The registration in Pitt county shows about 1,500 more whites than colored. That means that the Democratic majority is going to be anywhere from 800 to 1,000.

Remember your county ticket when you go to vote next Thursday. You cannot find better men anywhere than the Democrats have nominated for their county officers.

A woman in a Pennsylvania town the other night saved her house from being robbed by detecting a very peculiar odor in the room. Getting out of bed to investigate she stepped upon the back of a burly negro who was crawling from under it. She yelled and the scared darkey lit out grabbing a watch to time himself as he ran.—Wilmington Star.

THURSDAY, JULY 26, 1900.

Near Durham Tuesday a negro and two mules were killed by lightning. The negro and the mules were two miles apart, yet a correspondent of the Charlotte Observer says all were killed by the same bolt of lightning. Four other people in the same room with the negro were unhurt.

The special session of the Legislature held only a short meeting Tuesday. After adjournment a caucus was held and the following resolutions adopted:

Whereas, It is the sense of this caucus that the Legislature should not now be finally adjourned, because it is known that certain politicians in North Carolina are now engaged in a conspiracy to unlawfully interfere with, and, if possible, to prevent, by judicial usurpation, the people from holding an election heretofore duly and legally called to be held August 2nd, and,

Whereas, It is our duty to the people of the State, whose representatives we are, to hold ourselves in a position to thwart this conspiracy and to protect the people in their constitutional rights, and to deal in such a manner as the law authorizes with all such officers of the State as may lend themselves to the furtherance of this conspiracy,

Therefore, Be it resolved, by the Democratic members of the General Assembly, in joint caucus:

First, That the General Assembly, which meets to-day, adjourn to meet again July 30th.

Second, That at the said adjourned session, no legislation shall be passed changing in any way whatever the constitutional amendment as submitted by the General Assembly at its session held in June last.

China.

In China there are a million souls to every preacher.

The position of women in China is practical slavery.

China has nearly 400,000,000 of people without Christ.

China has an area of two million square miles territory for her four hundred millions of people.

China is one half as large as Europe, nearly as large as the United States, eighteen times that of Great Britain.

Not one man in every hundred in China can read, and women rarely away from the higher classes.

The Chinese wife is never seen to walk the streets with a man, not even her own husband.

China is the largest mission field in the world, having a million more than India and two million more than Africa.

One hundred and fifty millions of people in China use the same dialect and are governed by the same laws.

It is a mistake to judge China by the people that come to this land, for they are not the best of her citizens.

The Chinese are a highly intellectual, a hardy, frugal people, and when converted make most loyal Christians.

China has one of the greatest commercial futures of any country. The gospel must go with this in order to save her from the ruin to which this will subject her.

Southern Baptists entered China in 1847, and they now have 39 missionaries, 43 native assistants, 20 churches, 39 outstations, 1,364 members, 167 baptized last year, 29 Sunday Schools, 675 scholars and $1,793 contributed during the year.

China is one of the oldest nations. Before England, France, Germany, Rome or Babylon, that has been dead 2,500 years, before Israel went down into Egypt, before them all was China and the Chinese.

The great wall of China is 1,259 miles long, 20 feet high, with a thickness at the base of 25 feet and 15 feet at the top.—Ex.

No Man a Hero in a Nightmare.

"Strange that we are so cowardly in nightmares," remarked a New Orleans lawyer who has a taste for the bizarre. "I don't believe anybody ever lived who stood up and made a square stand against the amorphous horror that invariably pursues us in such visions. When I have a nightmare and the usual monster gets on my trail my blood turns to water and my conduct would disgrace sheep. I am beside myself with stark, downright fear, and I have no idea left in my head except to run like a rabbit. All pride, self-respect, dread of ridicule and even the instinct of self defence are scattered to the winds; and I believe honestly, I would be capable of any infamy in order to escape. I have no hesitation in confessing this, because, as far as I have been able to find out, every body acts exactly the same way in the throes of nightmare and I feel certain I would not make such a pitiable spectacle of myself in real life, no matter what might befall.

"I think that the explanation of the nightmare panic is to be found in the fact that the dream is almost invariably accompanied by a sense of suffocation. It is well established that choking—the shutting off one's wind, to use a homely phrase—has an effect upon the mind which is entirely distinct and different from that produced by any other form of pain or peril. It fills the victim with such horror and distraction that he is for the moment insane. He will do anything to get relief. This has been brought out on more than one occasion in the defence of men who have been choked and killed their assailants, and judges have held that the circumstances of such an attack should be given special consideration of extenuating the deed. In dreams the entire nervous system is relaxed, and it is natural to suppose that the mental effect of suffocation would be intensified. At least, that is the best apology I have to offer for my sprints through nightmare land."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Ireland's vital statistics for the quarter ended March 31 last show a decline of 10,135 in the population, of which the excess of deaths over births is responsible for nearly one-half.

Independence was the heritage of our fathers, and North Carolinians come again now to work out and write out a new declaration. The great motive that now stirs the minds of the people of North Carolina to change their fundamental law is an intense longing for deliverance from political bondage. Let no man think it is hatred of the colored man. It is not. Let no man think it is simply repudiation of any set of men, white or colored. It is not. The motive lies in a powerful desire to be rid of a general political system, for which all the parties are responsible. The negro's ignorance has made this system possible, and it is hoped that his retirement will destroy it. We have not been free to think or to act in North Carolina. We have had one, unending and unrelenting paramount concern that has compelled absolute neglect of all others. For thirty years we have had but one issue, and that an elementary one. This has led naturally to political degeneracy, while other States have risen from issue to issue. We have sorry men hanging on in all parties, we have political heelers in great number in all parties, we have office-seekers instead of public servants. We have to stand silent while unfit men are supported at the public expense—because to cry out would bring division. Men have loved principles in their hearts, but have sacrificed them to the more immediate necessity of tolerable government; men have felt the impulses of aggressive leadership, but have held back while professional politicians more adapted to the issue took command; and others have gone into the primaries only to find that some common little boss ran the ward with but one thought—the negro. The people of North Carolina find their strongest motive in their heart's repugnance to this condition of affairs long drawn out and deeply intensified; and they have come now to throw it over. We look for a moral revolution in North Carolina. We look for a revision of our whole political system. We expect to see new parties and new leaders and new methods. And we do not expect expediency or party interest again to be urged upon thinking men with honest hearts. We can write a declaration of new independence, and we shall.—Biblical Recorder.

A Boisterous Ghost.

"What was known as the Shepherd house on the old Bay Road, near Easton, Massachusetts, was for many years reputed to be haunted by the ghost of a former occupant of the house who had hanged himself," writes Samuel S. Kingdom of "The Haunted Houses of New England," in the August Ladies' Home Journal. "Strange stories are told of the annoyances experienced by various tenants at all hours of the night, but they were never favored with a sight of the intruder. In one of the chambers was an old-fashioned corded bedstead, and on several occasions its occupant was awakened suddenly by finding himself on the floor, the cords which sustained the bed having been removed by unseen hands without breaking or cutting. Many times the whole family were alarmed by what sounded like a wagon-load of stones falling from a great height on to the roof, threatening to crush it. These disturbances became so frequent that it was with difficulty that tenants could be found for the house, so much dread did people have of ghostly intruders."

Many people express opinions, but few form them.

First Dirt Thrown.

Goldboro, N. C., July 24th.—Quite a pleasant occasion was that of the breaking of ground today at Fremont, first steps in the building of the Great Eastern Railway. J. W. Lynch, the president of the enterprise threw the first dirt. J. D. Davis, of Fremont welcomed and encouraged the enterprise. L. V. Morrill, of Snow Hill, and Jos. E. Robinson delivered short speeches along encouraging lines. A sumptuous feast was given in the town hall and a general good time had.

Exercise that the Housewife Needs.

House work is automatic and does not supply the needed amount and kind of exercise women require. It is automatic and usually but one set of muscles are brought in action. The house wife should seek the fresh air and sunshine and take such exercise as will compel deep but not laborious breathing.—August Ladies' Home Journal.

The very latest thing in door looks is the night key.

An Important Day.

Thursday of next week, the second day of August, will be the most important to the people of the Commonwealth of any other secular day occurring in a generation.

On that day the people will vote for the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution which has been aptly described as disfranchising the ignorant and unfit negro as a voter, and enfranchising the white citizen, thus securing for all time to come peace, contentment and prosperity within the State.

On that day the good people will elect Charles B. Aycock, of Wayne, and his associates to fill the various offices of the State government for which they have been named respectively, which will insure intelligent, honest, clean administration of the State's affairs in every department.

On that day the people will choose a General Assembly to be composed of the best citizenship of State, representing ably and honestly, every class and interest, which will assure just laws, protecting the rights of every citizen and every interest with absolute impartiality and equality of justice.

On that day the people will elect, what is of the fullest importance to them, because nearer to them, the men who are to administer their county affairs for the next two years—commissioners, sheriff, register, etc.

These are all to be voted for and elected on Thursday, the 2nd day of August—tomorrow week. Let every good citizen make sure, by his vote there can be no uncertainty in the result.—Raleigh Post 25

The pecan crop of Texas promises to be the largest known in many years. Last year's crop was a small one, caused principally by the floods in the Brazos Valley, but this year the trees are loaded with nuts. The price is better than usual, owing to the fact that there is no surplus from last year, and that the demand for the nut steadily grows. St. Louis is the great market for the Texas nuts, and thence they are distributed all over the world, London, Paris and Naples taking large quantities of them. They are used almost altogether in the confectionery trade.

As to the Amendment.

The South has not produced a Jackson, a Jefferson, or a Calhoun since reconstruction days. They could not grow in our political atmosphere at this time. They discussed issues; they appealed to a people whose judgment and intellect were not kept in subjection by the presence of a race problem. The enfranchisement of a race just emerged from slavery has made political slaves of many of their former masters. Many good people believe that the amendment will by making the State's ratio of voting population 8 whites to 1 negro render negro rule impossible in any county, remove the negro from politics, give greater liberty to our people and benefit whites and blacks alike. To charge that they are actuated only by desire for office or by undemocratic ideas is as futile as it is unjust.

The charge that the educational qualifications means an aristocracy does not seem to be better grounded. But if it be an aristocracy, then it is one that practically all white boys of ordinary intelligence and industry can enter—a fact that ought to stimulate interest in our schools and elevate our citizenship.

Nor do we believe that there is danger of the elimination of the grandfather clause, leaving in force an educational test for whites and blacks alike.—Progressive Farmer.
