

ASLEEP IN JESUS.

"Before thy heart could learn
In waywardness to stray;
Before thy feet could turn
The dark and downward way;
Ere sin could wound thy breast,
Or sorrow wake the tear;
Rise to thy home of rest;
In yon celestial sphere!"

Little Paul, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McArthur, died at 4 o'clock P. M. Monday, 10th Sept. Age four and one half months. In the absence of their pastor, Dr. Morton, the burial was conducted by Rev. N. M. Watson. The interment was made Tuesday afternoon in the family burial ground about ten miles from Greenville.

Opera House.

Music and literary entertainment, Tuesday evening September 24th. The many friends of Mrs. R. R. Cotten will be glad to know that she has consented to give her home people, the citizens of Greenville and Pitt county, an opportunity to hear her exquisite poem—"The White Doe"—as gracefully yet unaffectedly read by herself. This literary gem in the crown of North Carolina Works has been read in northern cities and in many portions of North Carolina, and has been every where pronounced a poem of which her State should be proud. We bespeak for her a crowded house. The entertainment will open and close with fine selections of vocal and instrumental music. Price of tickets 35 cents, no extra charge for reserve seats.

Superior Court.

The following cases have been disposed of:

Aaron Cox, resisting officer, guilty, judgment suspended on payment of costs.

Arthur Forbes, larceny, pleads guilty, judgment suspended on payment of costs.

Aaron Cox, assault with deadly weapon, guilty, judgment suspended on payment of costs.

Alonzo Williams, assault with deadly weapon, guilty, six months in jail to be assigned to the roads in Edgecombe county.

James Brown, resisting officer, guilty, also guilty of assault with deadly weapon.

Jos. River, larceny, guilty, judgment suspended on payment of costs.

Gov. Jarvis' Letter

Elsewhere in this paper appears the letter of ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis announcing his candidacy for the United States Senate. The reader of this letter can not fail to be impressed with its spirit and the high plane upon which Gov. Jarvis places his candidacy. According to all other candidates the same privilege he asks for himself, and without a word or murmur against any one, he places his candidacy before the Democratic voters purely upon his own merit.

If there is a man in North Carolina who deserves anything at the hands of the Democratic party in return for services rendered, that man is Gov. Jarvis. Always in the thickest of the fight, he has given his time and efforts in every campaign for the success of the party. THE REFLECTOR ask for his letter a careful reading, and that his candidacy may receive the consideration it deserves.

Same old Stripe.

J. J. Martin, Republican nominee for congress in the second district, is postmaster at Tarboro; Spencer Blackburn, in the eighth, is assistant district attorney; Jim Moody, in the ninth, was major of the baked beans department in the Spanish war; Holton, in the seventh is brother to the district attorney for the western district, and was revenue officer if he is not now; Joyce, in the fifth, is stamp clerk in the revenue office; Jenkins, in the fourth, is supervisor of the census. The other nominees will also be federal officials or controlled by them.

That is the kind of "business men" the Republicans will ask the North Carolina people to vote for as representatives in congress.

Every one of these fellows used his influence to defeat the constitutional amendment, and they are all running on a platform that declares that our amendment is "revolutionary."

The Republican party in North Carolina puts up today the same stripe of negro-voting politicians they have been nominating for thirty years, and then has the effrontery to appeal to the "business men" to vote to undo the vote they cast in August. It will not avail them.—News and Observer.

Prize Winners.

Garland stoves take the premium wherever exhibited. At the Paris Exposition they were in competition with the whole world and were awarded the prize for being the best made. A facsimile of the cable message announcing this fact is printed in this paper.

Cotton and Cotton Goods

English and American, Northern and Southern cotton mills, are now confronted by the same problem. This is how to make low-priced goods out of the high-priced cotton. There are mills in this section which have contracts which cannot be filled except at a loss, some of these contracts based on cotton as low as 8½ cents; and it is doubtful if the best managed mill could make buckle and tongue meet buying cotton at prevailing prices and selling its product from day to day at its market price. However, the mills have had a season of good times, and can afford to run for a time without profit, and some of them, perhaps, at a small loss. They will all, of course, desire to continue running, since suspension means the scattering and demoralization of labor and the depreciation of machinery. It is likely, too that the law of compensation will soon apply and that there will be a natural adjustment of conditions. Cotton is apt to decline in price or cotton goods advance. The latter is much more probable as it is much more to be desired. The crop is undoubtedly short, the best estimates placing it not above 9,500,000 bales, and with a crop of only this size, and an increasing demand as the world's population increases and trade opportunities expand, cotton is more likely to advance in price than to decline. But until the adjustment above referred to takes place the situation of the manufacturer is a perplexing one.—Charlotte Observer.

LETTER FROM GOV. JARVIS.

Announcing His Candidacy For The Senate.

Greenville, N. C., Sept. 19th 1900.
 TO THE DEMOCRATIC PRESS AND PEOPLE:

I have so long enjoyed the courtesy and kindness of the Democratic Press of the State that I confidently ask the use of its columns for a word with the Democratic voters. I shall publish this letter in my home paper and I respectfully and earnestly request all Democratic papers to give it to their readers. I am so confident they will do me this favor, no matter whom they prefer, that I beg to thank them in advance.

On the 4th of March, 1901, some Democrat will take his seat as the Senator from North Carolina, in the greatest deliberative body on earth. Who that man shall be is for you to say. It is the first time in the history of our party, in this State, when you have had the opportunity of determining such a question by a direct vote, at a Primary election, held for that purpose. For one I believe in this method of indicating our party's choice for Senator; and I trust this Primary, in all its phases from start to finish, will be conducted in a manner so fair and honorable as to be free from complaint and above criticism; and that the system will commend itself to all fair minded Democrats who believe in the rule of the people. I feel a special interest in the success of this system because I believe I was the first man in the State to publicly advocate it. Since then it has grown in popular favor, till at the last State Convention of our party, it was adopted and ordered to be held. I therefore beg modestly to say that I would be glad to be the first Senator chosen by this method and I hereby announce myself a candidate for that high honor. In making this announcement I am aware that I am aspiring to a high and responsible position. A Senator is not only charged with the duty of taking part in the discussions and determination of great questions of national importance, but he is a part of the treaty making power, and upon his action may depend important events in our foreign relations. There are but few fields which open up so great opportunities for labor, usefulness and honor as the Senate of the United States. I trust I properly appreciate the dignity and the importance of the position I am seeking.

I am also aware that it has been the policy of our State to choose her most experienced and best equipped men for this high position and these grave duties. The fact that these men had already held high offices was not a hindrance but a help to their selection. From this class of her distinguished citizens our State has chosen men who became great Senators and whose names we love to revere, and whose services are a part of our country's history. While I cannot hope to reach the eminence held by them I shall constantly endeavor, if chosen, to attain a position creditable to myself and honorable to my State. And may I not point to my brief service in the Senate as an earnest of my constant effort to serve my State and her people faithfully and well.

I sometimes hear it said that I have already had the party's support, and the people's honors to a remarkable degree, and that I ought to retire to private life. I acknowledge with feelings of the profoundest gratitude that I have been greatly honored, but I affirm that I have tried to be true and faithful to the public interests in every trust that has been confided to me. While the fact that I have held these positions is being urged as a reason why I have had all I deserve, may it not be said in my behalf that the training and experience I gained in them have only the better qualified me to discharge the grave duties which devolve upon a Senator.

I also hear it said that this is the day of the young Democracy. I do not understand by this that the day has come, in the history of our party, when the door of honorable reward is to be closed to those who have been faithful and true in storm and in sunshine and who have fought its battles in the days of its adversity and defeat as well as in the days of its prosperity and victory. While the Democratic party always has and always will fittingly reward its young men, it never has and never will, in my judgment, close its doors to its faithful veterans. The young worker of today will be the veteran of tomorrow and the party will, in the plenitude of its opportunities, do justice to both and fittingly reward each. If, therefore, I have ceased to belong to the young Democracy and have become one of the party's veterans, I do not believe that a generous and just people will allow me to be cast aside on that account.

If this coveted prize is to be the reward of party service then I may, I believe, ask to be allowed to enter the race. For more than a third of a century I have been in the thickest of our party's battles, and the several campaigns from 1865 to 1900 will testify to the fact that I have worked as hard for party success when I was not a candidate as when I was. Indeed I have only twice been the nominee of the party in the State at large for office, once in '76 when I was a candidate for Lieutenant Governor and in '80 I was a candidate Governor, but there has not been a State campaign since '65 in which I did not take an active part, and domy full share of the work, except the campaigns of '86 and '88 when I was out of the country. But, if the consideration of party service is to be limited to the last two campaigns then I believe I can make a respectable showing without detracting from the services of others. In these two campaigns all did their duty, as it was given to them, from our able and faithful Chairman down to the township worker—from the great Dailies to the teeming Weeklies—and no one man has a monopoly of the victory, our party won in its heroic and determined effort to establish and maintain good government in North Carolina.

I have not and shall not have one word to say against the worthy gentlemen who are contesting for this high honor. They have wrought well for their party and their State; and they deserve well of both. They have a right to be candidates if they desire, and I have no right to complain of them for it. We all have a common enemy whose policies tend to undermine and endanger the very foundation of this Republic, and which if not checked will in time convert it into an oligarchy, if not an empire. I shall reserve all my criticisms and denunciations for this common enemy—the Republican party.

This is the only and last word I shall have to say for myself. All the time I can spare from the duties upon which my daily support depends, will be given to speaking for Bryan and Stevenson and our candidates for the House of Representatives. While I would be glad to be chosen Senator, it is not the only thing that gives me concern. I believe that the triumph of our party in November is essential to the welfare of our country; and that the election of Bryan and Stevenson will mean the breaking of the tightening grip of the Trusts and the setting free industries and individuals now endangered by them; and the bringing back the administration of our government to the safe moorings pointed out by Washington and Jefferson.

I have no organization and I shall not try to affect one. I shall send printed tickets to our county Chairmen and request them to cause these tickets to be placed, as other tickets are at the various precincts convenient to the voters on the day of the Primary. This I am sure our county Chairmen and county and township Committees will cheerfully do, without any regard to their personal preferences; and I beg to tender them my thanks for this service. Having done this the matter so far as I am concerned is with the Democratic voters. It is for them to say who shall be Senator. While I shall hold in grateful remembrance those who may say a kind word for me or take any interest, in any way, in my candidacy, I shall cherish no ill will towards these who may prefer another.

I am sincerely your obedient servant.
THOS. J. JARVIS.

A number of traveling men were in Kinston yesterday, and while at the depot waiting for a train, discussed politics. A number expressed themselves as having been opposed to Bryan in '96, but had seen their error and were determined to support him in November. They said it was just this way all over the country—that the tide was turning that the people were heartily tired of the course of the administration, and would express themselves in no uncertain tones in the coming election.—Kinston Free Press.

Mr. Aycock's campaign for Governor gave a marked impetus to the educational spirit in North Carolina, and it is gratifying to observe signs which indicate that the public sentiment in behalf of the better education of our people is not to be permitted to subside. The press of the State is alive to the importance of the subject; the favor with which Mr. Aycock's pleas in behalf of the children of the State were received demonstrated that the people are ready for larger taxes for better school facilities, and we believe that the Legislature will be responsive to the public sentiment. It's duty in the matter cannot be too strongly urged upon this body and its failure to discharge this duty will bring with it disappointed and discouragement.—Charlotte Observer.

Some of the things it is better to give than receive are a plugged nickel, a bad cigar and advice of any old kind.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 19.—Dr. Hunter McGuire, who was Stonewall Jackson's medical director, died at his country home near this city to-day, from the effects of a stroke of paralysis sustained six months ago. He was one of the most eminent surgeons in the South. He was born in Winchester, October 11, 1835, and received his medical education there and at Philadelphia. He headed the movement which brought from Philadelphia to Richmond some 300 Southern medical students during the excitement incident to the John Brown raid; had filled the chair of surgery in the Medical College of Virginia, and founded the University College of Medicine here. He was the author of several important medical works, had served in leading positions in medical and organizations of the country and was chairman of the historic committee of the Grand Camp, of Virginia, Confederate Veterans.

Where "Ads" Pay The Best

A former heavy advertiser in the magazines explains the great falling off in the volume of advertising in the monthly periodicals. He says that most of those persons who purchase extensively live in the cities and in the small communities near the cities; and as scores of these people read a newspaper "ad" to every one who looks at a magazine he and many others find it profitable to do all their advertising in the newspapers. Virtually all magazine readers are also newspaper readers.—Philadelphia Record.
