WINTERVILLE DEPARTMENT.

NEWSY HAPPENINGS AND BUSINESS NOTES.

WINTERVILLE, Oct. 11, '99
The town ordered half dozen more street lamps last night.

J. R. Cooper has had a chill and has not been able to work for several days.

Mrs. W. J. Mumford, of near Ayden, came to town last night and stopped with her sister, Mrs. F. O. Cox.

Some half dozen carpenters are rapidly pushing work on the Hunsucker Carriage Factory, and it will soon be completed.

John Z. Brooks, of Grifton, was over here yesterday, traded horses and bought over $300 worth of wire fencing.

We are glad to state that Mrs. A. G. Cox, who has been quite sick for several days and confined to her room, is very much better.

Do you want land? If so how much, and where do you want it? You can get it of A. G. Cox in and around Winterville on very reasonable terms.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE.

Our Furniture
Will please you sure.
If you don't need that,
Get clothes, shoes, or hat.
Or at the very last hour,
You'll get a barrel of flour.

B. F. MANNING & Co.

The meeting closed here Saturday night with several professions and a general interest. The gospel was preached with great power and simplicity, and we are very hopeful for future good results.

ROLLING STOCK.

The Rail Road Co. has a great deal of rolling stock, but the great trouble with us is that it rolls away as fast as we can make it, and cannot get any ahead. However we have a two-horse, and one-horse wagon, and several carts ready for sale at this time.

A. G. COX MFG. CO.

The Meeting.

Rev. J. N. Booth made a very interesting talk in the Baptist church, last night, on the three parables, the lost sheep, the lost coin and the prodigal son. He showed from the successive parables the increasing anxiety of God for the saving of the sinner.

Services again tonight at 7:30 o'clock. All who can should attend. Subject "The Sin of Neglect."

High Honey.

We have heard the expression in court vernacular, "justice tempered with mercy," but we have never heard before of the temple of justice being sweetened with honey. A swarm of bees have taken possession of the top of the tower to the Court House and seem to be working away up there as industriously as if they were in a hive. There may be honey in it, but just how to take it is the question.

Would Help the Farmers.

The farmers of the county would do well to interest themselves in a cotton factory and stir the town folks up to getting one established. A cotton factory in Greenville would mean an increased price on every bale of cotton sold here. We notice that those towns which have the factories are paying from half cent to a cent a pound more for cotton than is paid in the towns which have no factories.

Soon Lost.

The advertiser must keep the fact in mind that it is very easy to fall out of the procession and get lost. Let any man retire to some place and keep his friends in ignorance of his whereabouts, and within three months they will have ceased to think of him or speak of him.—Kinston Free Press.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER, 11, 1899

A few years ago when our neighbor town, Kinston, was so stricken by fire, the office of the Free Press was destroyed. In order to start his paper on a good footing again Editor W. S. Herbert had to have some assistance, and to secure this a stock company was formed, shares being taken by business men of the town. He went earnestly to work once more and in the last issue of his paper announced that the stock company was no longer in existence, he having taken up all the outstanding stock and being again in entire control and ownership of the paper. THE REFLECTOR rejoices with the Free Press in its success. Editor Herbert richly deserves all the prosperity with which he has met.

The State Auditor has made estimates as to the State pension roll for this year, showing a decrease of nine first-class pensioners; an increase of 73 second-class; an increase of 126 third-class; and increase of 279 fourth-class; a decrease of twelve widows. Total increase 478; total decrease 21; net increase 457. Of this 316 are placed on the roll by the acts of the last Legislature. The amount realized for the pension fund during the year is $122,000, of which $119,000 will be available. This will be distributed among 121 first-class, 341 second-class, 519 third-class, 2,234 fourth-class; 2,674 widows; total 5,889. The amount apportioned will be first-class $64; second, $49; third, $32; fourth, $16; widows, $16.

The Increase of Factories.

The indirect benefit of the increase of factories in North Carolina is not yet appreciated. Some have even so concerned themselves with the "factory problem" that they are unable to be glad for the increase of industrial population. That there is a problem is not deniable; but that it is of such importance as to bid us falter in our encouragement of industrial activity in this respect, only one who has not thought into the subject will hold. Any one who appreciates the changes for the better already wrought by the increase of factories will gladly welcome all the problems that a thousand more will bring in their train. For many years the population of our State has been ruinously out of balance; our producers of raw material have so far outnumbered our manufacturers and consumers that farming has ceased to be remunerative, and population engaged in that sphere has not only become discontented, but in some degree desperate of advancement. Now the factories will tend to balance the population and adjust supply and demand. They offer employment to the surplus labor in the fields; they have already become the source of support for large numbers. And in so doing, they also create a consuming class, the class dependant upon the produce of the farms—not only calling for their cotton to manufacture, but also making requisition upon their wheat and corn fields, their stock, and their truck. Farmers who live in the vicinity of factories find a readier market for their produce, and the acres once wholly given to cotton are employed more profitably. Immediately farming becomes more attractive; land goes up; labor is in demand. So then the increase of factories of all kinds is a blessing upon our whole State.—Biblical Recorder.

The Business Unsafe.

When the cotton market is on a steady rise or fall it is a great temptation to make a little deal in futures. But as a rule the thing to do in regard to "futures" is don't. Many, many men have gone to the wall by gambling in futures who would have made at least a good living by putting their money in some unquestionable business. Dealing in futures is not considered safe by the most successful business men and it is, to say the least of it, questionable from a moral standpoint. Almost every newspaper contains accounts of some poor fellow who has gone to the bad because he gambled in futures. Occasionally fortunes are made by dealing in futures, but the man who pins his business faith to a bucket shop almost invariably comes out the loser. If the dealer in futures is successful for a while he does not know how to let well enough alone, but he keeps on and on until the scales turn against him and the history of gamblers in futures is that they pursue their bad luck to the penniless end. Don't be allured by the fascinations of quick money by dealing in futures. You may think that you are, to use an expression of the bucket shop, "on the ground floor," but some fine morning you will wake up and find that while you were on the ground floor there was a rascal in the cellar and your fond anticipations of quickly made cash have gone to where the woodbine twine and the whangdoodle mourneth for its first born.—Monroe Enquirer.

"Arms and the Man."

A man applied to the college for a coat of arms, says a writer in the Cornhill Magazine, and was asked if any of his ancestors had been renowned for any singular achievements. The man paused and considered, but could recollect nothing.

"Your father," said the herald, aiding his memory, "your grandfather, your great-grandfather?"

"No," returned the applicant, "I never knew that I had a great-grandfather or a grandfather."

"Of yourself?" asked this creator of dignity.

"I know nothing remarkable of myself," returned the man, "only that being once locked up in Ludgate prison for debt I found means to escape from an upper window, and that, you know, is no honor in a man's scutcheon."

"And how did you get down?" said the herald.

"Odd enough," retorted the man. "I procured a cord, fixed it round the neck of the statue of King Lud, on the outside of the building, and thus let myself down."

"I have it," said the herald. "No honor! Lineally descended from King Lud! And his coat of arms will do for you."

French Comfort.

In the best hotel in Paris one gets luxury, comfort and even splendor, but never one's cards or notes, according to Harper's Bazar. There is a fatal gulf for these. One is a number, not an individuality. The table is, however, very luxurious. It is a clean and well ordered caravansary. As for the comfort of warmth in winter, they do not know the meaning of the word. We are justly accused of exaggerating the heat of our rooms in America; the furnace is denounced; but after freezing to death in Paris, one of the coldest of cities, very far north, one returns willingly to the heated rooms of America.

We exaggerate the excellence of the French bed. There is no such thing in France as that comfortable, broad, low thing which we call a French bed. A high, hard, narrow shelf is the apology for it.

We exaggerate our comforts by having gas in our sleeping rooms and hot and cold water in our stationary wash-bowls and bathrooms. They never exaggerate comfort in France. You have as many candles as you will pay for, and no bath, unless you order it, when men laboriously bring you a tub filled with hot or cold water, and take it away after you have bathed.

We exaggerate very much the supposed good living in France. To go to a hotel in Paris to live we must expect out of the season very little good food, very little that is sustaining and nourishing. It is "all sauce." There are no good joints of mutton, no good American desserts. This is an especial discomfort to the sick, who never get good toast, good custard, good tapioca pudding, nor oysters that they like.

A Curious Looking Egg.

A shark's egg is one of the most odd looking things imaginable and has no more resemblance to an egg, strictly speaking, than it has to a paving stone. In one variety it is pillow shaped and has a long "horn," or "feeler," at each corner. It is about two inches long and the color almost pure black.

It is unprovided with shell, as we understand that word, but the contents are protected by a thick, leathery covering, which has almost as much elasticity about it as a covering of rubber would have.

The "feelers" mentioned catch hold of and wind themselves around pieces of seaweed and other floating objects and hang until the egg is hatched.

One variety of the shark lays 18 eggs during the month of April. These float about until early in December, when the little sharks emerge.
