Blow to the Faith Curists.

Attorney General Taylor, at the request of the State medical board, today delivered an opinion that it is illegal for faith curists, Christian Scientists, and other unlicensed persons who assume the title of doctors, to minister to the sick, particularly where a fee is charged. His opinion follows:

"It is my opinion that it is a violation of the law for an unlicensed person assuming the title of a doctor to prescribe or pursue and practice for the cure or relief of diseases, injury or deformity, especially where any fee is charged for such services.

"It is perfectly obvious that the non-treatment of disease requiring treatment by an unqualified person may be as injurious as the administering of erroneous treatment or remedies, and it is my opinion that in enacting the statute of 1887 the General Assembly contemplated the protection of the public from the evil of non-treatment or non-action where necessary as fully as it did from wrong treatment.

"In so far, then, as Christian Scientists, faith curists, mental healers, and metaphysical medical practitioners advertise themselves as physicians and accept fees for treating disease, by silent or other forms of prayers, or by moral advice, or by profound thought, or by absolute non-action, they unquestionably, in my opinion, violate the law.

"On the other hand, osteopaths and magnetic healers who hold themselves out as physicians and advise an ability to cure diseases, or who accept fees for the treatment of diseases, by prescribing for them either medicines or the simple laying on of hands, are, if unlicensed, violating the law.

"On the other hand, if they abstain from claiming to be doctors and from advertising treatment, but simply administer massage under another name, there is nothing in the law which forbids them giving to their treatment what name they please, and there is nothing in the law which requires masseurs to be licensed, and one who administers massage, whether recommended by a physician or voluntarily sought by an afflicted person at liberty to charge for his services what ever he deems them to be worth."—Indianapolis Dispatch to Chicago Tribune.

Looking for Matches Barefooted With a Snake in the Room.

N. B. Creasman, of Avery's Creek township, had a thrilling experience last night. About midnight he was awakened by the melodies of music. As his ear first caught the strains he thought they came from either the First regiment band or the Asheville colored minstrels, male and female—but on further investigation he found that the music was made by a huge rattlesnake that had crawled into the house through a hole that was made to allow the ingress of the house cats.

There was no light in the room and the matches were on the mantel. It seemed that the snake was between Mr. Creasman and the matches, but after summoning all the courage at his command, (and he says it took more courage to get onto the floor with his bare feet and walk to the mantel than it did to face an army of bluecoats in the late unpleasantness) he managed to feel his way through the darkness to the matches and light the lamp. Then he found that the snake was only a few feet to the left of him. With the assistance of Frank Hays he proceeded to kill his snakeship, which was four feet long and had 10 rattles and a button. It is hardly necessary to record that the cat hole is closed for the present.—Asheville Citizen, 2d.

Poor Blind Horse.

One of the dray horses belonging to Tom Williams is blind. This morning the driver in charge of that horse carelessly left the animal and dray standing unattended near the freight warehouse at the depot. Not being able to see, the horse became restless and wandered off. He went down the high embankment in rear of the depot, then stumbled across the side track near Strause Bros' factory, and fell in a deep ditch of water. Some workmen near saw the horse fall in the ditch and ran there in time to keep him from drowning. It took several men to pull the horse and dray out of the ditch.

THE RED SHIRTS.

Convicts Who Wear Them in the Penitentiaries of California.

There are men in the penitentiaries of California who are favored with red shirts, but they are not made particularly happy thereby.

When a convict has once worn the crimson shirt, he hopes as ardently as a convict can hope for anything that the warden will never make him wear it again. It means that he has tried to escape and failed.

But that is not all. Henceforth he is a degraded man in prison circles. His time credits are gone. Solitary confinement, dungeons and bread and water may be his portion. He is watched, suspected by the officers, pointed out and "explained" to visitors and newcomers. Among the 700 convicts in the jute mill his red back may be distinguished at a glance. If he be away from there a moment, the guards know it. Then the prison bell rings, the officers assemble, bloodhounds are unchained, and the hunt begins.

Some of the red shirts at San Quentin are among the most daring fellows that ever scaled a prison wall, and every man of them has run the gantlet of guard and Gatling gun. Anybody in stripes who breaks for liberty is liable to be riddled with lead within 60 seconds. The convicts know this, but they also know that beyond the gray stone walls there are green hills and deep ravines and—possibly—freedom. The man who is sentenced to die on a prison cot is willing to stake his life for liberty. His days and nights are spent preparing for the game. If he wins, the "cons" he leaves behind are jubilant, and many are the tales of pluck and luck they will tell in memoriam. As a rule, no class of people stand by each other like veteran "cons."—San Francisco Call.

A TRAGEDY IN A PICTURE.

His Snap Shot of a Drink That Killed Two Men.

"The most remarkable snap shot picture in the world is owned by a friend of mine in a town in Georgia," said an enthusiastic amateur photographer. "Its story is extremely curious. It seems that he went one day to a blacksmith shop to get a shot at the men at the forge. The smith was engaged on a difficult piece of ironwork and had two helpers. Just behind them on a shelf was a pint flask full of yellowish white liquor, evidently the corn whiskey for which the native Georgian has a peculiar liking.

"As my friend was preparing to take his picture one of the helpers caught sight of the bottle and communicated his discovery by dumb show to his companion. The smith's back was turned at the moment, and the first man reached stealthily for the prize, while my friend, unnoticed in the corner, quickly aimed his camera. It was a comical scene, and in his mind he had already named the photo 'The Stolen Drink.'

"The helper uncorked the flask and took a swift gulp, and his comrade snatched it and did likewise. Then for a brief, breathless instant they looked at each other, and as they did so their foolish grin gave way to such a stare of questioning horror as I never saw before upon a human face. I know because it was then that the camera clicked, and the picture is as clear as crystal. The flask contained carbolic acid. Within an hour both men were dead.

"When my friend took one print, he broke the negative so as to make the photograph absolutely unique. It shows the forward end of the shop. In the foreground is the anvil, with the smith bending over his work. Behind him are the two helpers, one still holding the flask, looking at each other. You can see tragedy in their eyes as plain as print. It is a frightful and dramatic tableau that could not be duplicated by any sort of art."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Be Natural.

One of the surest ways to be awkward "in company" is to try to act differently from one's accustomed manner. If one's everyday manner is not good enough for company, then it should be changed, but the most delightful company manner is the natural manner when it is natural to be charming. One of the charms of an agreeable manner is to seem to be unaffected. Another is to listen appreciatively when others speak.—The Gentlewoman.

The Ink Plant.

The juice of the ink plant, which can be used as ink without any preparation, comes out on the paper at first a red color, but after a few hours it changes to black.

Small Pox Near Halifax.

Dr. I. E. Green said in Halifax Monday that there is a genuine case of small-pox at Mr. Fenner's farm about six miles from Halifax. It is a colored man and he has him and his wife and child carefully guarded. Dr. Green thinks that unless the people are generally vaccinated there will be considerable trouble with small-pox when winter comes.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

Young Lady Caught in Buggy Wheel.

Wednesday night there were services at Reedy Branch church, about six miles from town. Several members of the family of Mr. J. W. Smith, Superintendent of the County Home, were in attendance, and returning home two of his daughters and a young man named Will Sermons were riding together. The mule they were driving ran away and one wheel of the buggy ran in a ditch. One of the young ladies, Miss Nannie, was thrown out of the buggy and fell in the ditch. Her head caught between the spokes of the wheel, and when the mule pulled the wheel out of the ditch the young lady was pulled out by the neck. She was badly bruised and skinned by the accident, and it is almost miraculous that she escaped being killed.
