A Suspect Arrested.

On Wednesday Chief of Police James arrested a colored man named Joe May. Since the robbery of Mr. Laughinghouse last week this man has been under suspicion and has been shadowed. When he was arrested Mr. Laughinghouse was telephoned for to come to Greenville and see if he could recognize him.

Mr. Laughinghouse arrived here in the afternoon and said the man's appearance corresponded perfectly to one of those who assailed and robbed him. When searched May had a copy of THE DAILY REFLECTOR of the 19th hid in the lining of his coat. From Mr. Laughinghouse's statement the man was placed in jail to await further developments.

No, Maude, dear, the old clothes man doesn't sing in rag time.

Success in Advertising.

A dollar expended in judicious advertising is not only a dollar saved, but one that will bring back many others. But to be most profitable the merchant's business announcement must be displayed where it will have the greatest number of readers; for success in advertising depends upon the degree of publicity obtained by the advertiser.—Philadelphia Record.

The Negro in the Courts.

Under this caption Rev. L. E. Fairley, editor of the Cape Fear Enterprise, a negro paper published at Fayetteville, gives the negro some wholesome advice and states some plain facts as to why the negro figures so conspicuously in the Criminal Courts. We quote from this article:

This phase of the negro question presents an inviting picture to look upon—the prominent and conspicuous way in which the negro figures in the courts of the South. Very seldom a Sabbath passes but several negro men and women are brought before the Mayor's or some magistrate's court for rowdyism, disturbance of the peace or misdemeanor of some kind.

The idea that the negro is always taken advantage of in the courts of the south is fast being exploded, and the fact that many of our race go to the jails, chain gangs and penitentiary is because they get justice.

The Irishman saw the point when the Judge said, 'You shall have justice. Faith and by Christ, said Pat that's what I don't want. We must learn to respect cherish and vindicate the majesty and dignity of the law and order of the community with a sacredness next to our religion. Indeed, the observance of law and respect for those in authority are evidences of genuine religion.'

Another reason for the plentifulness of the colored brother in legal process is due to his want of ability to arbitrate and compromise small and petty affairs and offenses which might be settled by him. Some time the magistrates insist upon compromise, but to no effect with some of the people.

The remedy: commit less of the crime and your presence will be less in demand in the court. Shun the very appearances of evil. Avoid conditions which even implicate or show you in any way an accessory to crime and vice.

Editor Fairley is a Presbyterian preacher and an ex-superintendent of the Fayetteville negro normal school. His plain condemnation of his own race evinces a race loyalty which is not measured by the hurrahs and "go it brother" of the negro rabble. The negro must be uplifted morally as well as educationally if he is ever able to govern himself, much less others.—North Carolina Baptist.

Lagging Behind.

There is hardly a town of consequence in the State that is not pushing ahead in the direction of securing factories. Yet Greenville seems content to stand still and be inactive on such important matters.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1900.

A resolution was passed by the United States Senate a few days ago appropriating $5,000 for the erection of a monument to Gens. Nash and Davidson, of Revolutionary fame. It is said this monument will probably be erected at Davidson.

The street car conductors in Boston are notoriously polite, but passengers are not always grateful for courtesies extended to them. The other day a man asked a conductor to "help him on with his coat," and while the obliging official was holding the garment his pockets were rifled by the passenger. Fortunately the pickpocket was detected and jailed.

A New York dairyman who retails milk and cream in bottles says that his customers steal thousands of the vessels every year as depositories for jam and similar delicacies, and the petty thefts cost him in the aggregate many hundreds of dollars. He has offered $500 to be distributed among the ten drivers who shall succeed in collecting the greatest number of bottles in proportion to the number which each shall distribute during this year.

Daniel's Experiment

Frank Daniels made an experiment at Wallack's, New York, calculated to set at rest all arguments as to the most valuable form of advertising. Speaking of it, the comedian said:

"We concluded to test the thing by the only reliable means, so that night, between the acts, ushers distributed among the audience slips with a brief printed statement setting forth the disputed question and politely asking the recipient to indicate by a check mark in the list of various advertising forms employed, what had attracted him to the performance—the ad in the newspapers, billboards, window lithographs, or something else? The people seemed to take kindly to the idea and the response was liberal. Eleven hundred slips were handed to the ushers after the next curtain, and of that number nine hundred and ninety-one had been attracted by the newspapers solely. Henceforth," the comedian concluded, "the newspapers will get ten-elevenths of all the money set aside for advertising purposes."—Philadelphia (Pa.) Inquirer.

WHY FERTILIZERS HAVE ADVANCED.

Investigation by Agricultural Department.

SHOWS RAW MATERIALS HAVE ADVANCED EVEN MORE THAN FERTILIZERS. THIS YEAR'S AND LAST YEAR'S PRICES. PHOSPHATE ROCK HAS ADVANCED $2.50 PER TON; COTTON SEED MEAL, $5.50; TANKAGE, $1.75; NITRATE OF SODA, $6.50; SULPHATE OF AMMONIA, $4.40; BLOOD, $4.32.

Raleigh News and Observer, Feb. 8, 1900.

For some time, in this and other States, the farmers have been protesting that a trust has put up unduly the price of fertilizers, and in some counties active steps have been taken to organize to fight the advance in prices. With a view to ascertaining the facts in the case the Agricultural department about three weeks ago began, through State Chemist Kilgore, to investigate as to the advance in the price of fertilizers and of the raw materials from which fertilizers are made. Numerous letters have been received both from fertilizer manufacturers and from brokers of the raw materials, and these have been compared with the statements of trade journals and with the prices of a year ago. Mr. Kilgore has done the work with much care and patience, and he and Commissionet Patterson feel that the data as given is accurate. They have found it to be a fact that the raw materials which the manufacturer has to buy have advanced quite as much proportionately as the price of fertilizers. The following statement given out yesterday embodies the results of Mr. Kilgore's investigation:

"Fertilizer factories are dependent upon the producers of raw materials for ingredients out of which to make fertilizers. These raw products fluctuate in price as other articles of commerce do. About three weeks ago this department requested the fertilizer factories doing business in the State to quote its prices on fertilizer materials and fertilizers to enable the department to answer the inquiries which come to it as to where and at what prices fertilizer and fertilizer materials are to be had, and also to enable the department to fix fair and reasonable values on the valuable ingredients of fertilizers. The average prices quoted by ten factories, together with the prices quoted one year ago, and the advance in these prices in January 1900, over those in January, 1899, are given below. The quotations are based on purchase for cash, in lots of five tons or less, free on board the cars at the factories.

The quoted prices of Fertilizer materials by fertilizer factories for last year and this year are as follows:

	January 1899	January 1900	Increase Per Ton	Per C. Increase
Acid Phosphate, 12 to 14 per cent	$10.09	$12.55	$2.46	24
Kainit, 12 per cent	11.14	12.89	1.75	15½
Muriate of Potash, 50 per cent	44.81	46.75	2.14	4.7
Sulphate of Potash, 50 per cent	50.00	50.80	.80	1.6
Cotton Seed Meal, 8½ per cent	19.25	23.80	4.55	23
Dried Blood, 16 per cent	38.07	44.14	6.07	15
Tankage, 9-10 per cent	25.10	26.02	.92	3.6
Fish Scrap, 10 per cent	26.00	28.21	2.21	8.5
Nitrate of Soda, 19 per cent	42.37	45.66	3.29	7.7
Sulphate of Ammonia, 25 per cent	59.66	66.43	6.77	11

"These prices show advances on all materials entering into fertilizers.

The question now is, have the manufacturers of fertilizers advanced the prices beyond what is justified by the increase in price of raw products? To get an idea of this a comparison of the most re-

	March April 1899	Jan.-Feb. 1900	Increase Per Ton	Per C. Increase
Phosphate rock at mine	$ 1.50	$ 3.50	$2.00	$1.33
Cotton Seed Meal	17.00	22.50	5.50	32
Dried Blood, 16 per cent	26.08	50.40	4.32	16½
Tankage, 9 per cent	14.75	16.50	1.75	11½
Fish Scrap	32.00	38.50	6.50	20
Nitrate of Soda, 19 per cent	54.00	58.40	4.40	8

These prices also show advances, rather more, in fact, than those on the same materials as shown in the prices of fertilizer factories.

It might be well to state that there are three classes of material entering into fertilizers: (1) Those furnishing phosphoric acid; (2) Those supplying potash; and (3) Those supplying ammonia. Acid phosphate is the main source of the first of these; approximately one half of the acid phosphate is phosphate rock which is mined in South Carolina, Florida, and Tennessee. The price of this has advanced about $2.00 per ton at the mines. The other half of acid phosphate comes from sulphuric acid. The materials used in making sulphuric acid, pyrites, and sulphur, have also advanced.

The supply of potash practically liable quotations of wholesale dealers in raw products for March and April, 1899 has been made with those for January, 1900. Quotations for January and February, 1899 were not accessible.

The quoted prices of fertilizer materials by broker and wholesale dealers are as follows:

	March April 1899	Jan.-Feb. 1900	Increase Per Ton	Per C. Increase
Phosphate rock at mine	$ 1.50	$ 3.50	$2.00	$1.33
Cotton Seed Meal	17.00	22.50	5.50	32
Dried Blood, 16 per cent	26.08	50.40	4.32	16½
Tankage, 9 per cent	14.75	16.50	1.75	11½
Fish Scrap	32.00	38.50	6.50	20
Nitrate of Soda, 19 per cent	54.00	58.40	4.40	8

all comes from Germany in what is known as potash salts, as kianit, muriate of potash, and sulphate of potash. The prices of these have not increased for this season's supply, as contracts are made a year ahead for these materials, though ocean freights have advanced considerably, and if they had to be bought now they would cost more.

The supply of ammonia comes from cotton seed meal, which is the product of the cotton-seed oil mills; dried blood and tankage, which are products of the slaughter and packing establishments of the north-west; fish scrap, which comes from and fish packing establishments, oil nitrate of soda, which is mined in South America; and sulphate of ammonia, the supply of which comes from both this and foreign countries.

A Pathetic Story of a Boy's Heroism.

The Anglo-Saxon, of Rockingham in its issue of last week, told in a few lines a story that is enough to thrill the coldest and most unfeeling heart. It was about a little hero, albeit a child of tender years.

It ran this way: Not far from Hamlet, in Richmond county, a family of children were left alone the parents having gone to a neighbor's, two or three miles distant, to spend the day. About noon they set about to prepare their dinner and the clothing of the 15-months-old baby took fire. The eldest child, a lad of 9 years, went to the relief of the baby with no thought or care for himself. Fiercely the battle raged, as with bare hands the child tried to beat back the flames.

A little 7 year-old girl was thoughtful enough to run to the spring for a bucket of water which she threw on the two children and extinguished the fire, but she was too late. However, unheeding his own torture, the brave and faithful lad gently removed the rags from the baby's body and replaced them with cool, clean cloths, then clasped the little sufferer in his arms and started for his father and mother.

A neighbor happening along took them all up in his wagon and carried them to their destination. At 10 o'clock that night the baby died and the boy now relieved of his responsibility, yielded to his own pain and the physician, after an examination, shook his head and declared that his recovery was impossible.

That was all. But what a record!

No trumpet sounds his praise, but what hero on any field ever surpassed in moral grandeur the long, brave struggle of this little boy to shield and save the baby? It makes one think better of the race to see in this unlettered child so high and holy an example of fidelity.

We pray that God may spare the boy's life. He has in him the elements of the highest and the noblest manhood; but if his time has come may he meet in the better land the baby for whose sake he laid down his life.—Charity and Children.

Say Nice Things.

We do not like to be told of our faults.

We do not want to hear references to occasions when we appeared at a disadvantage. Yet we deplore the prevalence of flattery. We make all manner of fun of our friends who display a weakness for that social pest. And yet there are few of us who, if the flattery be not too freely administered, as "with a shovel," do not imbibe it greedily and pine for more.

Every one remembers the anecdote of Dr. Holmes when he was enthusiastically applauded and to a somewhat exaggerated length.

"Don't you get awfully tired of this sort of thing, Dr. Holmes?"

"Not at all," said the dear old man, frankly. "They never clap quite hard or long enough to please me. I presume that I could stand it for hours."

—Montreal Herald.

Boys to Lead.

"You remember young Carpley, who used to have an ambition to be an actor, don't you?"

"Yes."

"Well, he's playing a leading role now."

"You don't say so! By George, I never thought he had it in him!"

"He's with an 'Uncle Tom' company and leads the bloodhounds in the street procession."

—Chicago Times-Herald.

One Grateful Descendant.

"This," said the guide, "is the grave of Adam!"

"Historic spot! With reverential awe—my, with a feeling of deep thankfulness, the wealthy merchant tailor on his first trip to the orient drew near and cast a flower on the tomb."

"Erring ancestor," he murmured, "I should be the last man on earth to revile your memory. To your sin I owe my prosperity."—Chicago Tribune.

Subtleties of Phrase.

"Do you think your new production is in for a long run?" asked the friend.

"It is impossible to state at this early day," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes. "The members of our company are still in doubt as to whether they are in for a long run or a long walk."—Washington Star.

A Master of Silence.

Among the few who have a perfect genius for silence is a certain well known artist whose reticence is the amusement and wonder of all who know him.

A friend who had dropped into his studio one day was vainly endeavoring to draw Mr. H. into conversation, when the artist's brother appeared in the doorway.

"Hello, Tom!" said the brother.

"Hello, John!" returned Tom, looking up from his easel with a smile.

John wandered about the room for 15 minutes, turned over his brother's latest work and then, going toward the door, stopped long enough to say, "Well, goodbye, Tom."

"Goodby, John," was the hearty rejoinder.

Tom painted on for some minutes, and then in an unwonted burst of confidence he said warmly to his amused friend:

"I tell you, I was glad to see John! Haven't seen him before for a month!"—London Answers.
