TWO CORPORATIONS.

Articles Filed With the Clerk.

On Thursday articles of incorporation were filed with the Superior Court Clerk by two companies, and certified copies of these have been forwarded to the Secretary of State. One of these is to be known as the "Greenville Warehouse Company," composed of H. P. Strause, I. C. Gary and A. H. Gary. The purpose of the corporation is to buy and sell real estate, buy, sell, store and handle tobacco, cotton, etc., and do a general storage and commission business in Greenville.

The other company is similar in nature to the above except on a larger scale, and provides for carrying on its business, in Pitt county or elsewhere in North Carolina. This is composed of H. P. Strause, of Greenville, Mrs. Henrietta Strause, of Henderson and Sam Strause, of Des Moines, Iowa, the style of the company being "Strause Bros." THE REFLECTOR hopes these companies will prove of great advantage to Greenville, and that they will do a large and profitable business.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings in North Carolina.

All the swamp lands owned by the State, 600,000 acres, have been sold to K. S. Fiach, of Charlotte.

Laurinburg has organized a campaign club to be known as "The White Mans Constitutional Amendment Club."

Instead of declaring a dividend this year, the management of the Atlantic & North Carolina railroad have decided to put the net earnings in improvements.

Near Yeatesville, in Beaufort county, the boiler of a locomotive, belonging to J. B. Killingsworth, exploded, killing his son and painfully injuring another man.

Several moonshine stills have been broken up along the line of Vance and Wake counties. Owners of the stills are terrorizing people of the neighborhood who they believe informed on them.

Hughey Oxendine, a Croatan living near Buies, probably has the tallest corn in the county, J. D. McAllister measured one stalk the other day which was 15 feet 8 inches in height. The distance from the ground to the first ear of corn was 10 feet 6 inches. —Lumberton Robesonian.

OVER THE COUNTRY.

Eight hundred cloakmakers struck in New York, increasing the number idle to 3,000.

The Harding Paper Company plant at Hamilton, O., has been sold to the Paper Trust for $400,000.

Ben Washington, colored, who murdered H. Jackson, white, was lynched at Bristol, Fla., Monday night.

Hiram A. Fletcher, a lawyer of Grand Rapids, Mich., cut his throat with a razor Monday, and died Tuesday.

Fay Conover, 11 years old, died in Chicago, Ill., Sunday of diphtheria; after being treated by Christian Scientists.

The Coroner's jury blames the Omaha, Neb., fire chief and city officials for the recent death of four firemen by contact with an electric light wire.

To please his sweetheart, William Crowe, at Louisville, Ky., jumped from a railroad bridge, a distance of 98 feet to the river below, and was not hurt.

Ellis Rhinehart, a regular army soldier, or Maysville, Ind., who was reported tortured to death in the Philippines, is at his home, having never left this country.

Great Damage.

This storm has done great damage to crops in Pitt county, and no doubt the same condition prevails in other counties. Cotton, corn and tobacco crops have suffered immensely. We heard one farmer say that he does not think any fodder at all can be saved, and the corn also suffers much by being blown down. Tobacco that was yet in the field and such as was in the barn curing at the time of the storm is about ruined. The late cotton crop will be cut off. Altogether the damage cannot be estimated, but it is great.

Champions of the South.

Tarboro beats Union, S. C., in the last game played at Charlotte in a score of 6 to 4. This gives Tarboro the championship of the South. The club has disbanded for the season.

Driven by the Storm.

A flock of seagulls was seen flying over town Thursday afternoon. There were probably seventy-five or a hundred of the birds in the flock and they were going in a southeasterly direction. No doubt they were running from the storm.

The Centre of Things.

From the Atlanta Journal we get some information about Charlotte that surprises us. It is this: The cotton mills of the city proper furnish employment to 4,000 wage-earners who support 10,500 people. The salaries paid to employees amount to over a million dollars a year, while the value of the manufactured product of the mills is $6,000,000. Within a territory of 100 miles around Charlotte there are nearly 300 mills, which is 55 per cent. of all the spindles and 57 per cent. of all the looms in the entire South. The number is rapidly increasing. We knew that our neighboring city for the past ten years has shown wonderful pluck and business energy, but we were not aware of the gratifying fact that it is the centre of the textile industry in the South. Along with the cotton milling business the city is striding forward on all other lines. Its schools and churches are springing up, and business houses are pushing old-time residences out of the way. Watch Charlotte. It is in reality our "Queen City."—Charity and Children.

What the People Can do if They Want To.

However, to our mind, there is nothing so silly as saying that the people cannot down trusts if they want to. When "the people" cannot do away with any given thing it is because the term "the people" is applied to only a minority of the people, the majority being on the other side. If a Republican President is elected in 1900 it is proof that the people—the majority, which is the only reasonable meaning that can be attached to these words—prefer trusts. The minority may talk as much as they please about "the people's wishes" being defeated, but it is a case of the tailors of Tooley street.

We have been resting easy about trusts, with the belief that when people really get tired of them they can let 'em slide. Meanwhile, if they are legitimate business developments they will demonstrate their ability to live, and, as before said, if they are criminals the people can clap the clamps on them when they want to.—Monroe Journal.

Not ten persons in a hundred who use an advertising fan can tell the name of the advertiser who has presented it to them, particularly when the fans are distributed on the streets. The clipping reproduced above is a fair sample of a large amount of false advice on advertising now being published in newspapers.—Printers Ink.

Illegible Scrawls.

The following to be credited to the Philadelphia Times may be of interest to persons who write for the press:

One of the common defects of modern letter-writing is illegible scrawls and signatures. In olden times, when letter writing was one of the great accomplishments of the age, and contributed very largely to the history and literature of the times, legible writing was general. The letters of Washington, the Adamses, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, and their distinguished contemporaries were almost as legible as the typewritten letters of to-day; and James Buchanan, even in the severe exactions of a long struggle for the presidency, wrote every letter with the precision of copper-plate.

The art of private letter-writing has passed away. The newspaper is now everywhere, and furnishes everything worthy of note from every part of the world at the breakfast table. Private letter-writing is now very generally done in a haphazard scrawl, and the signature often entirely unintelligible unless the writer is well known to the one who receives the epistle.

This illegible letter writing is especially a source of great annoyance in the newspaper office, where letters are received daily from persons with whom the editor or the men in the business department are not personally acquainted. It is not uncommon for letters intended for publication to go into the waste basket because the editor cannot make out the names of the writers, and is, therefore, left without any means of ascertaining the reliability of the correspondents. And it is not uncommon to receive letters on the infinite variety of subjects about which newspaper readers address the editor for information, or for some kind of office to the writers in which the signatures are utterly unintelligible. This is unpardonable negligence, and every letter-writer should be specially careful, when addressing any one, to write the signature so plainly that none could mistake it.

Correspondents who write to editors for publication should observe several common-sense rules to assure admission into the columns of a newspaper. The writer should carefully consider and understand the subject; it should be stated as tersely and concisely as it can be presented; it should be written legibly, and especially proper names should be written plainly and accurately, and the writer should promptly stop when the work is done.

A large proportion of the best talent employed on a newspaper is devoted to the daily task of pruning diffused articles from one-half to one-third. The standing order in every newspaper office is to "boil down," and newspaper correspondents would, as a rule, make their communications vastly more acceptable and impressive if they studied the art that is part of the training of every journalist.

A Splendid Way.

A splendid way to write advertisements is to imagine a customer standing before your counter. Put in your advertisement exactly what you would say were she standing face to face with you.—Grocery World.

According to Treasury statistics every man, woman and child in this country is $4.10 richer now than they were this time last year. May be so, but we haven't seen our $4.10 yet, and there are several other people we know in the same fix.—Wilmington Star.

Five Lives Lost on Gull Shoals.

Norfolk, Aug. 16.—Local Weather Observer Gray received a dispatch from Kitty Hawk, N. C., to-night stating that three-masted schooner Aaron Reppard, Captain Wessel, lumber laden, from Savannah to Philadelphia, was totally wrecked off Gull Shoals, on the North Carolina coast, to-day. The schooner had been in distress nearly all day, and went to pieces toward night. A life-saving crew from the Gull Shoals life saving station was sent out to rescue the schooner's crew, but of the eight men, only three were saved. It is not known whether or not Captain Wessel is among the five lost. The wind reached a velocity of sixty miles an hour along the coast here today. Some of the regular passengers and freight steamers scheduled to leave this port to-day did not venture on their voyage.

A Wise Man's Unwise Belief.

Some of the wise men of a couple of centuries ago were wont to hold mercantile pursuits in no great esteem. Addison in his "Spectator" solemnly made the asseveration that "dull fellows prove very good men for business." But Addison wrote in the placid days. There being no hum and bustle in the world then, the ancient storekeepers did not need to put forth much energy. But no dull man is found among the progressive merchants of to-day. They must be alert and industrious, relying also upon the good results to be obtained from constant and interesting advertising in a first-class and popular newspaper.—Philadelphia Record.

The Mayor of Hays City, Kan., is only twenty-two years old; the president of the Council is twenty-two, and the oldest man in the municipal government is twenty-nine.

WINE OF CARDUI
McELREE'S
Wine of Cardui

has demonstrated ten thousand times that it is almost infallible

FOR WOMAN'S PECULIAR WEAKNESSES,

irregularities and derangements. It has become the leading remedy for this class of troubles. It exerts a wonderfully healing, strengthening and soothing influence upon the menstrual organs. It cures "whites" and falling of the womb. It stops flooding and relieves suppressed and painful menstruation. For Change of Life it is the best medicine made. It is beneficial during pregnancy, and helps to bring children into homes barren for years. It invigorates, stimulates, strengthens the whole system. This great remedy is offered to all afflicted women. Why will any woman suffer another minute with certain relief within reach? Wine of Cardui only costs $1.00 per bottle at your drug store.

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Rev. J. W. SMITH, Camden, S. C., says: "My wife used Wine of Cardui at home for falling of the womb and it entirely cured her."

A Room in a Hotel That Has a Queer Story.

A most interesting history of the country could be written by almost any drummer should he keep an accurate diary of his every day trips and the incidents occurring.

One of these, speaking yesterday about inexplicable things, related this incident:

"In a hotel in Rock Hill, S. C., there is a room that has a queer history. Its number is 20. Put a man in it, extinguish the light, go to bed, and in a second a rat will run over his face. Now every crevice in this room has been covered with tin, the fire place has even been closed tightly; dogs and cats have been kept in the room, but not a rat has ever been caught, yet it is a notorious fact that as soon as a man puts out the light in the room and stretches out on the bed, a rodent is sure to crawl right over his face. When I first heard the story I told the landlord to put me in that room. He did so. Now if there is anything in the world I don't believe in it is ghosts and uncanny things. When I hear of them I always want to investigate them. Well, I took my traps (not rat traps) and went up. After examining every spot around the room I got ready and putting out the light, lay down. No sooner had I touched the bed, stretching out for a good night's sleep, than right over my face ran a rat, though I could not of course see it. Men who have been placed there to sleep, knowing nothing about the room's history, always say it is a rat and now it is known as the 'rat room.' But a strange feature about it is that a woman is never disturbed. Yes, a few have been found who wanted to investigate and not one has ever been disturbed in this way."—Greensboro Record.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

Probably every woman wishes her nose was either bigger or littler.

Every woman, no matter how homely she is, believes in her heart that she has an aristocratic air.

You can always judge a woman's talking speed by watching her in a restaurant when she thinks no one is looking.

The instinct that makes a man fall in love probably is the same one that makes a child, when it can't think of anything else to do, want a piece of bread and butter.

There was once a big looking glass in a department store, and one day a woman passed it without turning to see how she looked to other people when they looked at her. This is not a fairy story; the woman was blind.

THE FURNITURE MEN

Murder Near Jason.

LaGrange, Aug. 16.—Monday night Justice John W. Sutton tried Mr. John Burrus for whipping Nancy Smith, colored. Mr. Burrus plead guilty and was fined 10 cents and costs.

It is said the parties left here in the same buggy and returned to the scene of the fighting, Mr. Allen Carter's, near Jason, where Mr. Burrus again whipped Nancy.

At about 11 o'clock Nancy, after slipping into Mr. Carter's and getting his gun, came near Mr. Burrus and shot him in the thigh, and then snapped the gun at Mr. Carter.

Nancy escaped and has not been apprehended.

Dr. J. M. Hadley examined the wound and pronounced it serious. Dr. J. M. Kirkpatrick was also summoned and was begged by Mr. Burrus to amputate his leg, but did not do so.

Mr. Burrus lived until 4 o'clock Wednesday morning and died from loss of blood. He was a young man about 30 years of age, and son of Mr. Solomon Burrus, who is a good and respected citizen.—Kinston Free Press.

Destroy The Weeds.

Not many farmers bother themselves about the weeds that grow alongside their farms on the roads, and, as a rule, not many road overseers, care whether the weeds grow on the roads or not; but these same weeds produce seed and keep the farm well supplied with weeds every year, which cost the farmers largesums to destroy. The wise farmer will keep the weeds down at his own expense if they grow on the road.

IN THE DRIFT.

These Parcels Found Floating On.

Knights of Pythias meet tonight. Daughters of Rebekah meet tonight.

When this general storm is over we'll be glad.

Last night was the worst of the storm in this section.

The sun tried to peep out for a little while this afternoon.

The cold drink venders have seen dull days since this weather came.

The high wind filled the town with broken limbs—all belonging to trees.

Pity the man who had to be exposed to the weather such a night as last night.

A good many fellows never see an opportunity until some other chap reaches out for it.

If this ain't the fall of the year, what is it? Comes next to the April big snow any way.

It is a good thing to talk about even on a bad day.—GREENVILLE NEEDS A HOTEL.

Attention is called to the advertisement of sale of town lot by H. W. Whedbee, Commissioner.

The girl with the plain countenance would undoubtedly put a better face on the situation if she could.

Telegraph wires are so badly wrecked by the storm that outside communication is cut off for the time being.

If August gives us any enjoyable weather it must come from now on. So far it has been either scorching hot or rainy.

An Instance.

Talk in print as you would talk to a customer in the store. When you have a customer right where you want him or her you don't simply enumerate a dozen articles from your stock, quote prices and quit. Not if you are a born salesman. "You'll say, 'Mrs. Smith, we've just got in some nice green corn. It is canned in Maine, and Maine corn you know is sweeter and tenderer and juicier than any York State kinds. I took a can home with me last night, and I believe it's the best I ever tasted. You'd better let me send you up a dozen cans from this lot. You open one in the morning, and if you don't agree with me that it's the finest you ever tasted, send the eleven cans back and I'll make no charge.' Now, why wouldn't that language be right for an advertisement? Perhaps a few minor corrections might be made, but I'm not sure they would make it any more convincing.—Trade Magazine.

Two Storms.

It seems that two storms, instead of one, must have been making for this section. What was thought to be the small end of the West Indian storm came along early in the week and stirred around a few days. But one still worse came from the north-west Thursday and during the afternoon and night gave us a hard blow and rain.

Would Pay.

If Pitt county could issue bonds to build and iron bridge across Tar river here, it would be a wise expenditure of money and save thousands of dollars to the county in the long run.

Possibly the world may owe every man a living, but it has too many preferred creditors.—Chicago News.
