THURSDAY, JULY 27, 1899.

The Atlantic Coast Line is credited with furnishing the best "Jim Crow" car service of any railroad in the State. The service some of the railroads give is really a sham.

The committee investigating the management of the agricultural department and the penitentiary are making some bad discoveries. There has been gross misappropriation of funds. J. L. Ramsay, who was Secretary of the Board of Agriculture, is a star witness at the investigation.

Some of our exchanges are raising their voices against the practice of bicyclists taking children on the front of their wheels when they ride. The Asheville Citizen says "it should be stopped by law. If an individual of mature years wants to ride a wheel such individual has the right to do so, but no one has the right to take a child too young to realize its danger, and therefore, too young to object, and subject it to the peril of a bicycle ride." The Charlotte Observer mentions the man who rocks the boat, he who blows down the muzzle of a gun, and he who rides a bicycle with a baby in front of him, as all belonging to the same class.

Bonds issued by North Carolina towns and cities have brought surprisingly high prices lately. Money is evidently cheaper than it has been in years, perhaps cheaper than it ever has been. Brokers bought Raleigh bonds at a price netting them considerably less than four per cent. interest. This indicates that it is becoming more difficult for a man to acquire enough money to retire upon. Time was when six per cent could be readily had upon large investments. Now the investor of $100,000 considers himself fortunate if he so places his money that he can get three and a half. That is to say, that whereas $40,000 was a sufficient sum for a competence one must now have $80,000. Perhaps, too, the general demand for city bonds indicates a growing decrease of faith in stocks etc. Men are looking for certainties. Stocks go up and down like mercury. At any rate these recent North Carolina sales indicate that some of our towns have splendid credit, notwithstanding the epidemic of repudiation that broke out in our State two years ago.—Biblical Recorder.

HEYLYN'S COSMOGRAPHY.

Work of Which Only Two Copies Remain.

An Old Geographical History of the World—its Most Interesting Part Relates to America.

A Boston paper recently announced the sale of a copy of Heylyn's Cosmography, published in 1677, and stated that it was the only copy of the work extant. This assertion, however, is not true, for Mr. E. A. Kent, of the firm of Kent & Stuchfield, of this city, has a copy of this valuable work in an excellent state of preservation. It was given him by his father, and is a valued heirloom in the family.

The book, as its name implies, is a geographical history of the world, written by Peter Heylyn and published in London, according to the title page, 220 years ago, by Andrew Clark for Philip Chetwind and Anne Seile. It is a large, strongly bound volume, printed in old-fashioned English, and divided into four books.

The first book contains the chirography and history of Italy, the Alpine provinces, France, Spain and Britain, with the isles thereof; the second book of Belgium, Germany, Denmark, Swethland, Muscany, Poland, Hungary, Dalmacia, Dacia, Greece, with the isles thereof; the third book Greater and Lesser Asia and all principal provinces, kingdoms seas and isles; while the fourth and last book relates to Africa and all the principal kingdoms, provinces and isles, and America. The spelling of the above names is given as in the book.

The most interesting portion of the work is that relating to America, of which comparatively little was known at that time. In the opening chapter he bounds it as follows: America, the fourth and last part of the world, is bounded on the east by the Atlantic ocean and Virginian seas, by which it is parted from Europe and Africa, which seas the mariners call the Mare Yel Noordt; on the west by the Pacific ocean, which mariners call Mare Del Zur, which divides it from Asia; on the south by what is a part of Terra Australis Incognita, from which it is separated by a long and narrow strait called the Streight of Magellan. The north bounds of it hitherto not so well discovered that we can certainly affirm it to be island or continent."

It will be seen by the above that Australia was believed to reach to the Straits of the Magellan.

The maps, which are dated 1663, are very complex and covered with a multiplicity of names. The contour of South America is given very accurately, but that of North America is scarcely recognizable. The Massachusetts, and Virginia, and Florida coasts are fairly good and many of the names of capes, rivers and towns are the same which they now have. However, the Gulf of St. Lawrence is shown to extend from the ocean along the northern edge of New England to a point about where Chicago now stands, and here nearly joins the southern point of Hudson's bay. The great lakes are not designated. Santa Fe, N. M., is placed on about the same latitude as New England, while California is the name given to what is now known as Lower California, and is represented as a great island, its northern end extending up into the Terra Incognita.

Heylyn gives the general name of Peruana to the northern and Mexicana to the southern continent. His maps display a tendency to recklessness in the profusion of great rivers indicated, many as large as the Nile and flowing complacently through the mountains and valleys alike.

According to this work the scheme of a canal to cut the Isthmus of Panama was conceived at that early date. He says: "Some have thought of turning these two peninsulas into perfect islands by cutting through the isthmus. Certain it is that many have motioned to the council of Spain to do this, and thus shorten the voyage to China and Malucca."

The reasons given for not undertaking the scheme were either lack of money or danger from giving pirates too good an opportunity. With fine sarcasm Heylyn adds that probably they did not desire to endanger the lives of the few remaining natives they had permitted to live by putting them to work.

In the role of a Munchausen Heylyn is a success. He asserts that the land is "blest with such an abundance of gold that they find in many of the mines more gold than earth," and that the natives, not regarding it greedily, exchange it for iron implements. He also states that the most valuable gems are found in abundance; that the land is plentiful of spices and fruits, and such creatures as the old world never knew. Among the latter are "hogs with talons sharp as razors and the navel on the ridge of their backs." Many other equally strange and terrible creatures are described.

Of the natives he asserts that their religion is idolatry, or worse, and their chief god the devil, whom they call Menitto.

A complete chronology of the kings of Mexico from the year 1322 is given and the source of the Nile river is designated at the very point where Stanley discovered it.—Denver Times.

SIDE COMBS NOW A NECESSITY.

They Are Made in Costly Shell and Amber for Women of Wealth.

Despite the fact that small sidecombs for the hair come in such cheap imitations at present, and are so universally worn as to be positively common, they are an absolute necessity for the prevailing mode of hair dressing. It is impossible to maintain the broad effect at the side, which is de rigueur to-day without the aid of these combs, and though a fashionable woman cries out against a fashion which can be so easily copied by her less favored sisters, from a money point of view, she has no alternative but to accept the side comb, though in such a style and at such a price as to render it inaccessible to the woman whose pocket-book is not well filled.

The large jewelry stores, whose patrons are among the Four Hundred, have showcases filled with these beautiful little combs, and importers and manufacturers are constantly devising new styles, new methods of decoration, new shapes and new materials, from gold to shell.

The latest and most popular combs are small, of shell amber, and handsomely decorated with finely cut steel. Sometimes the steel is merely a narrow band of steel; again it is arabesque, or pointed, or rounded, or a series of fleur-de-lis or clover leaves. The variety is limitless, and as they are expensive and not very easily copied in a cheaper comb, they are considered very chic.

The matron or maiden possessing a stock of unset gems has her combs of gold or silver set with precious stones, and many women who are known to be the owners of beautiful jewels and who would never be suspected of wearing an imitation gem buy the almost perfect counterparts of their real gems, which are shown in the shops, in order to preserve their more expensive combs. They urge in explanation that the combs are so apt to fall out of the soft, fluffy rolls of hair.

Amber combs just at present seem to be more in favor than the darker shell, especially for a woman with moderately light or real blond hair. The most up-to-date ones are studded with colored stones for evening wear, and if carefully chosen to harmonize or contrast with the color of the hair these brilliant ornaments are very becoming.—Chicago Tribune.

RAG RUGS.

Instructions for Those Who Cannot Make Them.

Quite satisfactory rugs may be knit or sewn together from rags, but the most durable rag rugs are those woven with warp. Old ingrain carpets, woolen goods of any kind or description may be woven into rugs or carpeting. Excellent rag carpets are also made out of cotton. Cotton carpets of this kind are more durable than those made of wool, and they are lighter. The dust can be shaken out of them more readily, and if necessary they can be put into a wash tub and thoroughly cleaned. They are, therefore, more useful than woolen rag carpets in the kitchen. Cotton rags should be cut about an inch or three-quarters of an inch wide. It makes considerable difference whether they are cut evenly. They may be cut on the bias or straight. Almost every housewife understands how to cut rags for rugs. These special directions are given for "a subscriber" who asked for them: Woolen rags should be cut considerably narrower than cotton. Thinner woolen rags are cut about three-quarters or half an inch wide, heavy coatings narrower, though they must not be so narrow that they will pull apart. Sew rags together firmly. Good linen thread should be used to sew them, or heavy cotton.

Silk rags make very pretty portieres. These curtains are woven with linen warp, and the weaver who provides this warp will charge about 65 cents a yard for his material and work. In a very short time scraps of ribbons, neckties and old silk gowns accumulate. They can be cut into rags about the width of cotton and the pounds grow. It requires about five pounds of silk rags to make a curtain a yard and a half wide by three and a half long. White ribbon and silks of light colors work in well in the "hit and miss" patterns in which the curtains are woven.—N. Y. Tribune.

The First Royal Woman Doctor.

Marie Amelle, of Portugal, enjoys the distinction of being the first woman of royal birth who has acquired the honorable right to add the letters M. D. to the "Regina" that follows her name. After a couple of years of hard and serious study, pursued under disadvantages of no ordinary character, since every moment of a queen's time is supposed to belong to the nation, and to be taken up by the manifold duties pertaining to her lofty station, she has just succeeded in passing with flying colors the difficult examination which entitles her to practice as a physician. Empresses, queens and princesses of the blood have on many occasions distinguished themselves in connection with the nursing of sick and wounded, as well as with the organization and management of hospitals; but Marie Amelle, the daughter of the late Comte de Paris, is the first lady born to the purple to become actually a full-fledged doctor of medicine.—Philadelphia Press.

Sold at Wooten's Drug Store. $1.

TYPE AND PRESS.

WHO WANTS IT?

SPEAK QUICK.

THE REFLECTOR recently purchased two printing office outfits and has a quantity of surplus material that will be sold cheap. There is a cylinder press large enough to print a nine column paper, in splendid condition, and a quantity of Small Pica, Long Primer, Brevier and Nonpariel body type. We can furnish a complete outfit large enough for a six or seven column paper.

Specimens of the body type are shown in this advertisement, the type being taken from the case just as it runs, so it shows for itself how well it prints. This is the Small Pica size of which there is 1 pair of cases.

Then here is a paragraph set from the Long Primer size. We have 4 pairs of these cases. In buying this type you do not get something that is worn out and cast aside, but a good serviceable type, capable of much wear.

Here is something a little smaller, Brevier size. There are 2 pairs of these and it is a bargain for somebody interested in printing. It may not come but once in a lifetime that an opportunity is given for buying type as cheap as we will sell these lots.

It is going to be a fine trip, the Band Excursion to Ocracoke Saturday. Don't fail to go.

The weather tried to keep fair today and when the sun did get a clear shake it was sizzling hot.

Saturday is the day for the Band Excursion to Ocracoke. Give the boys a big crowd and have a good time.

Some of the boys are telling it on Policeman Billie Smith that he is waiting to come out in his new uniform Sunday.

Something every young man should consider is that nobody thinks more highly of him than he does of himself.

The third base ball nine of Tarboro came down this morning to play a game this afternoon with the Greenville kids.

Uniforms for the policemen have arrived and the officers are out in them. The uniforms were furnished by Frank Wilson.

The Greenville base ball team will go to Kinston on the freight tomorrow afternoon to play another game with the Kinston team.

You know the best when you see it. That is our kind.

HUGH SHEPPARD, Agent Wilmington Steam Laundry

You not only have a fine trip at small expense but you will encourage the Band by going on the excursion to Ocracoke Saturday.

Every business man, bookkeeper and agent needs a good fountain pen. The Parker Pen leads all others. Find them at Reflector Book Store.

LOG HAULERS.—We have about 4,000,000 feet of logs which we want hauled by contract.
