Vanderbilt System Coming to Raleigh.

Little has been said about it in the newspapers, but for several months a new railroad has been crawling toward Raleigh.

It is a road that means much for this city, but more for eastern North Carolina. It will take our commerce in almost a straight line to the sea, and will gather up and bring back the products of the fisheries, farms and forests of the eastern counties.

Already twelve miles of the road have been graded and civil engineers are on their way here with the survey. Work will not cease until the trains are running.

It is of the Great Eastern Railway that I speak. More than a year ago the general route was determined upon and plans for construction of the line were made. During the past summer work began. It started at Snow Hill in Greene county and the surveyors and graders worked toward Fremont. That point has long been reached by the surveyors, and the graders are almost there. The surveyors started from there Monday and are now on their way to Raleigh. The graders will follow them, followed in turn by the track layers from Snow Hill.

The distance from Snow Hill to Fremont is 18 miles; from Fremont to Raleigh is 40 miles, making 58 miles in all to be built. If you will look at your map you will find that a straight line laid down on it from Raleigh to Snow Hill will pass through the towns of Fremont, Kenly, Archer, Lodge, Eureka and Bull Head. You will also find that the road passes through the most fertile parts of three counties.

But why does this road go to Snow Hill? Is that to be a permanent terminus?

Not at all. Its stop there will be temporary, if indeed it stops at all after its completion to Raleigh. Take your map again. Trace a direct line from Snow Hill to Greenville; thence down Tar River to Washington, and from there to Pantego, on the Norfolk and Southern Railroad, at the head of Pungo Sound, thence through Hyde county, south of Mattamuskeet Lake, to Englehard. There you strike deep water and a fine harbor.

The connection with the Norfolk and Southern is the main point for the owners of that line are the builders of the new road. The Vanderbilt System own the Norfolk and Southern and it is the Vanderbilt System that is building the new road.

The plan was at first to extend the Norfolk and Southern from Edenton to New Bern, by way of Washington, a distance of 80 miles. At New Bern connection was to be made with the Wilmington and New Bern Railroad, a branch of the Atlantic Coast Line, which is eighty-eight miles long. Thence the line was to run to Georgetown, S. C., a distance of about one hundred and twenty-five miles. From Georgetown an extension was to be run to Columbia and another branch to Charleston.

This was not a new proposition, but it is the first time the Vanderbilt System has been connected with the building of a line from Norfolk to Columbia. About six years ago some Philadelphia parties obtained a charter for such a line. The line or parts of it, was surveyed and some money was spent in the venture, but it never amounted to anything.

Now it has failed again, partially on account of the marshy nature of the county through which the proposed line was to run, and the expense of bridging the many water courses. Also it was found that by connecting with the Coast Line at Fremont and the Southern and Seaboard at Raleigh, its new road would have a more than equal show for the business passing over these lines and seeking a deep water terminus. Besides the intervening country is now the seat of a great timber industry and part of it is a fine farming section.

It can be seen at a glance that this new line is full of promise and possibility for Raleigh. Once it makes connection with the Norfolk and Southern another direct line to the North and East will have been established, for at Norfolk connection will be made with Philadelphia and New York, via the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk.

The competitors of the Vanderbilt System in Eastern North Carolina fully realize the importance of this deal, and they are hastening with all possible speed with branch lines to Snow Hill, that they may divert eastern-going traffic to their roads.

The Coast Line's branch road, which is being built by Henry Clark Bridgers from Tarboro to Snow Hill, is about one-third completed and work on it is being rushed with all possible speed.

At the last meeting of the directors of the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad a vote was taken in favor of building a branch line from LaGrange to Snow Hill. Both the State and private interest, except the Tucker stock, voted for the proposition and the route has been surveyed.

Snow Hill seems therefore destined, in the near future, to become a great railroad centre, and Raleigh is to have a third great competing system.

Verily the future seems to have great things in store for us.—Raleigh News and Observer.

By some accident Saturday evening one of our carriers got hold of some copies of THE DAILY REFLECTOR of Friday and gave them to some subscribers on his route. We very much regret this and have corrected it as far as possible.

CRASH IN A STORE.

Shelving on one Side Falls Over

J. L. Starkey & Bro. carry on their grocery business in one of J. A. Andrews' stores, and have one of the largest and best stocks here. Saturday afternoon right in the midst of the busiest portion of the day, their store was thrown into confusion by the entire shelving on the south side of the room falling over across the counters, crashing showcases and scattering goods around promiscuously. A portion of the shelves were filled with crockery and glassware, most of which was smashed into fragments, while such goods as pickles, jellies, sauces, and other stuff in glass were broken and mixed in a conglomerated mass, package goods and confections faring almost as bad. The damage to the stock is considerable.

At the time of the collapse Mr. J. L. Starkey and a boy were the only ones behind the counter on that side. Mr. Starkey was in the act of getting some candy out of the showcase, when attracted by the noise, he looked around in time to see the shelves falling, and he dodged around the end of the counter just as the case where he was standing was smashed into a thousand pieces. Had he been a moment later he would probably been crushed to death. The boy was on a step ladder putting up some goods and was thrown out into the middle of the store. He was somewhat injured in one foot.

Carpenters were called in as quick as possible to put the shelves back up, and in about two hours the firm was ready to re-open the store and proceed with business, though the goods were in a demoralized condition.

It was a bad disaster, yet remarkable that no one was killed or seriously injured.

HOUSE BURNED.

Building and Contents Insured.

About 2 o'clock this morning the house near the corner of First and Cotanch streets, owned by Mr. W. H. Cox, of Kinston, and occupied by a woman named Beula Lee, was destroyed by fire. The occupant was absent from town and left a colored woman in charge. The fire originated about the kitchen. Most of the furniture was saved, and both furniture and building were insured.

The house just west of the burned building caught on fire but was saved by the Red Hawk fire company. They put their hand engine at the river and from that distance played a nice stream on the fire.

Hope Fire Company did not get to the fire, at least in working shape. Several members went to the engine house but found the horses locked up and the driver and keys gone. They tugged the steamer out as far as the cistern, but the fire was too far away to be reached from there so they went no further. Even if the engine had gone to the river the building could not have been saved. Being at such an hour of the night and so far away the fire had progressed beyond control before it was discovered and an alarm given.

The Well Dressed Man

Attracts your attention wherever you meet him. He is numerous in Greenville this fall, and we take considerable of the credit for this condition of affairs. Ask the man if we are not entitled to this honor. Never before in the history of this establishment have we carried such a complete assortment of

We have taken great care in growing the most improved bright tobacco seed—the White Stem Orinoco, the Broad Leaf Orinoco are the most reliable tobacco ever grown in any section. Every man in the east, who cultivated this kind will average from 2 to 5 per cent more than any other kind. Mr. Sam Mumford, at Ayden, says that his Orinoco will bring fifty dollars more per acre than any other kind grown on same land. Martin county people are growing Orinoco and coining money. You will find these seed for sale at Dr. Wooten's and Dr. Bryan's Drug stores and at some store in each section of the county at 25 cents per package.
