WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

Washington, D.C., April 10, '99

It is daily becoming plainer to close observers that Mr. McKinley and his advisers do not regard next year's campaign as a republican walk-over. They are diligently studying ways and means for corraling electoral votes that they consider doubtful. The trip that Mr. McKinley is now arranging to make this summer to the Pacific Coast is one of the ways that has been decided upon. They do not expect to be able to carry Delaware, Maryland, or Kentucky again, but they hope for Kansas and Nebraska, both of which states are likely to be visited on Mr. McKinley's western trip. They are also beginning to realize that some sort of a bluff against trusts must be made. Representative Landis, of Indiana, has come to Washington especially to urge upon the administration the necessity of doing something to convince the voters of the middle west that the administration is antagonistic to the trusts. Mr. Landis has done some very plain talking about the danger to the republican party and it is evident that he has frightened some of the administration men.

Attorney General Griggs, doubtless acting under orders from Mr. McKinley, has made a play to shift the responsibility for his recent queer letter about trusts from the shoulders of the administration, by proceeding against the Chesapeake and Ohio Association, generally known as the soft coal trust, under the Sherman anti-trust law. The suit was instituted in Cincinnati, and will be directed by the Solicitor General of the United States. The public will watch the prosecution of this case closely, owing to the Attorney General having so recently stated, in writing, that trusts could not be reached by Federal laws.

Evidently Admiral Dewey isn't one of those who believes the end of the Philippine troubles to be in sight. Of course he is too diplomatic to discuss such a question where his opinion would be likely to get out, but when he cabled the Navy Department to send him six months engineering supplies for his fleet, every employe of that department knew that it was just as though he had cabled that it would not, in his opinion be safe to materially reduce the strength of the fleet at Manila for sometime to come.

The latest Philippine news seems to justify the opinion of those who believe that the fighting over there is likely to go on for an indefinite time. Gen. Lawton has started on a campaign with a picked force with the intention of trying to run down the Filipinos.

Democrats are not the only ones who regard the Philippines as an undesirable possession. Representative Steele, of Indiana, a staunch supporter of the administration, who passed through Washington a day or two ago, said of them: "So far as I am concerned, I would like to trade the Philippine islands for a yellow dog, and then kill the dog, if there were nothing else involved but possession of the islands."

In naming one of the new battle ships Georgia, although no petition had been sent from that state while they had been sent from a dozen other states, Mr. McKinley is said to have been acutated solely by a desire to show his appreciation of the courtesy with which he was treated during his recent visit to that state. This is creditable alike to the President and to the people of Georgia. The other names chosen were, for battleships—Pennsylvania and New Jersey; for armored cruisers—West Virginia, Nebraska, and California; for ordinary cruisers—Denver, Des Moines, Chattanooga, Galveston, Tacoma, and Cleveland.

After taking several days to consider the matter, the Military Court of Inquiry wisely decided to admit as evidence the reports submitted to General Miles on the beef issued by 147 officers who were in Cuba or Porto Rico. Just to give an idea of the nature of these reports, the following phrases, each from a different officer's report, are quoted: "A miserable apology for food." "No more unpalatable food could be issued." "It was nauseating." "Prefer going without meat to eating it." "Was soft, watery, insipid and unsatisfactory to the men." "Was stringy, tough and unpalatable." "Tasteless, and the men would not eat it." "Caused a great deal of sickness, and as a ration was a failure." "Was unfit for use and many of the men said it had been doped." "Was not fit to be issued." "Was utterly unfit as an article of diet." "Hungry men left it on the ground." "The sight of it was enough to turn the stomach." "Was not fit for consumption." "Was openly condemned by the men and generally thrown away." "Was just as bad as possible, short of being rotten." "It produced disordered stomachs." There was a whole lot more of the same sort, but this will do for a sample.

Mr. McKinley has accepted an invitation to attend the Confederate encampment to be held June 7th and 8th at Falls Church, Virginia, under the auspices of the Daughters of the Confederacy, and promised to deliver an address.

New York has started a movement for securing the holding in that city of both of the great national conventions in 1900. New York has had but one national convention to sit in it, that of the Democratic party in 1868 which nominated Seymour. Baltimore was the great convention city before the war, as Chicago has become since. —Fayetteville Observr.

Fearful Vengeance

New York, April 8.—Despite reticence on the part of the police, facts became public today which make it appear that the fire which yesterday destroyed thirteen persons was of incendiary origin. It transpired that a few hours before the flames were seen a policeman was sent for from the Andrews house and was mysteriously dismissed by a servant, who said he was not wanted. Letters threatening the lives of the Andrews family and the children of Mrs. St. John were found. It is believed that the motive for incendiaryism was revenge, and that the affair arose out of a quarrel between the servants. Foley, the butler in the Andrews family, is under surveillance, and the police are hard at work investigating the clues, which chiefly rest upon the anonymous letters. Mary Flannagan, the dead maid servant, seems to be a central figure in this alleged plot and the chief object of the supposed perpetrator's hate.

The police today gave out three scurrilous, threatening anonymous letters which had been sent to members of the Andrews household. One was addressed to the servant, Mary Flannagan. The letters made charges against Mary Flannagan and the butler. In a letter addressed to Mrs. St. John, the writer said: "I hope you and Mrs. Andrews don't think for one moment that I am reconciled or pacified with Mary Flannagan, for indeed I am not, and, what is further, I will not be until I get my revenge. I feel that I have given warning enough and I am going to fix her for life, and because you and Mrs. Andrews did not give heed to the warning I am going to fix you too. I'm going to make some one throw something in your nurse's and childrens' face that will disfigure them and eat all the flesh off the bone. This I will do for spite because you did not let Mary go as I told you to do. You had just as well let her go first as last. You will have no girl alive when I get through with her."

A SONG.

Ah, what is better than this, my dear,
What is better than this?
The thought of a night which has lost its way
Between tomorrow and yesterday;
The full of the tide and the gray of the sea,
And a gull that circle endlessly;
The breath from a wind which bloweth well;
A sail that hasteth new ports to tell;
What is better than this, my dear,
I find it not here, I find it not here.
—Blanche Trask in "The Land of Sunshine."

JUST A CURTAIN FIRE.

It Was in a Girls' Boarding School and Did Complicated Damage.

A fire in a skyscraper may be thrilling, but for dramatic episodes and unexpected complications a fire in a girls' boarding school surpasses it. The boarding school fire is usually what is known among insurance men as a curtain fire, but a curtain fire in a girls' school is more exciting and causes more casualties than an ordinary blaze anywhere else.

One evening last week two girls, who occupy a microscopic hall bedroom in a swell up town school, took the globes off the gas fixtures for hair curling purposes and left them off, because it was easier to do that than to put them on again. Then the girls raised the window a trifle in order to cool the room and dutifully sat down to write home letters. The inevitable happened, and when girl number one poised her pen in the air and glanced around the room in search of inspiration she saw the curtains in a blaze. She screamed. Girl number two looked around and echoed the scream. Then, with promptitude and discretion, both girls fainted. The screams had attracted the attention of the other girls, who rushed to the scene and then did various and sundry stunts, according to their several dispositions. One fainted, several wept, a few ran out of the house, and the rest shouted for the one man on the premises.

When he arrived, things looked rather hopeless. Curtains and woodwork were blazing finely. The floor was littered with prostrate forms, and when three girls have fainted on the floor of a hall bedroom there isn't much space in the room for promenade. The man picked his way across the prostrate forms and ordered all the girls who were not in a dead faint to leave the room, but they didn't go until he lost his temper and spoke with a force which isn't common in boarding school circles. Then they fled; but, unluckily, there was an enemy in the rear. A vigorous and practical woman from Texas had been inspired to go after some water. Returning in mad haste with a large pitcherful of water borne triumphantly aloft, she collided with the retreating forces at the door. The pitcher struck the leader of the retreat squarely in the face and knocked out two of her front teeth, whereupon the injured girl made the fainting trio a quartet and the water carrier dropped her pitcher and went into violent hysterics.

Hysteria, as boarding school teachers know to their sorrow, is contagious, and the one case touched off the crowd. By the time teachers arrived upon the scene the fire was out, but the survivors were in a bad way. It was necessary to put nine-tenths of the school to bed and order wholesale doses of bromide. Even now the girls insist that they haven't recovered from the shock sufficiently to do hard studying, and the victims of the water pitcher are both under the care of trained nurses. As for the man, he gave up his place the next day and confided to the cook that he was going to look for a job in a lunatic asylum, where his boarding school experience would be of value to him.—New York Sun.

Front of Her Work.

He looked with forced admiration at the slippers—forced because he already had half a dozen pairs. "You don't mean to tell me that they are all your own work? What a talented little wife I'm going to have!" And she smiled, though the plain truth was that she had bought the uppers, paid a man to sole them and then managed to sew the bows on crooked after her mother had, made them. Yet she was very proud and really wondered how she had managed to accomplish so much.—Detroit Journal.

TETTER ON THE HANDS.

For several years I was a sufferer from tetter on my hands. It would come in little watery pimples and the itching was almost more than I could stand. The skin was tender and the itching would swell so I could hardly bend my fingers. Sometimes my hands would become perfectly raw from scratching or breaking of the pimples. When I was in this condition I tried one half dozen bottles of Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy and some Wash in 1884, and by the time I took it my hands were cured, and I am now well of the trouble. It has since broken out a little at times, but not enough to inconvenience me or make me try more medicine. I am now well. MRS. M. E. KING. Burlington, N. C., May 27, 1896.

ENDORSED BY TEACHERS.

Paine's Celery Compound Counteracts the Nervous Strain of the School Room.

"I know of nothing so good as Paine's celery compound," says Miss May Sherwin, for the past 17 years principal of the largest public school in Bloomington, Ill., "to counteract the nervous strain incident to a constant life in the school room.

"I have myself used Paine's celery compound," she continues, "with most satisfactory results. It is a splendid nerve tonic."

The discoverer of Paine's celery compound was himself one of the greatest teachers that ever lived.

Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., held a famous professorship in Dartmouth college, and was a lecturer in other great universities all the while he was engaged in that momentous study which led to the chief accomplishment of the medical research of this century—the development of Paine's celery compound.

The general complaint now among intelligent women is that they are hurried and driven and fretted almost out of their senses by the demands upon their time and strength.

No wonder, then, the average woman has lost the capacity for sound sleep, good digestion and the freedom from aches and pains that follow healthy organic functions.

Many years of suffering might be avoided, weary months of lost time put to good service, and thousands of lives saved if persons who do not sleep well and those with over-worked brains and nerves would take Paine's celery compound. In the cure of nervous diseases this remedy has again and again demonstrated its power to combat these tenacious ailments.

It is to general poor health that we are to look for the cause of headaches, rheumatism and neuralgia, and to overcome these troubles it is the general health that must be raised. Sick headaches that recur so periodically with most women and are so grievous an affliction should be treated as due to lowered nervous tone, and a thorough invigoration of the body should be undertaken with Paine's celery compound.

The best test of the wonderful value of Paine's celery compound is to use it. Any woman will soon be convinced that it is the one remedy that can make and keep her well and healthful and strong.

The Boy and the hare.
A pleasant story of the Duke of Devonshire comes from Chatsworth. He was strolling, gun in hand, through one of his own fields near Baslow when he started a hare, which he shot, and was going to pick it up when a small boy jumped out of a neighboring hedge and warned him off. "Here, meester," cried the small boy peremptorily, "yo' must nae touch that."
"Why not?" asked the duke, amused, seeing that he was not recognized.
"Why, it's th' duke's," answered the boy, "an he'll have you locked up if he knows."
"Oh!" said his grace. "Then will you take charge of it?"
"Aye, that I will," answered the boy promptly. "Me fayther's a keeper."
Half an hour afterward the boy and the hare arrived in the kitchen at Chatsworth. The duke had taken a short cut home and had the boy brought to him. The little chap was dumb with terror when he learned what a mistake he had made, but the duke gave him a 5 shilling piece, called him "a good lad" and sent him away rejoicing.

Smart Little Girl.
A little girl who has just entered school jubilantly announced to her father that she had beaten all the girls above her in the arithmetic class and gone to the top.
"That was clever of you," said he encouragingly. "How was it?"
"Well, you see, the teacher asked the girl at the head how much was 8 and 5, and she didn't know and said 13, and the next girl said 9, and the next one said 11, and the next one said 14. Such silly answers! Then the teacher asked me, and I said 13, and she told me to go top. 'Course it was 13."
"That was nice," said the father. "I didn't think you could add so well. How did you know it was 13?"
"Why, I guessed it. Nobody said 13."—Pearson's Weekly.

The Libelous "They Say."
The one term "they say" is responsible for nine-tenths of the lies which repetition and familiarity finally convert into seemingly bona fide evidence. One usually hears an exciting bit of gossip launched forth with these words, while at the same time the speaker adroitly shields herself by declaring that personally she does not know it to be true. The man or woman who thus screens himself or herself is nothing short of a coward.—Josephine Hill in Woman's Home Companion.

Current Literature.
"You are preparing a new edition of your popular novel," said the caller.
"I am," replied the novelist.
"Well, I have a proposition by which we may both make money. Where you say 'She glued her lips to his,' why not add 'using Stycker's celebrated glue?'"—Philadelphia North American.

We saw "Mary's Little Lamb," Monday afternoon. If you don't believe this ask Wiley Brown.

The Arkansas Legislature has passed a law fining women who wear stuffed birds on their hats.

There is talk again about establishing a reading room here, if a suitable location can be obtained. A good reading room is something Greenville certainly ought to have.

The Cantata.

The young ladies gave their cantata in the opera house Monday night. A good sized audience was present and the receipts amounted to about $47. The scarf phantastics were beautiful and some other features of the entertainment were good, but the delay in starting and between scenes caused the audience to become restless and thereby lessened the interest.

A Card.

My office will be closed six or eight weeks, as I will be at the New York Polyclinic.

We extend our sympathies to Dr. Cheers of Elm City upon the death of his most estimable wife which occurred very suddenly on Thursday night. In the twinkling of the eye, and without one note of premonition the summons came, and her spirit was ushered into the presence chamber of God.—Wilson News.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinal/laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

The Georgia State Baptist Convention was told by ex-Mayor Hillier, of Atlanta, that in 1894 there were 5,000 homicides in the United States and in 1896 10,000, and that in the last year more men were murdered in the United States than were killed in Cuba or fell at Gettysburg or in the Philippines. People were losing confidence in the law, he said, because of the ease with which verdicts were set aside in the court-rooms and the facility with which notorious criminals escaped punishment. To these facts he attributed lynchings.
