Happenings in North Carolina

Some republicans are speaking of Richmond Pearson as their party's nominee for Governor.

Charlotte Presbyterians have completed their $50,000 subscription to build a female college.

Northern men are still buying up great quantities of North Carolina land. If it goes on a few of them will own the State.

Mr. John E. Lennon, of Lennon's Cross Roads Church died January 23, 1900, aged 93 years and six months.—Whiteville News.

Dr. J. C. Kilgo, president of Trinity College, has gone to Texas to lecture in the interest of the twentieth century movement. He will be gone three weeks and will deliver fifteen lectures.

There have been more people killed by trains in Durham during the last year than have died in the whole State from smallpox. This suggests that we had better quarantine against the rail roads.—Durham Herald.

The negroes have decided to hold a big industrial and educational exposition in Piedmont park at Winston, August 20th to 25th. Booker Washington, the noted educational orator of Alabama, will be invited to make the opening address.

We are surging ahead in the line of industrial progress. A knitting factory, with a capacity of 500 dozen pairs of hose per day, and to give employment to over 200 persons is under contract to be completed by the first of July.—Elizabeth City Economist.

All machinery for the Wells-Whitehead cigarette factory has arrived, and is being unloaded. This means that the factory will be at work in a very short while. The company is going to make things hum. Keep your eye on the work they will do.—Wilson News.

A suit was instituted at Raleigh Monday by Prof. Gerald McCarthy, against the board of trustees of the A. and M. college, asking for $1250, for balance claimed on salary as State botanist. He alleges that he was elected for a term of three years and then dismissed, without cause, before the expiration of his term.

In Guilford county a young man who was courting a young woman, was forbidden by her father to come on the premises. The girl's mother told him he was welcome, and he followed her advice. The angry father sued him for trespass. The mother signed his bond. The case was tried and the father lost, the magistrate holding that as husband and wife are one she had a right to invite the young man. An appeal was taken by the father to the superior court. The question will then be settled as to a wife's equal rights on the premises.

It is reported, and believed in army circles, that Anginaldo has escaped and is in Japan or China. If so our Governor General ought to be able to “police” the island with 65,000 troops and preserve order.—Morning Post.

FRIDAY, MARCH 2, 1900.

Is Mr. McKinley President or is he only Clerk of Congress? The above question was asked in the last issue of the Weekly Monitor:

Why he is president. If he is not president what is he?

Raleigh had a $30,000 fire on the 27th of February. The most destructive in several years. Water supply was miserably weak. The fire originated in Pogue's Tobacco warehouse from a defective flue and swept across the street and burned several buildings. There was $22,000 insurance.—Raleigh Post.

It is not an unusual occurrence to hear men and women discussing the war, going on now between Great Britain and the Transvaal Republic, and in most cases sympathy is expressed in favor of the Republic. In the Bookman for February is a very clear, and comprehensive discussion, of the causes which lead up to the conflict. The article is by Harry Thurston Peck, and carries at its head the inscription, "American Opinion On the South African War." It is evident where American sympathy lies now, but in this article the reader is taken over the pathway where American sympathy seems to have travelled, and the Boers by no means have had a monopoly on it.

The discussion is forcible and logical, full of facts concerning the causes of the war, and the deductions drawn therefrom, are reasonable and satisfying. One could not do better than spend an hour reading what the Bookman has to say.

Last Thursday evening two brothers, Bird and George Dowdle were digging a grave on Iotla in which to bury Mr. and Mrs. Joshua who died the day before. They were working with their backs turned toward each other when Bird in drawing back his maul struck George on the head with the axe part off it, chipping up a portion of the skull about the size of a silver dollar. He fell and was apparently dead for several minutes, but finally revived. Drs. Lyle and Rogers were called and dressed his wound, and he bids fair to recover.—Franklin Press.

The man who goes to church fairs must be prepared to take chances.

The recent collapse of several of the big trusts calls attention to the infernal, as well as external, difficulties harassing their career. Instead of forcing itself to the forefront of success, there is more than one on the verge of disintegration. Their troubles have all proceeded from natural causes. Chief among these has been the blunders made during the initial financing of the concerns. Nearly all of the more recent ones were organized on the theory that the public was both ignorant and gullible. The promoters calculated on finding a public only too hungry to swallow anything. A speculative fever, it was thought, had excited a popular desire to hold stock in some gigantic combination. As a result, everything was combined in order to feed the popular appetite. All kinds of projects were planned and then floated on an ocean of watered stock. People were duped, only to awaken later to their foolishness. This late awakening has generated the troubles which the trusts must meet. A popular disgust has finally developed into a popular hostility. Every legislative measure that is aimed against them is applauded by the people with enthusiastic ardor. Every competition that springs up against them is endorsed and supported by popular favor.

The people are joyous over the downfall of the Flour Trust, and they are very much elated over the Sugar Trust's embarrassments. Those delights will grow more expressive each time it is known that other trusts are entangled. What the people perceive is the concrete evil known as the trust. They know that it is odious and economically detrimental. As a consequence, they have declared an uncompromising warfare. The effects are already visible. New trusts are not half so easily formed. Old trusts are not so greatly feared. With each successive collapse faith will grow weaker in what still remains. In fact, popular sentiments has forced a reversal of the tendency. The trusts are losing rather than gaining strength. The threatening slavery which loomed over this land is likely to be averted, after all.—Baltimore American.

Denmark almost one third the size of North Carolina, with sterile soil and severe climate, exports $30,000,000 worth of butter every year. North Carolina, with its rich lands and genial climate, buys butter. But Denmark has universal education; public high schools for the sons and daughters of farmers are found at a rate which would put two or more in every county in North Carolina, while industrial and technical schools, public libraries and farmers' clubs are liberally supported and attended. Denmark knows on which side her bread is buttered and how to butter it. We have not yet learned the lesson—but we will sooner or later.

Charlotte special to Raleigh Post: Four hundred operatives in a ginghams mill fled from the building to escape vaccination. The operatives were expecting the vaccinating corps, so when Drs. Hawley and Strong and several policemen arrived the operatives fled helter skelter through the doors and windows, which had been left slightly open. Chief of Police Orr had stationed an officer at each door before entering but the operatives rushed over the police in their haste to escape. Only thirty persons remained in the mill to be vaccinated. Tonight the matter promises to be settled amicably.

The political ascendancy of the class who control the negro vote in the South has always, without a single exception, been characterized by scandal, corruption, speculation and the State's disgrace. The negro is a kind, docile creature but he is controlled by his passions and follows the leadership of those who will arouse and appeal to his lowest prejudices. He is a vicious partisan in politics. He looks upon one who quits the party ranks as a renegade and a deserter to be ostracised and persecuted. He will know no party distinction except color, and recognizes no principles except the passion of race against race. To make this numerical strength the basis of his political power is ruinous to the State. This power should be taken from him until he can learn to exercise it in the realization of the responsibilities of citizenship.—Locke Craig.

A High Point special to the Charlotte Observer says: A petition was handed the Snow Lumber company signed by the white operatives of the factory requesting that the negro men working with them in the shop be removed. They don't object to the negroes working on the yards, but refused to be "mixed up" with them in the shop. The company refused to grant the request, and at 3:30 o'clock some one blew the whistle and all the white hands walked out.

On Tuesday morning, Mr. Edmund Sykes, Cypress Creek township, ate a hearty breakfast, and with his son, went to his tobacco pack house to see after some tobacco. The son taking a turn of tobacco, went back to the dwelling house, and after a short time he returned to the pack house, when to his astonishment he found his father lying near the door of the pack house, dead. The deceased had complained several times of heart trouble—which no doubt caused his sudden death. Mr. Sykes was in his 78th year.—Louisburg Times.

The following interesting clippings are from the current numbers of the North Carolina Journal of Education: "In Switzerland the price of farm lands is from $600 to $1,600 an acre, and farming pays in spite of these high values. Switzerland has no pauper class no slums in the cities and no tramps. The roads are almost perfect, the streets are clean, and there is little need of police or soldiers. It is a country of universal education, and the best house in any city or town is the school house. Effect and cause.

Printing Firm Names. It's much more important to make plain the goods advertised than to bring out the firm name. If people are interested in the goods, they'll see the firm name—they'll make it a point to see it. Space is too valuable to be used up by printing firm names with the biggest type in the office.—Iron Age

Growing a Third Set of Teeth. Atlantic City has a new attribute to boast of. Phillip Toppin, a cigar dealer, 40 years old, has been suffering severe pains for some time for what was diagnosed by the attending physician as neuralgia. Yesterday the interesting discovery was made that he was cutting three teeth, his third set. Two of them are in the upper jaw and the other is a molar in the back of the mouth.—Philadelphia Record.

Now Governor of the Immense Territory of Alaska.

From street waif to governor—that is the life story of John G. Brady. As a boy he roamed the streets of New York until the Children's Aid society picked him up and sent him out west "to grow up with the country." He was adopted by a good family who, though poor, sent him to the district school, where he got a taste for education, and later worked his way through Yale college. Then went to New York, entered the Union Theological seminary, was graduated and became a Presbyterian minister. He decided to do missionary work in the west and went to Colorado and Idaho and then to Texas. Finally he settled in Alaska where he found a wide field. He plunged into the work of making that country better in a business and moral way, and went into politics so that he could do more for the people. Today he is the governor of that immense and little known territory and the head of Presbyterian church affairs in our great northwestern possessions. He is only one more example of what an American boy with grit and pluck has a chance to do.—Gastonia Gazette.

A Fortunate Mistake.

"There is a young man in Chicago," says a local physician, "who now has a good business and bright prospects who received his start in life by securing $4 that did not belong to him. I hardly know under what to class the incident of obtaining the money. I will let the story explain his actions."

"This young man arrived in Chicago one day without funds, but with plenty of nerve and push. He wanted money to secure a meal and pay his room rent until he could secure a position. Believing he could find some man who would help him if he told his story in a straightforward manner, he entered a cigar establishment in Dearborn street. He was about to explain his condition and ask for assistance until he could get a position when the proprietor looked up with a fierce scowl. He turned to his partner, and they held a consultation in a whisper for a few moments. 'Now, take this $4 and don't bother me about that bill again. That's all you will get, and now you can get out of this place in a hurry,' exclaimed the storekeeper.

"The young man was pushed toward the door with the money in his hand, and, try as he would, the storekeeper would not let him talk. Once in the street the bewildered fellow considered the matter in every detail and decided to keep the money. This he did, and a month or so later he again walked into the cigar store and told his story and returned the money."—Chicago News.

Mrs. J. B. White returned Thursday night from a visit to her parents near House's station.

Town Matters.

The Board of Aldermen met in the Mayor's office last night. Present Mayor J. G. Moye, Aldermen J. L. Wooten, W. R. Parker, J. N. Hart, J. S. Tunstall and J. B. White.

The street committee reported that the tiling for the gutter near the Presbyterian church have been secured and was being put in place.

Alderman White called the attention of the board to the branch running from tobacco town by the academy that there seems to be some obstruction there which should be removed.

Light committee reported that the city illuminations are in good condition.

Finance committee reported $1,500 in hands of Treasurer and Tax Collector and that the old Mayor's office had been repainted and turned over to Chief of Fire Department.

Alderman Wooten reported that the suit against the town for the payment of the old hand pump had been satisfactorily compromised.

Keep the People Informed.

In these days of universal newspaper reading the people look for something more in their journals than what is ordinarily spoken of as "news." Few things of every day life are more important to the whole public than the purchase and sale of commodities. The wise merchant will, therefore, tell them what he wants to sell. There is no better way to convey the desired information than by means of daily advertising. His store news doesn't come by telegraph, or over the city editor's desk, but it is news all the same.—Philadelphia Record.

Sheriff Jones of Wake County Loses His Suit.

The Mecklenburg Iron Works of Charlotte recently brought suit in the courts of Wake county against the Sheriff of Wake, H. T. Jones, to recover the sum of $500, the penalty attached for failure to levy on execution in judgment in favor of Mecklenburg Iron Works. The case was levied on last Wednesday and the verdict was against the Sheriff.

City of Charlotte Sued.

Charlotte, N. C., Feb. 28.—To day G. W. Helms entered suit against the city of Charlotte for one thousand dollars damages for false arrest. Helms, his wife and child were put in the station house when all were sick. They refused to be vaccinated.

J. L. Jackson has also had Chief of Police Orr and three officers arrested on a charge of assault. They forcibly vaccinated Jackson's daughter and a girl who was with her at the time.

Both these cases resulted from the vaccination regulations recently enforced by the city authorities.—Raleigh Post.
