FRIDAY, AUGUST 10, 1900.

The Ninth district has renominated W. T. Crawford for Congress. And this time he is going to beat Richmond Pearson so bad that the latter will not have a chance to steal his seat again.

Wednesday at Indianapolis W. J. Bryan and A. E. Stevenson were officially notified of their nomination for President and Vice-President by the Democratic National convention. And the people will give them notice of their election in November.

Day of Small Things.

In a small town not far from New York, recently, one of the natives was in a store shopping. As she waited for her change there entered a finely dressed woman, with a general appearance of wealth and patriarch origin. Many of the residents of the town are people of wealth, and summer visitors are usually persons of money and position. She was visiting the shop because she wished letter paper. "Would she have a box of paper?" the shopkeeper asked. "No," the woman replied, hesitatingly. Why, she only wanted a little paper; she was visiting in town, and had a few letters to write. Well what did she want to pay, the proprietor continued, trying to discover and to fill her exact wishes—50 cents or 15 cents? "No-o-o," the woman demurred: she did not think she need pay 50 cents or even 15. Why, she only wanted a few sheets of paper. Well said the shopkeeper, politely, "I think you will find just what you want in that little shop across the street, where they sell supplies for school children." And the richly dressed stranger departed, and in a few moments emerged from the little shop with a small parcel in her hand and a contented expression upon her face. The waiting native who had witnessed the incident, feeling rather ashamed for her sex, remarked apologetically to the shopkeeper:

"Women are peculiar sometimes aren't they?"
 "Dear me," exclaimed the shopkeeper, heaving a sigh of self-sympathy, "that's nothing to some of 'em. Why, a woman came in here the other day and wanted some soda water, but she didn't want a full glass, and, what's more, he didn't want to pay for one, and wanted to know if we couldn't sell half a glass of soda. We did, and charged her three cents for it, and she went away happy."

Politics will be quiet for a month and then the Presidential campaign will be on.

Progress at the A. & M. College.

The College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts in Raleigh will open Wednesday, September 5th. Entrance examinations will be held at the College the day before. A very large attendance is already assured for next session. Applicants expecting to get accommodations should be on hand promptly the first day.

A new building has been erected during the summer for instruction in Electrical Engineering. In this building the students will conduct experiments of all sorts with electrical machines, preparing to be practical Electrical Engineers. A considerable lot of new electrical machinery has just been purchased.

The Textile Department has just received a car-load of machinery donated by Stuart W. Cramer, Charlotte, N. C., Agent for the Whiting Machine works, Whitingsville, Mass. The generosity of this company is very highly appreciated. Another car-load of machinery is expected this week. A third car-load will come from Massachusetts donated by the Draper Company of Hopedale, Mass. Valuable donations have been made by the Saco and Pettee Machine Shops, Newton Upper Falls, Mass., the D. A. Tompkins Co., Charlotte, N. C., and Jones & Laughlin, Pittsburg Pa.

The contract for supplying uniforms for next year has been given to Jacob Reed's Sons of Philadelphia. The uniforms will be of gray cloth manufactured in Charlottesville, Virginia, and will cost $9.90 instead of $15.00 as heretofore.

The College will be open about August 15th for students to make up their deficiencies in various studies before the regular session opens. A recent regulation requires every student to make up all his deficiencies before he can go on with an advanced class.

Butler Goes to Sampson.

Wilmington, N. C., Aug. 8.—Senator Marion Butler visited Eastern Carolina yesterday for the first time since the franchise amendment election. He came down to Warsaw and went to his home in Sampson county. He was accompanied by an escort of seven heavily armed men. Four men, well armed, came to Warsaw Tuesday, stayed about town with no apparent object, no one taking any special notice of them or having any idea as to their purpose until Wednesday, when Senator Butler stepped off the train accompanied by several other armed men, and were met by them, the entire squad proceeding across the country to Senator Butler's home. It is thought in Warsaw that the object of the advance squad in coming there was to investigate as to what risk Butler would run in coming east and make sure that no red shirts or others were in waiting for him. It is conceded that had it been known that Butler was coming he would not have been allowed to stop at Warsaw. As it was, before his presence became noised around sufficiently to result in any united action, he and his body guard had passed out of town, and were well advanced on the road toward the Senator's home.

W. W. Prevatt has been troubled all of this year with something eating his canteloupes and could not find out what it was. While in his patch Saturday he saw a large terrapin having a feast on some of his finest melons, thus the mystery of the theft was explained.—Lumberton Robesonian.

Train Jumps the Track.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Aug. 8.—A freight train which left here at 10:30 today for Charlotte was wrecked near Clemmonsville. The accident was caused by spreading rails. The train ran a quarter of a mile with one car off the track. When it stopped nine cars had left the rails and gone together in a mass. The singing class from Oxford Orphanage, sixteen in number including the manager, were in the caboose, but fortunately it did not leave the track. Their escape was considered by the railroad people to be miraculous. The orphans were on their way to Mocksville to attend the annual Masonic picnic.

Support Chairman Simmons

By all means let the white folks sustain the movement of Chairman Simmons to have the Federal office-holders prosecuted for their infamous conduct in the campaign just over. They violated the plain letter and spirit of the civil service law, and in a most offensive, disgraceful and even violent manner. They should be driven out. If McKinley would have any good showing (his friends say he has) in the coming election to carry North Carolina, he must vindicate justice and decency and political rights, and enforce faithfully and strictly the law. Chairman Simmons urges the county Democratic chairmen to co-operate with him in securing information and affidavits. It should be done at once. Press the matter to a successful issue. Clean up and clean out the black radical Augean stables and little McKinley is the fellow to do it if he is honest and capable.—Wilmington Messenger.

The Next Issue.

The next step in North Carolina is to rid the old North State of the licensed saloon. The negro has been, as a race, the steadfast friend of the liquor traffic, which coupled with politics, has been his continual worst enemy. This great moral question should be passed upon by the white men of the state, and we believe that they will, when they fully comprehend the case which is daily being made against the saloon, vote the saloon out of the state. Let this come as the next issue before the people. There are hundreds of the best men of the state ready to take the stump and talk with their fellow men, to furnish time and money to wage a winning warfare against the drink traffic. The new year of the new century would be fittingly celebrated in this state by ridding ourselves of the great weight which pulls us down—the licensed liquor traffic. Let it be the next issue!—N. C. Baptist.

Worth Remembering.

Some employers are so parsimonious of praise for deserving employees, on the principle that praise will induce an attack of swelled head, requiring a treatment of increased salary, that they starve out ambition in their most faithful helpers. To a young worker who has done good service, who has secured a beat, collected a bad account or suggested an idea valuable to his employer, a word of appreciation is more exhilarating than wine. The memory of it will outweigh many times the discouraging things of life, and will spur and nourish ambition and good work as nothing else can. A kind, appreciative word costs nothing to express, but it pays large dividends in loyalty, devotion and application.—Newspaperdom.

A New York clergyman, Rev. Dr. Hamilton, preached a rather unusual sermon to a congregation of millionaires at Newport, R. I., Sunday last. He declared that his hearers were not a privileged group, but on the contrary, that they were burdened with heavier moral obligations than any other people in this country. This is in every respect true, just as much as is the assertion that a man with plenty of the right kind of gray matter is under great responsibility to the world than those not so well endowed. but in both cases—certainly in the first mentioned—nearly all the outsiders are trying to lighten the loads of the burden-bearers.—Charlotte Observer.

No man who voted last week for the amendment can consistently vote for McKinley next November.

Why?
 Because his vote for the amendment was a vote for white supremacy, but his vote for McKinley would be a vote for negro postmasters.

Yes, we do not see how a man can be in favor of white supremacy and then vote for a President who appoints negro postmasters here in North Carolina.—Pittsboro Record.

The question is frequently asked why it is Fortress instead of Fort Monroe. The difference consists in the fact that a fort is designed to contain solely the garrison and attendant munitions, while a fortress is often a city with many non-combatant inhabitants. France for example, has a number of important fortresses on her frontier.

It is now positive that there will be a State Guard encampment this year.

This was the hottest day of the season. At Riverside Nurseries the temperature reached 101, and at some places down town it went to 106.

C. T. Munford's new stock just coming in is a bonanza of bargains. Keep an eye for special announcements he will make and you will save money.

The hand fire engine has been brought into requisition to fill the tank to the street sprinkler. It does the work and fills the tank in a few minutes.

Capt. A. J. Griffin put his head in the office while passing by today, and said put me down for a dollar on the band stand. All right. Who is the next?

The Halifax baseball team passed through Greenville this morning returning to Halifax from Kinston, where they played a series of three games of ball with the Kinston boys. Kinston won all three of the games.

Tobacco Department

Mr. O. L. Joyner, who since the beginning of a tobacco market in Greenville has done more to promote its advancement than any other man, has resumed his department in THE REFLECTOR and says that from now on through the season he will contribute regularly articles of especial interest to the tobacco trade. The articles he has contributed to this paper in years gone by have been a great factor in advertising the market far and near, and no one feature did the market more good. Mr. Joyner is an excellent writer, and our readers will find much interest in keeping up with his articles. The tobacco farmers will find the articles profitable to them and can often save money by following the advice he gives.

Tobacco Department.

BY O. L. JOYNER.

DO NOT CROWD THE MARKET

Farmers this year have commenced to market their tobacco in a very sensible and business like manner. Heretofore by the middle of August at least, there were heavy breaks on all eastern markets, thus practically overcrowding the market at the very hottest season of the year, at a time when the tobacco is in no condition at all to sell. And in many instances it is offered on the floor before the curing process has been finished, that is, while there is yet a good deal of green matter visible on the leaf, which if allowed to remain in bulk for a short while would almost entirely disappear. Then, too, the condition of weather at this time is such that there is a good deal of risk in carrying large stocks of tobacco in bulk. One hundred farmers owning two hundred thousand pounds of tobacco are in much better condition and better prepared to take care of that quantity of tobacco than are five, six or more buyers at this hot season of the year, besides if this tobacco should begin to damage in the hand of the farmers it can be very easily stopped, but if it belongs to one man it may be that the damage will be irreparable before it is discovered.

Again the markets abroad are not established and there is an element of uncertainty that makes sales at this season of the year very unsatisfactory. I don't have the least doubt that the farmers who have sold tobacco on the entire markets during the last four years have lost annually not less than forty thousand dollars as a result of crowding the markets during the last half of August and first of September. By overloading the market at this time it, as a matter of course, has a tendency to lower prices and it takes considerable time for the market recover. In the meantime those of you that have sold are the losers.

I speak on this matter from actual experience, and the warehouseman or drummer who will urge you to throw your tobacco on the market at this time in any great quantities is either woefully ignorant or recklessly indifferent to your interest, and you will not have to watch him long to find him out. I was discussing this subject a few days since with one of our largest and best buyers and he concurred with me fully in my views, adding at the same time "I wish the warehousemen of the east would get together and agree not to open any of the markets until the 1st of September as it would thereby be the means of saving the farmers thousands of dollars and eliminate the great risk which we take in carrying heavy stocks of tobacco during the hot, sultry weather."

As to the advisability of not opening the markets until September I doubt the expediency, for there are numbers of farmers who want to sell some tobacco to enable them to save their other crops. But I have a plan which if all the farmers will adopt I think it will prove practicable and I know incalculably beneficial. It is this: Let every farmer divide the approximate number of pounds of tobacco that he will make by the number of months that the markets are open. For instance, the market opens August 1st, and practically closes April 1st, making eight months, then sell one-eighth of his entire crop each month. While in every case this cannot be done, yet if there is a concerted action on the part of most of the farmers it will do more toward eliminating the bad features of glutted markets than anything I have heard suggested. Some will say, Oh, I want to get through with my tobacco by January. So you may. You may have work that needs you at home while you are selling your tobacco the first three months of the year. You may feel that you will not have time to grade it. But stop and think a moment. There will be enough days that you cannot work out doors in which to prepare your tobacco for market. Besides if you have to hire it all done if you will pursue this plan I'll guarantee that you will get enough more for your tobacco to pay you for all your pains and outside help, and have a handsome balance to your credit. This is a very serious and vital question to you all, my farmer friends, and I hope you will consider it.

Passed Thousand Mark

THE EASTERN REFLECTOR (twice a week) has had a most gratifying growth in circulation this year, though we have not made much noise about it. The thousand mark has now been passed and it still keeps climbing. One thing about the circulation of THE REFLECTOR that is of especial advantage to the advertisers, is that every copy of the paper sent out goes into the hands of an intelligent reader. People take it for the news it contains, and the class of people who read this paper have money to spend with the advertisers.
