver were displayed in the parlor; and a delicious repast was served in the dining room.—Fayetteville Observer, 26th

The Day of Advertising.

One of the New York papers announces that it printed in its Sunday's edition two hundred and twelve columns of advertising, the greatest number of columns ever printed in one issue of that paper. This emphasizes the fact that the advertising business is growing all the time. It is growing because it pays. The merchant does not advertise for the love of seeing his name in print, nor does he advertise as an experiment, but he finds that money thus invested brings him back handsome returns. Indeed, the live merchant finds that it is impossible in this day to do business without a liberal use of printer's ink. Advertisements are regarded as part of the news of a paper, and the readers of the daily press look as regularly to the advertising columns as they do to any other columns. They find not only that the store news is interesting, but that it pays them well to peruse it. And so it has come to pass that advertising is not only profitable to the shop-keeper and to the publisher, but to the reader as well. It is no wonder, therefore, that it is constantly on the increase.—Richmond Leader.
