NEWSY HAPPENINGS AND BUSINESS NOTES

WINTERVILLE, N. C., June 27.

As pigs are pretty hard to get, our committee has decided to take bobtailed ones rather than miss.

The wheat crop is a good one in this section, and here's the place to get it ground.

W. B. Nobles is quite sick.

A lot of Aycock hats just received by B. F. Manning & Co., but they are going like hot cakes.

One of the firm of Peele Bros. of Roxobel, stopped here last night.

Miss Ludie Haddock, of Redalia and Miss Daisy Munford, of Ayden, are visiting friends and relatives here.

We have several thousand fine cigars on hand. These besides being extra good have all the age that is necessary. A bargain.

WINTERVILLE CIG. CO.

Although the factories will all stop work Friday, a man has been employed to keep up steam all day in order to keep the pump running.

FARMERS! Only a few more days in which to get your tobacco barns ready for curing. Better find out what flue repairs you need and let us know at once, so we can be sure to have them ready for you.

A. G. COX MFG. CO.

Cholera is playing the wild with the hogs around here, and if it don't get them all, we expect to play the wild with what's left Friday.

The attention of the public is called to our work. We prefer to let that do our advertising. Call in when you come to town.

Shooting at Snow Hill.

Mr. Frank Carr, of Greene county, was here today and told us of a shooting that occurred at Snow Hill Saturday night.

Mr. Scott, foreman on the Snow Hill Standard, was going from Snow Hill out to the Standard office beyond the corporate limits of the town Saturday night when some one fired at him in the dark. Mr. Scott returned the shot, firing three times in the direction he supposed his assailant to be. Afterwards he thought it might be some of the boys of the town playing a joke on him and he returned to Snow Hill, but no one knew anything of it. He discovered a hole in his coat made by the bullet fired at him. No motive can be assigned for the assault except Mr. Scott is Registrar for Snow Hill township and some one might want to get him out of the way.

Unprecedented Offer.

Everybody knows that the subscription price of The Ladies Home Journal is $1 a year, and the price of the Saturday Evening Post is $2.50 a year, making $3.50 for both. For a limited time you can get them both a year for just $2, a little more than half price. If you are already a subscriber for the Journal you can have the Post for $1. Hand your order to D. J. Whichard or J. B. Harding and it will have prompt attention. Take advantage of this offer before it is withdrawn.

They Stand The Test.

That is what Every Pair of

Dutchess Pants

Is guaranteed to do. Can you imagine a severer test than to tie one leg of a pair of pants to the ceiling and swing a keg of nails weighing 110 pounds to the other leg? That is the test seen in our window and hundreds of people have looked in wonder.

Dutchess Pants

are built to stand any kind of service and a guarantee goes with every pair—10 cents if a button pulls off or $1 if they rip. Get the best when you buy and be sure you get the Dutchess. None genuine without the name on the button.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27, 1900.

Now that defeat is again staring them in the face, the Republican leaders are renewing the threat of past campaigns to have Federal officers placed around the ballot boxes in North Carolina. They want also to place guards over the Registrars and compel them to register all the under age and convict negroes who apply. Their game will not work, and by this time they ought to have learned it. All the same, white men of North Carolina, their threat is an insult to you which you ought to resent by giving the amendment and the Democratic ticket a great majority.

A Man Eaten Alive By Ants.

A mining man in El Paso, Tex., from the State of Sinaloa, Mexico, tells the story in detail of the horrible punishment recently inflicted on a prospector named Wilson by Maya Indians.

Wilson frequently visited the villages and finally won the affections of a handsome young girl. Instead of marrying the girl according to the rites of her tribes, he is said to have decoyed her to his camp in the mountains and kept her there against her will. She finally escaped and told the story and Wilson fled. He was overtaken and carried back.

As a punishment for his crime it was ordered that he be put to death by a method common with the Mayas. The prospector was stripped of his clothing and bound across an ant hill infested by large red ants. After many hours of horrible suffering, as the insects slowly gnawed away his flesh, Wilson expired. He was reported to be a fugitive from justice from Oklahoma.—Philadelphia Times.

Two Things God Didn't Notice.

In reciting the experiences of "A Missionary in the Great West" Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady tells this anecdote in the July Ladies' Home Journal: "The train on which we were riding rushed around a curve and we came in sight of the Missouri River. My little nephew clapped his hands and exclaimed, 'Oh, Uncle, see the river, see the moon shining on those things in the water. What are they?' 'Those are sand bars,' I replied, 'and that is a miserable sort of a river anyway, my boy.' 'Yes,' said the brakeman, 'I heard a man say t'other day that there was just two things God A'mighty didn't take no notice of; they were too wicked for Him. One was Kansas City and the other the Missouri River.'"

The Doctrine of Self Help.

Discussing the subject of local upbuilding, The Wilson Times says in conclusion of an editorial: "The Gods help them who help themselves." Charlotte did not whine and beg Northern capitalists to do this work. She did it herself. Wilson can do likewise, and in doing it would not stand second to Charlotte, but might easily become her equal. We do not write thus to make Wilson mad by telling her that she is no good. She is some good, and only needs to be told how close she is to the greatest and best town in the state, and how little exertion is needful to be put forth to make a Wilson man feel as proud of Wilson as a Charlotte man feels of Charlotte.

This is sound talk. There is a considerable amount of Northern capital invested in and around Charlotte. All of it was welcome when it came, is welcome now, and we wish there were more of it. But none of it came until after Charlotte had put her own capital to work. When local faith in the community was demonstrated outside assistance came without the asking, whereas it had for years before been wooed in vain. Yes, the gods help those who help themselves—they do not help others.

The writer was recently in one of the flourishing near-by towns of this section—of which there are many—and was being driven around by a friend. He remarked upon the great growth and improvement manifest since he was over the town last, and the reply was: "Yes, the place has grown and is growing rapidly; and, with all the talk of the necessity of outside capital in order to give it a start, these improvements have been made with local capital—home people have built the houses, the factories and the foundries. Now money and people are beginning to come in from outside."

We suspect that this is true of every prosperous community in the State and the South. Outsiders are not going to come in and help a people who won't do anything to help themselves.—Charlotte Observer.

Confederate Veteran and Grand Army Man—A Difference.

Two of the Confederate veterans of this city who attended the recent reunion at Louisville, returned with this story: They were in conversation with a bar tender and the talk was upon the re-union, when the bar keeper said: "My sympathies are on the other side, but I can't help noticing the difference between you fellows and the members of the Grand Army of the Republic, who held their reunion here two years ago. You fellows pay for what you get. They came here each with a shirt and a two dollar bill and didn't change either while they were in town."—Charlotte Observer.

Democratic Economy.

Some interesting fertilizer figures, carefully compiled for this paper, are given this week. We note with pleasure that cost of fertilizer inspection by our Department of Agriculture during the year ending June 15, was only $6,132.33, against $15,794.77 for the preceding year. Such economy deserves commendation.—Progressive Farmer.

David B. Hill is believed to be the choice for Vice-President by a majority of delegates from Kentucky to the democratic national convention. A canvass of the State capitol shows a decided preference for Hill for second place.

What is the use of quibbling over so patent a fact as the existence of the state of war between China and the civilized Powers, including this Government? American troops have been landed on Chinese soil, invaded the country and fought battles with China's armed forces. If that be not war what is it? The question is not whether the action of the Government is justified; nobody doubts that it is our right and duty to succor our imperiled envoy at Peking and our Consular representatives in other parts of the Empire, and to employ all the force that may be required to insure their safety. But the hair-splitting arguments emanating from the vicinity of the State Department to the effect that war "technically speaking," does not exist are rather more than ridiculous.—Philadelphia Record.

Mr. John R. Morris has an excellent article in Sunday's Charlotte Observer showing that hate of the South was evidenced in every way in the recent National Republican Convention from the selection of Lodge, of Force Bill fame as chairman, to the infamous platform that brands advocacy of the amendment to eliminate the negro from politics as "revolutionary." Mr. Morris has done a good service by his letter. There is no place for a self-respecting Southern white man in the Republican party as now constituted, and no Southern man who believes in White Supremacy will vote for McKinley and Roosevelt next November.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Let no man be deceived by what unprincipled and designing men tell him about the provisions of the constitutional amendment. When they say that it will disfranchise illiterate whites they either state what they know to be absolutely false or else they know absolutely nothing about the proposed amendment. Read the amendment for yourself and study it carefully, then you will see that the whites, whether illiterate or not, have nothing to fear. It simply deprives the ignorant negro from voting—it does this and nothing more. It is so framed that if one section shall prove unconstitutional then the whole structure shall fall.

The twentieth century, which will begin on Tuesday, January 1, 1901, will have twenty-four leap years, the greatest number possible. February will have five Sunday's three times—1920, 1984 and 1976. The earliest possible date on which Easter can occur is March 12. The last time it occurred on that date was 1878. The latest date that Easter can occur is April 25. It will occur but one time in the coming century on that date—1943. The middle day of the century will be January 1, 1951. There will be 380 eclipses during the coming century.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

A woman that belongs to a club has no business to belong to a man. A man who isn't too big a coward to get married is generally too brave. After a man gets married he never gets what he wants to eat except by accident. A woman is always mortified to death to know that her hired girl has found out that she wears false bangs. Pickled olives were invented for women to take to picnics and make their husbands sick all the way home with.—New York Press.

The Circular.

There are times when the circular is the only available advertising medium, and must be used. But as a rule it will be found to have outlived its usefulness. In most cases, the poorest newspapers will be discovered to be more effective than the finest circular.—Printers Ink.

The Boone Democrat says: "The census enumerators are, it seems, making it a point to tell every illiterate white voter in the country that if they vote for the constitutional amendment they will forever hereafter be debarred from the right to vote. If this was ignorance on the part of the enumerators it would be pardonable but for men of intelligence to make such false assertions for the sole purpose of misleading the unlearned is a most heinous sin. The statement is absolutely false, and they know it."

Our mothers at seventeen, while they were absorbing as much history, philosophy or foreign languages as was good for them, were learning at the same time half-unconsciously how to cook, to sew, to bring up children, to control servants, to take care of the sick—in a word, to be unselfish, skillful home makers. If love came to them, as it comes to most women at that age, it found them in the shelter of their homes, guided by the wisdom of those who loved them best.—July Ladies' Home Journal.

The entire load struck Mr. Harrell in the abdomen. The accident occurred about half past eleven o'clock, and four hours later Mr. Harrell died.
