WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 23, 1899

By his speech at Des Moines, Mr. Bryan has pointed out the way for a complete Democratic re-union and has made it possible for the party to take the offensive on a dozen different issues.

"Iowa shows the way." This ought to be the slogan of the Democratic party in their campaign in Iowa this fall. The platform of the Iowa Democrats should be the platform of the National Democratic party.

The announcement that Judge Van Wyck of New York, will not permit his name to be used as a Democratic candidate, means that he recognizes that Mr. Bryan is the man of the hour for Democracy, and that any other candidate would not bring about Democratic unity.

Rev. Dr. W. S. Creasy, a prominent member of the N. C. Conference and pastor of Centenary Methodist church at Winston, died suddenly Monday morning in a Baltimore sanitarium where he had been several weeks for treatment. He was 52 years old and was recognized as one of the first pulpit orators in the State.

The Administration will not admit it, but nevertheless the fact remains, that instead of making progress in its fight against the insurgents, the insurrection is gaining strength. The recent uprisings in unexpected quarters in Negros, Sulu and other outlying islands of the Philippines, is clear evidence of this fact.

There is a story current in Washington, based on the records of the Navy Department, that over 25 years ago at the time of the Virginius affair with Spain, Dewey asked the privilege of capturing the Philippines. In view of the failure of General Otis to finish his job, it is unfortunate that he did not begin his task about that time.

The return of President Schurman of the Philippine Commission to America, has been followed by some very frank comments on his part concerning our policy in the Philippines, and his reported indorsement of the insurgents as being "the equal of any other civilized people of the world" is accepted by all impartial observers as true.

A base spectacle of man's inhumanity to man has just been exhibited at San Juan, Porto Rico. The United States transport McPherson reached there Friday with a load of supplies for the storm sufferers, and the stevedores stopped the unloading by engaging in a strike. No appeals from their starving neighbors could move them to work, and natives and soldiers had to volunteer to unload the vessel. That sort of people, and worse, are the ones we have been and are yet having so much war about.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington City, Aug. 22, '99.

Much interest is felt in Washington over the changes that are taking place in Democratic policies. Iowa has shown the way to the Democracy of other commonwealths and the platform adopted will likely be the key-note of the coming campaign. The spirit of the Iowa Democratic Convention was admirable. Its ticket was beyond reproach, and its meetings harmonious. While made up of former free silver advocates and gold bugs both elements of the Democratic party sunk their personal differences of opinion in an effort to bring about unity. And that they succeeded, is shown by the favorable comments that are pouring into the National Democratic headquarters in Washington. The announcement from New York that Judge Augustus Van Wyck will not permit his name to be used as a Democratic candidate, is a recognition of the trend of events toward full Democratic union. Van Wyck's action was taken at the instance of no man, but was in recognition of the fact that Mr. Bryan is the man of the hour for the Democracy, and that the only way to win in the next campaign is to lay aside personal ambitions, smooth over differences and present a solid front to the enemy. The next National Democratic Convention will find the party united and aggressive, and with it in that shape, there is scarcely any doubt that victory will follow. Whenever united in a common cause, Democracy has always prevailed.

Republicans have troubles of their own, and they will not enter the next campaign with the same elements united as in 1896. The Anti-Imperialists in the East are talking of forming a party of their own, and threaten that if the President persists in his policy of expansion, they will form a party under the name of the Continental Republican Party, and try to get Ex-Speaker Reed, or some other prominent Republican, to accept the nomination for the President on their ticket. If this were done, it would make the New England states exceedingly doubtful. One of the sympathizers with the movement of the anti-imperialistic league expresses himself thus: "The agitation of this question will not be put down any more than the anti-slavery agitation or the Revolutionary War. We will forsake party and everything else first. While the movement is in a primitive stage now, unless the President changes his policy there will be a revolution in the Republican party, and I have no hesitancy in saying, that it will gather together all the anti-expansionist Republicans and make a strong combination to fight during the Presidential campaign."

The fight on Mr. Bryan seems to be gradually weakening, due in large measure to the fact that there appears to be no one in the Democratic party who is so popular with the masses as he is. The speeches of Mr. Bryan at Des Moines, Iowa are regarded here as full of significance. Mr. Bryan is not inspired by any mulish obstinacy as to the issues upon which the next great political battle will be fought. He does not insist on "16 to 1" as the dominant issue of the hour, and herein he adjusts himself to the thinking men, the intellectual leaders of the Democracy, and disarms such men as Morgan and Gorman, and binds them to his approaching candidacy. Mr. Bryan has made Democratic success certain by his declaration at Des Moines. He has prepared the way for a complete Democratic reunion, and he has made it easy for his party to take the offensive on a dozen formidable counts, and in doing this, he has placed the Republican party on the defensive.

It is not to be wondered at, then that Democrats are inspired by the present situation, and look with great hope to the future. McKinleyism, i. e. imperialism, is doomed to fall. The days of the trusts are numbered, just as the days of the McKinley Administration are gradually shortening.

Although not officially admitted there is the best of foundation for the report that the Administration has received recent advices from General Otis and other reliable agents of the Government, to the effect that the insurrection in the Philippines is gradually gaining in strength, and is now more formidable than was at first supposed. This impression has been strengthened by recent news of reported uprisings in unexpected quarters, in Negros, Sulu and other outlying islands. Hence, the necessity for increasing the standing army by calling for more volunteers. The ten new regiments authorized will bring the total strength of the army up to 95,000 men. One would suppose that the President would learn something from experience. Otis has been claiming for months, that if he could only get 30,000 men he would bring the war to a close in a few weeks. Alger permitted this delusion to govern his policy for several months, but it is apparent from recent events that Secretary Root, who seems to be a man of great foresight and has strengthened the back-bone of McKinley, is taking counsel from some other source than General Otis. The latter has a strong friend in Adjutant General Corbin who stands close to the President, and it is believed that owing to Corbin's intervention in his behalf, Otis has not been heretofore relieved from his position. While Secretary Root is naturally very reticent on the subject of changing General Otis, it is believed here, that unless Otis makes more rapid progress against the Filipinos after the rainy season closes, that Secretary Root will insist on his displacement, and the selection of General Miles or General Merritt or some other competent officer to command the United States forces. If Bryan's advice was followed, we would withdraw our troops, and permit the Filipinos to set up a Government of their own.

May Fall Through.

The delivery of the Danville Warehouse Trust appears to be attended with difficulties most distressing. Doubt is even entertained that it will be brought forth at all. The most that appears to be hoped for under existing conditions is a weak, puny, diminutive kid, instead of a big, bouncing, healthy chap that was the original fond expectations.

In the past week it is rumored that the warehouse trust deal has not been carried out, and has met with serious obstacles. It is said that the parties that were to put up the "wherewithal" have backed out, being deterred from investing in such an enterprise because of the opposition evinced against it by the farmers; that a second lot of capitalists were secured to take the place of the original ones, but they, too, after a thorough investigation, have been scared off, and that now a delegation from Danville is in New York endeavoring to interest a third bunch of monied men in the scheme.

If all this be so, then the outlook for this prospective trust is blue for a fact, and it would not surprise us to hear soon that it has been abandoned altogether.—Winston Tobacco Journal.

The work of remodeling the Sheriff's office was started today. The partition wall between the main office and small room is to be removed and in its place will be railed off a special apartment for collecting taxes.  THE FURNITURE MEN

A Sad True Story.

Here is a story taken from one of our exchanges and there is a companion story to it with varied shadings, in every community throughout the land. It is a story brimful of sorrow, disgrace and ruin and rank injustice. "A woman barefooted, hungry and footsore walked through a certain town recently looking for a poorhouse. She once was the hope and pride of a home, a reigning society queen, a leader in church and Sunday school work. Men adored her, women envied her, but all rendered her homage. Beautiful, refined and accomplished, pure and spotless. But the sunshine went out of her life—the shadows came. She trusted in man's honor and in a moment of weakness fell. The proud woman became a social outcast, a weary homeless wanderer. Life has no charms for her. The poor house is her only refuge. As she knocks at the door the author of her degradation leads to the altar a spotless bride, amid the congratulations of those who denounced the poor victim and made her an outcast. Orange blossoms, bouquets and honors for the man, degradation and tears for the woman. He is applauded, but she is lost forever.

That is the story and how just and sensible are the comments of the Durham Sun on that story. It says:

"It comes to our mind that there is retributive justice somewhere awaiting these cases. Methinks in the great hereafter she will wear robes of spotless white, for He who forgave Mary Magdelene, will forgive her—if she repent of her sins and plead her cause at the throne of grace—while her betrayer will roast in hell, and the unforgiving will be judged according as they judge her."

We wish that every newspaper, every pulpit and every advocate of morality and justice would lash the betrayer of women into disgrace and put him to the open shame he so richly deserves.—Monroe Enquirer.
