QUICKEN THE SCHEDULE.

Can Be Done With the New Engine

Since the coal burner engine has been in use on this road an appreciable difference is noticed in the running of the passenger train. It is now no trouble for the train to make schedule time and have some time to spare at stations, while heretofore with the old wood burner engine about all the train could do at its best was to make schedule, and it was about as often behind as on time. With this better engine the service can be much improved, and the schedule might also be shortened.

THE REFLECTOR believes if the patrons of the road will right now interest themselves in the matter and ask the railroad officials to keep the good engine on this road and also to shorten the schedule according to the capacity of the engine, that their request would be granted. It would be advantageous to both business and travel here and along the road if the schedule was shortened.

Another Centenarian.

Sometime ago THE REFLECTOR published that Mrs. Nancy Teel, living a few miles from Greenville, was a hundred years old, and that if she lived until next January she would have lived in three different centuries. We see it stated in an exchange that just outside of High Point lives a man who reached his hundred years old this month, and if he lives until 1901 he will also have seen part of three different centuries. We venture that there are few such cases in the State.

Store Broken Open.

The store of King and Morrill at Falkland was broken into Tuesday night and a few goods stolen. The money drawer was broken open and about two dollars taken. The party gained entrance to the store by prizing off the iron bar across the wooden shutter and then cutting two panes of glass out of the window. The robbery was not discovered until this morning when the store was opened. No suspicion as to the guilty party.

Lawn Party.

The King's Daughters here have undertaken a very praiseworthy charity, and to raise funds to advance their efforts will give a lawn party in the Academy grove on Tuesday night of next week and have refreshments on sale. The Osceola Band has kindly offered to co-operate with the ladies and will be on hand to make music for the occasion. A large crowd should be present and a good sum should be realized for the object in view.

Fine Pictures

Campbell & Co., the Richmond photographers who have opened a gallery here to advertise their business, are now ready for work in the Forbes store on Five Points. They come to Greenville highly recommended and have on exhibition splendid specimens of their workmanship. They only contemplate staying here a few weeks.

Dealers in antiquities will pay a big price for the last straw which broke the camel's back.

Our people do not seem to be expressing themselves about the proposition of Congressman Small to establish rural free delivery of mail in this county, as mentioned in a recent issue of THE REFLECTOR. Wherever this rural free delivery service has been inaugurated it has proved of great convenience and benefit to the community. Just think what an advantage it would be to all the people of Pitt county living along the public roads if they could have mail delivered at their homes every day. Both town and country would be benefitted. If such a convenience as this is wanted the fact should be made known and proper steps taken to secure it. Congressman Small says he is ready at any time to come here and confer with those interested in the matter. If we neglect this matter some other county will step in and get the benefit offered to us.

No injunction proceedings will be taken out by the Democrats in the event that Jeter Pritchard attempts to return to Tennessee.—Tarboro Southern.

Nor if Marion Butler starts to go to Dakota. On the other hand we expect a subscription could be raised to pay the way of both out of the State.

Strange as Romance.

A young man is confined to his bed at his home in Mark's Creek township in a somewhat precarious condition, and with a rather indistinct relation of a marriage ceremony over the line in South Carolina. His condition has required the attendance of a Rockingham physician.

To tell the story most intelligently we begin at the beginning. The young man is the second oldest of a family of five brothers—good, honest, industrious people, who have for some time been engaged in the saw mill business. About two years ago he was in love with a young lady who lives near Laurel Hill, but his family objected strenuously to the match because of the delicate health of the young lady. They succeeded in breaking up the match and no more was thought of it, and in the course of time he centered his affections elsewhere, a school marm in his township being the object. Last Thursday evening, August 9th, was fixed as the time for the celebration of their nuptials, and preparations on a rather extensive scale were made. Invitations to their friends were given, the waiters on each side invited, the cakes were baked and all preparations as are usually made for such occasions. Everything went well until a few days before the date set, when the young man received a letter from his first love, in which it is said she declared that if he married another she would end her existence.

The letter almost crazed the young man, and he also threatened suicide. His family realized his condition and kept close watch on him, but Sunday before the day appointed for his marriage he eluded their vigilance and went to see girl No. 1. They instituted search for him, and finally found him in a semi-conscious condition over in South Carolina, in charge of girl No. 1, who declared that they had been regularly married. He didn't seem to remember much of anything, but did have a very indistinct recollection of some kind of performance before a magistrate. He was taken back to his home, but his condition has not materially improved. His second intended has called on him and very generously forgiven all. His mother accounts for his awkward predicament by saying that he has been subject, at rare intervals during his life, to seasons of slight mental aberration, and that he was temporarily unbalanced by the letter.—Rockingham Anglo-Saxon.

The Penman

The discussion goes on as to the merits and demerits of vertical and slanting penmanship. Both systems have their advocates. For the former it is said that it is much more easily read than the other. For the latter it is urged that it is much more suitable for book-keeping and counting-house purposes generally.

We do not purpose any attempt to decide the question. We rise to remark merely that good, wholesome, legible, symmetrical penmanship is much too rare. We speak from observation of hundreds of letters addressed to the Dispatch on business connected with our various departments and coming from men in all professions and business pursuits. Nowadays too little attention is paid to penmanship; typewriting is everything.

We are informed by the head of a large business-house that he has great difficulty in getting clerks who write easy, rapid, legible hands. He doesn't care whether the writing be vertical or slanting, but he is a dear lover of "good writing," and laments the decadence in style observable in the letters he receives and in the entries made in his books.

Again, we are told that court records, and many other public records, are not as neatly and accurately kept as formerly. Certainly some of them are not.

We hope to see a reform in this matter. We should like to see the skilful penman come into favor again, and doubtless he will. The whirligig of time will bring him his revenge. In many cases the typewriter cannot take his place. There are many letters that should never be written upon machines, and fashionable society does well to frown upon such productions; but it does ill to counteract miserable scrawls in their stead.—Richmond Dispatch.

Fowler Assaulted

Mary Ann Butler, not satisfied with the overwhelming repudiation which the people of North Carolina gave him at the polls on the 2nd of August, and no doubt with the sinister purpose of fomenting strife and possibly bringing on the bloodshed for political capital, issued circulars for a great indignation meeting at Clinton last Saturday. His call was for a monster meeting in the stronghold of populism to protest against what he termed red shirtism, intimidation and fraud on the part of democrats in the election in which the matchless Aycock was elected governor, the suffrage amendment to the constitution was ratified by an unprecedented majority, and it was made eternally impossible for Butler to ever be sent back to the United States senate to misrepresent North Carolina.

Butler expected his indignation meeting to be attended by several thousand people, but it was a dismissal failure, not over 300 being present. Senator Butler, F. J. Cooper, Esq., and Populist ex-Congressman John E. Fowler were the speakers, and, with Butler dying very hard, it can be imagined how bitter and full of partisan rant were the speeches. Ex-Congressman Fowler is said to have shot off his mouth in a very reckless and vindictive manner, and among other things he is reported to have denounced Mr. George Peterson, a highly respected and prominent merchant of Clinton, telling "indignant" populists that Mr. Peterson had ordered arms for the democrats to intimidate populists. He urged the populists to boycott Mr. Peterson's store and not trade with him.

This part of Fowler's speech aroused indignation in the wrong way. It got Mr. Peterson on his ear, and yesterday morning he hopped on Fowler and gave him a terrible drubbing. It is said that Fowler begged the crowd to "take him off."—Wilmington Messenger.

The population of the city of Chicago, in 1900, according to the official returns of the Twelfth Census, is 1,658,575. In 1890 the population was 1,099,850.

"When justice guides love," says the Manayunk Philosopher, "it is a case of the blind leading the blind."

BARBERS.

CENTRAL BARBER SHOP.
I have moved my Barber Shop to the shop in front of Munford's new big store. I have also associated with me Julius Fleming, who has been working with me for a long time. We have fitted up for the handsomest shop in the town, and offer the public the best service ever offered here. We appreciate highly the liberal patronage we have received in the past. We cordially invite all of our past customers and all others who desire first-class service to come to see us in our new shop. We intend to please you and will do so regardless of expense or labor. We are ready at all times to accommodate you with first-class shave or hair cut.

We think the papers make a mistake in referring to the trouble in Georgia as a race riot. Some negroes murdered a white man and resisted arrest and were helped by others of their color. This is not a race war, but an attempt by the law abiding element of a community to arrest those who have violated the law. If the offenders had been white men the same attempt to arrest them would have been made and if they had resisted the result would probably have been the same.—Durham Herald.

WINTERVILLE DEPARTMENT.

NEWSY HAPPENINGS AND BUSINESS NOTES.

WINTERVILLE, N. C., August 23

On last Saturday Mr. Caleb Cannon, of Rountree, was in our office and speaking of the good work done by the A. G. Cox Mfg. Co., said he had a pair of cart wheels he purchased from J. C. Cox, father of A. G. Cox and one of the proprietors of the above company in 1856 and that he had had them worked on only once or twice since, and he has another pair bought in 1866, and has never had them worked on. Both pair are still in good working order. How is that? The factory makes wheels today out of the same kind of material used by Mr. J. C. Cox in the '50s and '60s.

Yesterday the Winterville Cigar Co. shipped between seventeen and twenty thousand cigars to one firm, and still they go.

Mrs. W. L. Hurst left for Newport News yesterday.

Misses Nannie Nichols, of May Chapel section, and Penny and Carrie Claytor, of Kinston, are visiting Misses Rosa and Minnie Cox.

The boys for the last week or so "have been all smiles" so says Jimmie, and he ought to know.

Uncle Joshua Trip, of Greenville, paid us a visit Tuesday and we were glad to see him too.

Miss Huldah Cox, of Seven Springs, who has been visiting relatives here, left for Littlefield yesterday.

On Saturday evening the passenger train was delayed here for more than half an hour owing to some of her machinery about the engine being out of order.

GRADING TOBACCO.

Last week I reminded farmers of the necessity of handling tobacco in good condition and not bringing it to market all bundled in great wads, or worse still, not bundled at all, and incidentally referred to the manner of grading. Too much attention cannot be given to grading tobacco. When tobacco is common, sorry stuff, it is true, looking from an economic standpoint, it will not pay to spend very much time fooling with it. But right here I am reminded of an instance in this connection that came under my personal observation a few years ago when common tobacco, as is well known, did not sell as well as it does now. I stopped one day at Mr. W. E. Horne's packhouse where he was grading tobacco. If I remember aright his tobacco had taken the second growth and in my opinion, at the time, I could not see that it would pay him to grade. It looked a muddy brown, and quite contrary to the general state of tobacco after this growth, it seemed chaffy and lifeless. But while he was very much hurt over his tobacco, he had around the grading bench a number of intelligent white people, and his wife herself was there looking after every detail of the grading. While I did not tell him so, I did not believe that he would ever realize the expense of his pains. He worked that tobacco nicely, bulked it down smooth and straight, and when it was sold on the market he got an average of eight cents for it. Now I have no idea this tobacco would have sold for more than five cents had it been handled and graded in the manner that most tobacco is sold on the markets. The extra caution in grading this tobacco would not amount to more than one cent a pound, (I doubt if it cost the half of it) and even allowing that much there is a saving in every acre of tobacco that he had that year of fifteen or sixteen dollars. I think he had about eight acres that year and while all of it was not in as bad condition, yet I verily believe he saved by his method of grading and handling at least one hundred, an amount well worth his pains, which is annually thrown away by many Farmers grade your tobacco with care. It will cost you very little if any more, and after you become accustomed to grading this way there will be pleasure as well as profit in having it handled nicely.
