AROUND THE BOARD.

Supper of The Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade.

At 9 o'clock Thursday night those who had been favored with an invitation assembled at the factory of B. E. Parham & Co., to partake of the supper given by the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade. The Osceola Band was on hand and the guests were greeted with delightful music as they arrived.

At 9:30 supper was announced and the guests were ushered into room occupied by well arranged and heavily laden tables. There were spreads for one hundred.

The bill of fare consisted of quail on toast, turkey and ham sandwiches, steamed oysters, and celery. For an hour they lingered around the board and full justice was done to the toothsome repast.

After the supper many of the gathering lingered for sometime to make merry and listen to the strains of music. "Dixie" did not fail to fill the building with a shout.

It was an occasion that all enjoyed and they are indebted to the Tobacco Board of Trade. The committee of arrangements were Messrs W. T. Lipscomb, B. E. Parham and H. P. Strause and they performed their duties well.

Many of the tobacco men go away to spend the holidays and they have the best wishes of all for a merry Christmas.

CHANGE IN STEAMER SCHEDULE.

Daily Trips Between Washington and Greenville.

Beginning January 1st the Old Dominion Steamship Co. will run a new schedule on its Tar river service. The steamer Myers will make daily trips (except Sunday) between Washington and Greenville, leaving Washington at 6 A. M., and leaving Greenville at 2 P. M., returning to Washington. This steamer will carry both passengers and freight.

The steamer Edgecombe will take the run between Greenville and Tarboro, the schedule having to depend somewhat on the stage of the water. This steamer will carry freight only.

The daily trips between Washington and Greenville will be a great convenience to shippers and travelers by water.

If talk is cheap, how can the lawyers make a living?

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

Nice Things Said of The Reflector.

THE REFLECTOR warmly appreciates the place it holds in the estimation of the brethren of the State press. Many of them have recently had some very nice things to say, and that the people at home may know how the paper they support is regarded elsewhere, we print below what two of the papers say:

The Greenville DAILY REFLECTOR, that reflects the growth, business and prosperity of its town, has reached its fifth year, and glides on with sails full of favorable winds, and an air of growth and cheer. We are glad to hear of its success. Brother D. J. Whichard is a conscientious editor and he is serving his people well. We hope they will appreciate his efforts to such an extent that next year his business will be doubled, and his REFLECTOR be the biggest kind of a journalistic mirror.—Durham Sun.

The Greenville DAILY REFLECTOR has reached its fifth year. And it has not only lived but prospered. There is no more hard-working, conscientious editor than D. J. Whichard and he has served his people faithfully and well. That they appreciate his work is shown by the number and amount of advertisements of its business men carried and the circulation it enjoys. May favoring winds continue to fill Brother Whichard's journalistic sails and the coming years deal still more kindly with him.—Henderson Gold Leaf.

The homely girl always consoles herself with the belief that she is intellectual.

This Stumped Us.

An editor is usually expected to be a walking encyclopedia and ready to give information about anything that may come up. But if a Boston firm hasn't stumped us we were never stumped. The information this firm asked for read as follows: "Give us the names of two or more of your hotels especially adapted to cater to the needs of the better class of commercial business."

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1899,

Statistics of Human Life.

Statistical scientists will not let us alone. Everything we do or say is submitted to the closet analysis; and the figures emerge full of warning and reproach.

The newest tabulation of our doings comes from the workshop of M. Alfred Arkas, who is minuteness itself. He has worked out first, an approximate calculation of the number of words the normal man utters in the course of a year.

Ignorant or cultured, playing on the miner's vocabulary of two hundred words or on the university professor's thesaurus of many thousands, it appears that we let fall 11,800,000 words between January and December.

Every year we shake hands about one thousand two hundred times, expending on the ceremony a force sufficient to raise a locomotive weighing eighty tons. The raising of our eyelids is accomplished ninety four million six hundred thousand times per year, and represents the consumption of energy capable of lifting a weight of fifty pounds.

Turning to the division of our time, it is found that a normal man living 70 years has spent no less than 24 years nine months and fifteen days asleep; and eleven years and eight months at work. His recreation has occupied exactly the same length of time as his work.

He has passed five years and ten months in moving about and the same space of time in the operation of feeding. His toilet has occupied two years and eleven months. Two years and eleven months, also, pass in doing nothing in little things that are not easily classed.

The surprise is the estimate that a man passed exactly the same time in thinking as in speaking—one year five months and a half. Which gives one a new idea of the value that ought to be attached to every man's utterances.—Collier's Weekly.

The Amount of Paper Used.

Interesting statistics of the production of paper in the United States have been compiled by the department of labor at Washington. It appears that this country uses annually more than $100,000,000 worth of paper, or an aggregate of 4,000 million pounds. A little less than a third of this is used by the newspapers. The wrapping paper amounts to about two-thirds as much as the newspapers and almost half as much is used to manufacture books as to print newspapers. The production of the various kinds of paper boards amounts to over 300,000 tons annually, or more than half the production of news paper. Builders use 60,000 tons of paper not including the 45,000 tons of wall paper produced annually. About half of all the paper is produced in the States of New York, Massachusetts and Maine, though there are sixteen other States that produce large quantities, and twenty-seven other States report some paper produced. Paper is one of the emblems of civilization. The amount of paper used is a test of the progress of a nation. There is no other country in the world where so much paper per capita is used as in the United States. The circulation of newspapers and magazines is greater here than in any other part of the earth, more books are read, more stationary used in correspondence and more in the other ways in which paper adds to the convenience and the pleasure of man.—Kansas City (Mo.) Star.

There Was Sorrow There.

The Colonel halted his horse in front of a Dakota dugout and uttered a vigorous "Hello!" and after a minute a tow-headed girl of about sixteen years of age showed up and looked over and said:

"Now, then, what ye whoopin' for and who be ye?"

"Can I get anything to eat here?"

"Not a thing."

"Any water for my horse?"

"The spring's gone dry."

"How far is it to the river?"

"Dunno."

"Please ask your father to step out."

"Pop's been on a drunk for a week."

"And your mother?"

"She's got the toothache. That's her crying."

"Haven't you got a brother?"

"Yep, but he got snakebit yesterday and don't feel well."

Well, what about you?" persisted the Colonel. "You seem to be all right."

"Oh, but I ain't," she replied as she made ready to disappear. "I was to git married yesterday, but my feller got shot by an Injin, and it'll take two weeks to ketch on to another. This ar' a house of sorrow, sir, and you will please to ride on and not ask any more fool questions!"—New York Sun.
