STATE NEWS.

Happenings in North Carolina.

John Hobby, a merchant of Chapel Hill, died Thursday from hiccoughs from which he had been suffering several days.

The Mt. Olive Advertiser wants a new county formed out of portions of Wayne, Duplin and Sampson with Mt. Olive as the county-seat.

There was an attempt Thursday night to burn the A. & N. C. depot at Kinston. It is less than a month since the Coast Line depot there was burned.

The Rocky Mount Motor has enlarged from a five column to a seven column paper. It is a well edited, neatly printed paper, and does good work for its community.

The Statesville Landmark, the best semi-weekly paper in North Carolina, recently begun its twenty-fifth year. We hope to see it double this age under the management of Editor Clark.

TARBORO CHAMPION.

Special to Reflector.

Tarboro, N. C., Aug 12.—Tarboro won yesterday's game of ball played with Concord by a score of 6 to 1. Features of the game were Kenna's fine pitching and two home runs by Phillips. This is three games Tarboro has won out of the four played with Concord, which gives us the championship of the State. Batteries: Tarboro, Kenna, Luskey. Concord, Weddington, Graves.

This Year is "Ninety-Nine" What Will the Next Be?

Now that we are so nearly approaching 1900, it seems necessary to seriously consider some of the minor problems involved on the change of the century's date. How—to take one of these—are we to colloquially call next year? This is "ninety-nine"; what will the next be? Readers of old books and letters are aware that early in the present century 1801 was referred to in conversation as "the year one," 1809 as the "year nine," and so on, the words "the year" not being regularly dropped until after 1820 had been reached. But what did our great grandfathers call 1800? Was it "the year none" or "the year nothing"? If we could only learn that, a precedent would be found for use next year. There is one other point; that is as to its abbreviation in figures. "99" is all right for the present, "00" will look awkward, if not impossible. The suggestion has already been made that the abbreviation should be "19," but how about 1919, with which, in after days, confusion might be caused. And the public mind will receive in some sort an anticipatory shock by finding from the almanacs, which are already in course of preparation, that 1900 is "the fourth after Bisextile, or Leap Year," for by the Julian calendar we shall have to wait until 1904 for another February 29th, a point that might in its own allusive fashion have interest for the International Congress of Women when it considers the marriage question.—Westminister Gazette.

Taxation of Insurance Co's.

In conversation with Insurance Commissioner Young, we find that a number of towns in the State are passing ordinances imposing taxes upon insurance companies and upon agents. The commissioner states that several agents have written him upon the subject, and that it is in direct violation of the General Insurance Law, chapter 54, section 79, which, after giving the tax imposed by the State, says: "No county or corporation shall be allowed to impose an additional tax, license or fee upon any insurance company."—Raleigh Post.

NEWSY HAPPENINGS AND BUSINESS NOTES.

WINTERVILLE, August 12, '99 Send A. G. Cox your orders for brick. A few more still.

Miss Charlotte Dixon has gone to Whartons for three or four weeks.

Miss Penny Claytor, of Kinston, who has been visiting here returned home last night.

B. F. Manning is thinking to go North in a few days to purchase goods, then he can show a stock right.

A wagon load of young folks from here went over to Ayden one night this week to an ice cream party.

Mr. Mack Bryan has had a car load of timber to come and is having some nice stables built for his use.

Some of our boys have been down helping Mr. Joe Wilson house his tobacco as all his family is down with fever.

Wire Fence is bound to give satisfaction, if you get it from G. W. Parker and have him to put it up. If it is not put up right, it never looks right.

Old Mr. Hamilton took quite a severe fall the other day from a stage. He is limping around some from the effects of the fall, but we hope it is nothing serious.

Mrs. Henry Dixon's brother, Allen Williams, who runs on a timber barge from Norfolk to various points, has been spending a few days down here, but returned yesterday morning.

"Ready." A nice stock of Cart Wheels made last season, good and dry and ready for ironing up. Can fit you up a pair of these on short notice. However it pays every farmer who has work enough to afford it to get a two horse wagon, and we claim to be at the head in the wagon business.

Mayor's Court.

Mayor J. G. Moye had three cases to occupy the attention of his court this morning.

Richard Briley plead guilty to the charge of being drunk and disorderly, and was fined a penny and costs. Fortunately for him there was not much costs attached to the case, and he got off with a payment of $1.96.

William Norris was arraigned for the same charge, drunk and disorderly, but there was a worse case against him and he was assessed $5 and costs, the aggregate being $7.35.

Laura Rasberry and Mary Spier, two ladies of color, were up on the charge of being disorderly and using profane language, to the annoyance of the neighborhood in which they live. The charge against Mary was not sustained by the evidence and she was dismissed from custody. Laura was found guilty and fined $2.50 and costs, amounting to $7.05. Not having the wherewithal to pay she indulged in a crying spell in court. The last the reporter saw of her Policeman Billie Smith was leading the way in search of some friends to "stand" for her, while Laura followed close behind still a crying out loud along the street, much to the chagrin of the officer.

TAINED THE SPRING

HOW WHISKY GAP, WY., GOT ITS PECULIAR NAME.

The Frontiersmen's Fable That the Mountain Stream Was a Fountain of Youth Dispelled by the True Story of the Bleeding Process.

One of the historic places in the west is Whisky Gap, Wyo. The old time dwellers of mountain and plain—the men who "fought Indians and hunted buffalo out west" during the overland train days of the early sixties—have shrugged their shoulders at the mention of Whisky Gap for nearly 40 years. This is the place, according to their belief, where real "firewater" gushed out of the rocks in a beautiful mountain spring to quench the thirst of a whole company of Uncle Sam's trained Indian fighters. "It was nothing but pure spring water," they say; "a veritable fountain of youth."

Colonel C. C. Coutant, the author of a history of Wyoming and the pioneer days of the west, has learned the true story of Whisky Gap to be somewhat different from the fountain of youth fable. According to historical record of the early days along the government overland trail, Whisky Gap received its name in 1862 during the building of the overland stage route from Denver to Salt Lake City and the Pacific coast.

The people of Denver had long been working to secure the regular overland stage route, then connecting the east and the west. In 1862 Ben Holliday, a veteran stage man, became proprietor of the great overland line, and he agreed upon a route running through Denver to the west. He decided to discontinue that part of the road running up the North Platte and the Sweetwater rivers and across South Pass, Wyo. The many Indian difficulties experienced on this route were the inducements to abandon it.

The new trail led by way of Julesburg, Colo., to Denver, and on over the established wagon road to Fort Lupton, and north across Laramie plains, then due west through Bridge Pass, Wyo., joining the old trail leading across the country to the Pacific coast. The change was made during the summer of 1862. All the rolling stock, horses and other property of the company were gathered at the station just above Devil's Gate, in central Wyoming. Company A of the Eleventh Ohio cavalry, with Major O'Farrell in command, was the detailed escort at the time.

During the first day the long line of coaches, wagons, horses and mules made 11 miles from the station where the property had been gathered. The route chosen was directly south from the Sweetwater river. The camp selected was in a gap in the mountains where there were a fine spring and plenty of wood for cooking purposes.

Shortly after going into camp the major discovered that quite a number of his soldiers were intoxicated, and he at once sent for Lieutenant W. H. Brown, who was officer of the day, and informed him of the condition of many of the men and gave it as his opinion that some one was selling whisky in the camp. The command was doing escort duty not only for stage stock and stores, but also for a number of emigrants who had availed themselves of the opportunity for safe conduct over the plains.

Lieutenant Brown received orders to search all wagons, and if he should discover whisky to destroy it. Taking a corporal and three or four men, he commenced the search for the contraband article and found at last a barrel of whisky in an emigrant wagon. The officer ordered his men to roll the barrel out of the wagon, knock in the head and empty the contents on the ground. This was done, but it chanced that the spot where the whisky was emptied was just above the spring, and the fiery liquid went pouring down into the water supply of the camp.

The soldiers saw what was going on, and they rushed forward with cups, canteens, buckets and camp kettles to save what they could of the coveted "spirits." Many a man stooped over the spring and drank almost without breathing until he was drunk. One soldier who had succeeded in getting a full canteen from the spring paid his respects to Major O'Farrell at the headquarters tent, assuring his commanding officer, with maudlin mien and many a "hic," that that was the finest spring he had ever seen and the very best water he had ever tasted.

Major O'Farrell was apprehending an attack from the Indians that night, and the condition of his men fairly disheartened him. He saw at a glance that even a small band of savages could make a successful raid on his camp, consequently the sober and less intoxicated men were kept on the alert all night. Fortunately, no Indians put in an appearance, and by morning the debauched men had slept off their intoxication.

Thus the gap in the mountains where the camp was made received the name of Whisky Gap. For many years it was the favorite camping place for the more credulous of the old freighters and emigrants of the "trail days," but the little spring was never a "fountain of youth" as it had been in the old days, when "firewater" gushed up out of the rocks to quench the thirst of a company of United States soldiers.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

ONE SHOT MEANT WAR

BUT THE GERMANS WISELY REFRAINED FROM FIRING IT.

The Yankee Commander Leary Was Ready For the Fray and Proved Too Plucky and Tactful For His Opponent—A Story of Samoa.

The pluck and grit of American naval officers are aptly illustrated in an article by Henry Collins Welsh in Ainslee's Magazine, in which the writer tells how Commander Leary brought the German naval force in Samoa to terms some years ago. He says:

It was at the outbreak of civil strife that Captain Leary arrived at Apia in the American warship Adams. Dr. Knappe was then the German consul at Apia, and he and Commander Fritze of the German warship Adler carried on affairs with an imperious hand. Feeling ran high between the Germans on one hand and the Americans and English on the other. The Germans bombarded villages on various pretexts, fired upon unarmed natives and gave open aid to Tamasese.

Captain Leary at that time was a commander, and it was not long before he and Captain Fritze had some lively interchanges of compliments. On one occasion the Adler steamed past the American ship with a native chief bound to her foremast. The German saluted when he passed, but no answer came back from the American. Soon the German came to a standstill. A boat was dispatched to ascertain why the American had not answered the salute. Commander Leary sent the Teuton this characteristic reply, "The United States does not salute vessels engaged in the slave carrying trade."

But an incident which best illustrates Commander Leary's grit and determination and which deserves to live in song and story occurred in the waters near Apia on Nov. 15, 1888. Strained relations came to a crisis then, and war between the United States and Germany seemed inevitable.

On the day previous a message came from Mataafa to inform Commander Leary that the Germans had threatened to attack Mataafa in his stronghold on the morrow. Both Mataafa and Tamasese had entrenched themselves in fortified places about seven miles from Apia upon land under American protection. Mataafa asked for advice, and Commander Leary told him through the messenger to stand his ground, that he would not allow the German to make an attack upon property under his protection.

According to the German programme, the Adler was to bombard at dawn. Captain Leary quietly prepared to foil the plan, at the same time keeping his counsel. By using some hard coal he had aboard he was able to get up steam without the telltale smoke that would have warned the Germans of his action. Then he muffled his anchor chains with native mats, and at 4 in the morning all hands were quietly called to quarters. At daybreak the anchors of the Adler were hauled up and with full steam on the vessel made for the open sea. Noiselessly came up the Yankee's anchors, and to the amazement of the Adler the Adams was close upon her heels. The German had to turn to get out of the harbor, and by the time she reached the entrance the two ships were close together. Again the German turned and then headed toward the fort that was to be bombarded. Commander Leary ran his ship between the German and the shore and when about 300 yards from the Adler gave the order:

"Clear for action!"
At once the decks were cleared, and the guns were trained. The German followed suit, and the two ships steamed along the coast ready for the fray.

A shot from either vessel meant war between the two countries. When opposite the native forts, the Adler came to anchor, and the Adams anchored between the German and the shore. So close were the vessels that no guns could be fired from the Adler without passing over or through the Adams. Then Commander Leary sent this note to the German commander:

"I have the honor to inform you that, having received information that American property in the Latoga vicinity of Laullii, Lotoanuu and Solo Solo is liable to be invaded this day, I am here for the purpose of protecting the same."

For hours the men stood at their guns, but no shot came from the Germans. He was ready to war upon the Samoans, but war with the United States was another matter.

At length the German started on a cruise along the coast, but he could not shake off the persistent Yankee. Finally he renounced his designs and returned to his anchorage in Apia bay. To her anchorage came also the Adams, and Commander Leary had won the game.

Fishing For a Drink.

A guide who has done more or less plug fishing on Mooselookmeguntic lake says he can get a drink of nice, cold water when he is anchored on a lake, provided the water is deep enough. For deep fishing it is customary to sound for a clay bottom before casting anchor, and our informant claims that he can sound to secure a cool drink. He ties a weight to the bottom of his coffee bottle, and with the string tied also to the cork he drops it to the bottom; then by a quick jerk pulls the cork, the bottle fills with cold, clear water, and he has only to pull it in.—Phillips Phonograph.

To Get a Vacuum.

Professor Dewar's achievement in liquefying hydrogen has led to the discovery of an easy method for obtaining an almost perfect vacuum, and that in a single minute. When a glass tube, filled with air and closed at one end, has its open end dipped into a cup of liquid hydrogen, the intense cold condenses the air into a kind of snow which settles to the bottom. If, then, the upper part of the tube, from which the solidified air has fallen, is removed by heating and sealing it off, it becomes a vacuum chamber so free from air that it is difficult to force an electric current through it.

Sam Houston and His Corns.

Professor Hiram Corson of Cornell university, who used to be a reporter for the United States senate, tells this story about Sam Houston: "We reporters took turn and turn about each for an hour. One day I was sitting idly in the reporters' gallery, waiting my turn and looking on. Presently my attention was drawn by Senator Houston. Huge of frame, he was particularly huge of feet, and those extremities were rendered the more conspicuous in those days of boots by being laced in laced shoes. On this occasion there seemed to be an amount of pain in those feet proportionate to their size.

"The senator kept one upon his knee, rubbing it, with an anguished expression and periodically exchanging for the other foot. After awhile he unlaced his shoes and drew them off. Then the nursing of his aching toes continued for a time as before. But no relief came, and at last, to my utter amazement and amusement, he slowly divested himself of a long blue woolen stocking, and, taking the huge jack-knife with which he was wont to pass the time whittling, he proceeded deliberately to pare his corns in the senate of the United States."

The Ink Plant.

The juice of the ink plant, which can be used as ink without any preparation, comes out on the paper at first a red color, but after a few hours it changes to black.

Trade at Home.
Patronize your home people, merchants, manufacturers and others. Spend your money with those who have claims upon you by virtue of their citizenship as tax payers and supporters of the town, county and State government.

Finish it Soon.
The crowd in town today was smaller than usual on Saturday, because of repairs going on to the bridge across the river. It is hoped the work can be completed in a few days so that travel will not be interrupted.

Stock Yard.
Mr. J. A. Lang has established a stock yard on his land along the branch just east of town. He has built several hog pens there which he rents to persons who kept hogs in town and had to remove them under the new stock ordinance.

Pay Time.
With such good crops as have been made this year people certainly ought to be able to pay their debts, and they should do so as fast as possible. We hope those who were waiting for fall time to pay their subscription to THE REFLECTOR will come to see us real soon.

BLOOD CURE SENT FREE.

The salaries of 180 persons in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing have been increased, principally among the poorly paid.

In the burning of the home of Thomas Martin, near Marion, Va., Martin and his three children perished.

A New York boy picked up a certified check for $1,800. He hurried to return it to the owner and got a whole dollar for his reward.

The last epidemic of yellow fever in Norfolk and vicinity was in 1855 which devastated the three communities of Norfolk, Portsmouth and Gasport, and ranks in medical history as one of the severest epidemics this country has ever had. Though a third of the population of these cities fled when the disease became epidemic, the total death list for the three months of the plague was 1807.—Littleton News Reporter.

Did you read it yesterday? Here it is again today—GREENVILLE NEEDS A HOTEL.

Just one "anxious to marry" couple, colored, made application this week to Register of Deeds Moore for a marriage license.

Here's to the chigger that grows no bigger than the point of a very fine pin; but the lump that he raises burns like blazes, and that's where the rub comes in.—Orange (Va.) Observer.

Horrible Condition.

Frank Edgerson the ten year old son of Mr. James H. Edgerson, who lives a short distance South of this city, has a peculiar disease supposed to be elephantiasis. His right leg from the knee joint down to his ankle is swollen to an enormous size, in diameter as large as a peck measure while the other limbs of his body are nothing but skin and bones. He is greatly reduced in size and resembles a skeleton in appearance. The swollen leg seems to be sapping the life of the body, and the leg now weighs possibly as much as the rest of the entire body. It is altogether a most peculiar and pitiful case.—Wilson News.

All Together.

Greenville needs the spirit of co-operation that prevails in some other towns. We will not have factories and other large improvements until there is more unity among the people. Enough opportunities have already been allowed to pass by.

Balloons.

Some of the boys are amusing themselves sending up paper balloons at night. Some of their efforts have been very successful. A large balloon was sent up Friday night and when last seen it was going across the river in a north-east direction from town.

George T. Angell, editor of Our Dumb Animals, says put a little powdered sulphur in your shoes every few days and you will never have yellow fever. He cites numerous instances of people who worked in sulphur mines, match factories and the like who did not take the yellow fever when it was epidemic.
