WINTERVILLE DEPARTMENT.

NEWSY HAPPENINGS AND BUSINESS NOTES.

WINTERVILLE, Sept. 27, '99
A carload of good shingles for sale by A. G. Cox cheap.

Three bales cotton sold here yesterday at 6½ cents. Bring on your cotton, highest market price guaranteed.

"Fitz-hugh Lee-tle or Big" B. F. Manning & Co. does this in ready made clothing. They have the largest stock ever brought to Winterville.

Don't forget that next Monday is the first day of school at the Winterville Academy, and have your boy or girl in on the first day if possible.

Prayer meeting will continue every night through the remainder of this week at the Baptist church. Next week pastor W. L. Bilbro expects aid to begin a series of meetings.

"First Comes First Served" This is the case in regards to Mary F. Hardy & Co's new stock of millinery. You know it is going every day, and you might miss what you wanted worse if you wait.

Winterville Cigar Co.'s sales are running very much ahead of what they usually are this month. This is to a great extent the result of home people's taking hold of their goods, which the Company appreciates very much.

CAN'T KEEP THEM.—We sold another two horse wagon to a gentleman from the Framville section yesterday. He said that he had bought another make of wagon, but after seeing our make sold his and bought one of ours. He also says that he has been running a pair of our make of wheels for 10 years, and the tires have never been loose enough to crack sand yet. A. G. Cox MFG. Co.

Attractive Display.

The fall and winter opening at the big store of H. M. Hardee is in progress today and will continue tomorrow. The stores are beautifully decorated with the season's new goods, the colors and styles being brought out with marked effect. It is an elegant display and is being admired by many visitors.

W. C. NELSON ON TRIAL.

For the Killing W. N. M. Hammond

The grand jury first found a true bill for murder against W. C. Nelson for the killing of W. N. M. Hammond at Bethel, last April. Afterwards another bill was sent before them on which they returned a true bill for murder in second degree. This morning the trial began under the latter bill.

The following were selected as the jury on the case: T. C. Moore, Wyatt Meeks, Henry Lewis, Richard Corbett, B. J. Skinner, W. Harvey Allen, Noah Forbes, R. R. Jackson, W. T. Mason, T. H. Fleming, Joseph Ross and S. C. Whichard.

Solicitor Moore is assisted in the prosecution by Swift Galloway and C. B. Aycock and the defendant is represented by Skinner & Whedbee and F. G. James.

The State examined three witnesses and rested its case, and the defense had examined one witness before court took a recess for dinner.

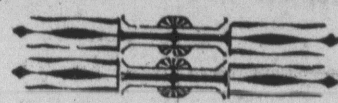

Closing at Washington.

One of the most interesting and pathetic sermons we have heard in a long time we listened to yesterday morning, and was delivered by Rev. J. N. Booth at the Baptist church, the occasion being the closing sermon of his faithful pastorate. The way this good man referred to his labors the last two years, and of the tender chords that bound him to the people of Washington that was now about to be served, was indeed touching, and the sweet memories that would ever hang around the two years that he had labored here, brought tears to many of his hearers. Mr. Booth will leave for his new home in Greenville Wednesday, and will carry with him the love and esteem of our entire people.—Washington Messenger.

Rev. Mr. Booth reached Greenville today and will begin his pastorate of the Baptist church here next Sunday.

January cotton futures today opened at 6.74 and closed at 6.84.

NAGGING COLLECTORS.

"The habit of nagging collectors" is the title of a courageous and timely editorial from the Petersburg Index-Appeal, which we deem worthy of reproduction in full. It is a practical presentation of a matter that concerns every business man, and should set him to thinking in future. Not only do men in every walk of life criticise and treat rudely an agent or employe who is merely discharging an honorable duty for which he is employed, but in most cases the nagging individual would not dare to talk so rudely or disagreeably to the principal. If he did he might forfeit his credit with the firm and lose business standing in other ways. It is not only rude, but it is cowardly to abuse a young man who has merely courteously presented a bill. Another childish, disgraceable habit of some people to whom a bill is presented is to find fault with the goods purchased, not to the dealer from whom they were bought, but the collector. One would suppose that the obligation was on the side of the merchant presenting the bill, judging by the conduct of the creditor. The Index-Appeal in its editorial, which we commend to all, says:

"That vicious habit of nagging collectors who present bills for settlement is much more prevalent in the business world than is generally supposed. There are some unfortunate individuals who seem to be incapable of paying a bill without indulging in some sneering and offensive remark, not always directed at the collector personally, but nevertheless offensive because intended for his principal in a mild sort of back-biting fashion. The habit is not always the evidence of ill-breeding, or low breeding, or of inherently depraved nature. Some very good men are often guilty of it, led into it by thoughtlessness and the force of example, but often betrayed into it by irritability over some other matter that has vexed them. This latter cause is evidence of a deplorable infirmity of character, and no man should engage in business who has not self control enough to deal with every question on its own merits, and not to vent his spleen on one person to gratify his resentment against another. Such men will never succeed, and their efforts will only bring them an ante-past of hell on the earth with a fruition of it perhaps hereafter.

"Collectors are a very important part of the complicated mechanism of business. They are generally young men who are making their debut upon the stage of life. They have come into the business world from a social atmosphere of refinement and courtesy, and are naturally shocked and sometimes perverted by exhibitions of bearishness where they should find gentility and manliness. Their intuitions are as quick as their sensibilities, and they rarely fail to size men up for what they are worth. They are coming men of the mart, destined to be merchants, manufacturers, bankers, railroad managers and princes in other departments of the business world and they never forget the first impression you made on them and that first impression may cost you many a good turn before you go over to the great majority.

"Now there is another thing that should be remembered in this connection. The man that pays the collector's bill is the man that has received the favor. According to any proper rule of business ethics, or common justice, he should have carried the money himself or sent it to his creditor. But when the creditor sends a polite and well-dressed young man to collect the bill, especially after he has previously delivered the goods at the debtor's door, it would seem to be a matter of the highest obligation on the debtor's part to put his heel firmly on whatever of the yaller dog that may be tugging at his nature, and to treat the young gentleman who is doing him the favor to bring his account to him with marked consideration and respect. It is good policy, present and prospective to do so. If you have a grievance, real or fancied, and if you must make an exhibition of yourself, go and see the boss and have it out with him. Maybe he is the same sort of fellow you are, and then will Greek meet Greek. But remember that the collector is a gentleman, and deserves consideration as such."—Danville Va. Register.

The rapid exhaustion of the timber supplies of this country has induced a large number of land owners to plant trees for profit, just as they would any other crop. The disappearance of good oak since that wood became so fashionable for finishings, furniture and other purposes suggests the planting of acorns wherever the land is adapted to the purpose, and is not wanted for a more immediate crop. Oak trees, where the land is not too valuable, promise to yield a good return on the investment. As the rate of interest goes down it is possible to figure out a profit in wood farming, where it was once out of the question. Prices of all kinds of hard woods are bound to advance as the supplies are becoming more and more remote from the markets every year.—Danville Farrago.

Coming to Their Senses.

It is to be regretted that the disqualification of ignorant voters which Southern States like Mississippi, South Carolina and Louisiana have been compelled to adopt in self protection should not be adopted in every Northern States. It would offer a solution of many difficulties that beset State and municipal government, and at the same time smooth the way to a satisfactory readjustment of the basis of representation in Congress. There seems to be no other means of repairing the terrible mistake that was made when the ballot was thrust into the hands of the negro, thus suddenly leveling the quality of American citizenship by the unnecessary intrusion of a baser element.—Philadelphia Record.

An exchange truly says: Factories build up towns, towns create markets for the farmers' products, convenient markets mean greater prosperity for the farmers. Let us have more factories.

The Merchant Who Does Things

Disraeli, who was well versed in human nature, said that "success is the child of audacity." The aphorism is entirely correct. Only the individual who does things succeeds. This fact is notably true in the business world. The successful merchant must necessarily exhibit a certain degree of audacity. In the matter of his advertising, for instance, if he show dash and enterprise he may be sure that he will attract the attention of the public. There is undoubtedly the element of audacity in the make-up of the tradesman who exploits his wares before the public in extensive advertising in a really popular and influential newspaper; but the results of his enterprise prove that his audacity brings him profit, and, therefore success.—Philadelphia Record.

According to French law an unsuccessful defendant must pay the costs in criminal as well as in civil actions; accordingly Capt. Dreyfus will be amerced in the sum of $6,000 to pay the Judges who condemned him. Justice is without price, but injustice comes high in France.—Philadelphia Record.

"Blues" The Common Fate of All

"If we call the roll of the great teachers of this generation we discern that not one but has had his hours of depression when his reform has seemed failure, and weary of strife, he has asked God to take away his life," writes Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, D. D., of "An Outlook upon the Victory of Optimism" in the October Ladies Home Journal. "Carlyle enters into gloom saying 'I shall die leaving no man the better for the living.' Spencer, too, in the saddest pieces of writing our generation has seen, affirmed that he had failed to influence his generation, since a philosopher has done little for a man who simply shows him what is right; while Ruskin, like Elijah, bitterly and passionately prays for the end of his career. But in retrospect we now see that in his depressed hour the prophet stood in a golden haze of glory that veiled the future fame and victory. So far from forgetting Turner, England has consecrated the noblest room in her gallery to that man who was the great master of orchestral effects in color. If the sense of failure once choked Ruskin's heart, now we see all economic teachers are writing their philosophy under the influence of his Christian spirit. If Carlyle and Spencer once felt that they looked out upon wild tracts of savagery, ignorance and vice, it is given us to see afar off, like some nebula just swinging into sight, the vision of a new era for man: an era of wisdom and justice and love."

Little Miss Mamie Ruth Tunstall has had fever for two weeks. There is yet no signs of improvement in her condition.

Dewey and His Yellow Shoes.

When russet shoes of a bright yellow hue were introduced, Dewey wore the first pair that was seen in Washington. They at once became the subject of jest of all the officers of the Navy Department.

Early in the afternoon one of Dewey's feet began to swell, and his suffering from his new shoes was acute. In an interval between the call of friends who were still "running" him on his shoes, the Commodore sought his chief clerk's room. He walked with a limp, and finally loosened the strings, to relieve his feet.

"I suppose I can't take these things off now," he remarked with a bitter smile, "for those fellows'll think they have driven me to it."

And for hours the Commodore sat at his desk in perfect torture. —October Ladies' Home Journal.

Lack of Courage.

The number of men who fail on account of lack of courage is enormous. The number who would refuse to let go of a dollar if they know positively that it would bring back two is astonishing. Such men merely exist. They never really amount to anything.

The men who win are the men who think out the right course to pursue, and then back up their convictions with their last penny and their last ounce of energy. The first goods John Wanamaker ever sold brought him $35. He delivered his goods in a wheelbarrow. He collected the $35 and went directly to a newspaper office and planked it down for advertising space.

Some men would have spent $1.50 for some cheap dodgers and "saved" the rest. They would have been wheelbarrow merchants today.

The big papers are just now presenting lists of the richest men in the world, and people are reading them in amazement.

We never trembled yet, when we saw a millionaire coming, and never intend to, and we do not propose to ever allow a man to crowd us off the sidewalk just because he has money. It is to be regretted that parents teach their children to stand in awe of wealth. Better teach them that virtue, sobriety and honesty beats wealth ten to one—but parents are not built that way these days.—Danville Bee.

Need of Good Roads.

Far sighted men in every part of the country are at length waking up to the importance of good roads and are doing everything in their power to convince the country that good roads must be constructed before national progress can be marked. Hence, in justice to the interests of the farmers, who are directly and immediately affected, it is of the utmost importance that good roads should be made the burden of thoughtful consideration in every State in the Union—Atlanta Constitution.

The first days enrollment numbered more than 70 boarding pupils and this promises to be the most successful of any previous year. An addition of forty rooms to the building is being pushed with all possible diligence. This addition, when completed, will give the building three imposing towers and will make it one of the handsomest college buildings in the State.
