ORIGINAL OBSERVATIONS

Made by the Orange Va. Observer.

When some people lose their minds they don't miss much.

You are not obliged to believe all the evil things you hear about yourself.

Your success is a crime which many of your "friends" can never forgive.

The average girl looks out for a man with a fine figure—in his bank account.

The only thing a man wants after he gets all the money he needs is more money.

There are too many people in the churches who want to dead-head their way to heaven.

If all the people who give good advice would follow it themselves the world would be full of angels.

It is said that marriage is a lottery. We call the attention of the postmaster general to this matter.

There is one class of joiners who are not affected at all by any labor strikes. We refer to the ministers.

We are glad to know that it is no longer fashionable to call people lazy—they are only taking the "rest cure."

University Notes.

Chapel Hill, March 23, 1901.

The annual address before the Law School of the University will be delivered in Gerrard Hall on Tuesday, May 7, 1901, by Honored Richard H. Battle, L. L. D.

The catalogue of the University for the collegiate year 1900-1901 was issued from the University press this week. The summary shows a total, exclusive of the summer school, of 129 students, divided as follows: Academic Department 391, law school 64, medical school 42, school of pharmacy 32. The enrollment this year is the largest in the history of the institution.

The Arizona Assembly has dismissed its negro janitor because in a letter to an Arizona paper he rebuked one of the Representatives for having used the word "nigger" in a speech.

Newspapers As Educators.

A rural patron some time ago told the editor that the Standard is the cheapest thing he buys. He says it is worth more in educating his family than all the school books he buys. Those they study for a few months and then lay them up, but they read the Standard all the year round it is a continual school for them. Two grown members of the household could not read until he began taking the paper, but soon learned to read it. Along this line is the following clipping from the Anderson Intelligencer. "A school teacher says that pupils who have access to newspapers at home, when compared with those who have not, are better readers and better spellers, excellent in pronunciation and read more understandingly and obtain practical knowledge of geography in almost half the time it requires for others. The newspaper is decidedly an important factor in modern life."—Concord Standard.

Children Should be Taught to be Thrifty.

A saving bank account is a great incentive to thrift in children. If one is begun for the baby, even with a very small sum, and added to through childhood and youth with a certain proportion of the money that otherwise would be spent carelessly and thoughtlessly by the child, there will be a very respectable amount on the credit side the ledger when the depositor is eighteen years old. The habit of self-denial is not the least of the substantial benefits that follow a wise economy of money.—April Ladies' Home Journal.

The Confederate Veterans of Chattanooga, Tenn., have begun a movement for the erection of an elaborate monument in commemoration of the "heroic women of the South during the civil war." The plan is to receive only voluntary contributions from the different camps of that order, and already a liberal sum has been deposited in a bank for that purpose. It is definitely stated that only free offerings are desired, and no entertainments or other schemes for raising money shall be indulged in for this purpose.

The undertaker finally overtakes us all.

BURNED AGAIN.

Another Fire On Fifth Street:

About a quarter past 2 o'clock Sunday morning fire was discovered in the restaurant adjoining M. L. Starkey's bar on Fifth street. The restaurant and bar were in the same building with a partition between them. The restaurant portion was divided in two rooms the cooking department being in the rear. It was in this cook room that the fire started, and it had progressed enough to burst through the roof when found.

The restaurant and bar room were both burned up, and the ice house on the same property nearly half consumed.

The firemen did some of the quickest and best work at this fire that they have ever done. In ten minutes from the time the engine left its quarters they had a stream on the burning buildings, and notwithstanding the ice house looked like it was a solid mass of flames they put it out and checked the fire.

Chief A. J. Griffin is always good at a fire, but he never managed one better than this. He got every man just at the right place, and the effect was instantly seen. The good of the citizens auxiliary recently appointed by Mayor J. G. Moye was also shown. Many of these were on hand to man the ropes and keep the crowd out of the fire lines, and helped the firemen in various ways. Chief Griffin says if the citizens committee will just continue to give him that kind of assistance he will show them how well his boys can fight fire when their services are needed.

This building burned Sunday morning was the same that was partially destroyed on the night of February 22nd when the fire started in King's stables. It was owned by McGowan & Weathington, the barroom being occupied by M. L. Starkey and the restaurant by Peter Plummer. The owners had just replaced the house and just got it ready for Starkey to move back in last week. Nothing hard-ly was saved out of the building.

Increased in size to 128 pages, and with a table of contents excellent in interest and variety, the April issue of Everybody's Magazine sets a high standard and indicates the characteristics which may in future be expected of this publication. In directing the policy of a monthly, some time must elapse ere the plans of its editors can be properly consummated, but in the forthcoming issue there is realized a high ideal of individual excellence, together with that distinctness of individuality, a new venture in magazinedom must have for success. The leading features may be summed up as follows: Vivid nature articles, entertaining expositions of science, virile studies of Western life, high-class fiction, together with an authoritative treatment of some subject of contemporary political or social interest. Among the contributors to this issue are Neltje Blanchan, Ewart Scott Grogan, Owen Wister, Mary E. Wilkins, Charles Major, J. P. Mowbray, George Iles, Bishop Potter, Rev. Walter Laidlaw and Maximilian Foster.

OUR RALEIGH LETTER

End of Impeachment Trial in Sight.

Special Correspondent of Reflector.

Raleigh, March 25.—During the past week the one great overshadowing attraction and subject of comment and discussion has been the impeachment trial—of course.

Among men in public life little else has engaged their thoughts, of a public nature. Scores of the leading politicians and office holders, and would-be office holders, have paid special visits to Raleigh for the one and sole and express purpose of witnessing the remarkable and unusual scene in the Senate Chamber. And the women? They predominate, and have from the very first day of the court.

Many of these gentlemen of high public station and high social standing, and hundreds of gentlewomen largely representing the "upper crust" of society, have, after all, in large numbers attended the sessions of the High Court of Impeachment very much like unto the "vulgar herd" that flocks to the life or death trial of a poor devil charged with a capital crime—through curiosity, pure and simple.

But there are others—who feel for or are prejudiced against the men on trial—both men and women. Indeed, these, of both sexes would not be content to occupy seats in the balcony, but must needs appear daily upon the floor of the Senate Chamber—in the lobbies, of course—and it has actually come to be true that you can tell which way their sympathies or prejudices are by noting the side of the Chamber they occupy—whether the right or left lobby, for some general understanding among them to this effect was reached early last week. And they are pretty evenly divided, especially the ladies—and these are of mature age, as a rule, several of them the wives of counsel in the case, pro and con.

UNCERTAINTY OF THE VERDICT.

During the first four days of the past week each of the four surviving Justices of the Supreme Court, while the White vs. Auditor case and the other "office-holding cases" were heard and determined, were on the witness stand—the fifth (Judge Faircloth) being dead.

The two respondents, Justices Furches and Douglas, were examined first, Justices Montgomery and Clark following in the order named.

The writer was present in a reporterial capacity and took down their testimony; I have heard the speeches of counsel on each side for three days past; I have talked with counsel and other lawyers; I have done more than that—I have talked to several Senators, and I tell you now Mr. Editor—three days only before the end is expected to be reached—that for the life of me I cannot say with any confidence in the statement what the result is going to be.

Chief Justice Furches made an excellent witness and the demeanor of Judge Douglas while on the stand was all that could have been expected in his favor—their testimony doubtless helped their case, for it was frankly and honestly given, and both declared in the most positive terms that it never was their intention or desire to treat the legislative branch of the government disrespectfully or bring the General Assembly into disrepute.

MONTGOMERY'S HUMILIATION.

Judge Montgomery was the most "peppery" witness that occupied that seat at any time. His testimony, under cross-examination, was seasoned throughout with enough "ginger" to enliven up things all over the Chamber.

He and "Cy" Watson, who had him in hand engaged battle royal over legal points, and the Populist Judge, "without a party" now, alas! complained that he was not treated with the respect due a Supreme Court Judge. He reprimanded Mr. Watson for his conduct toward him and assured him that he "was no boy," and when George Rountree, one of the House Managers, "shook his finger in his face," as Montgomery charged, the latter grew livid in the face with rage and told Mr. Rountree "not to do it again."

The examination of Justice Clark, the last witness, was a great disappointment to the throng that had gathered to hear "something sensational," especially when the counsel for respondents got hold of him.

LOADED FOR CLARK, BUT — It had been noised abroad that the lawyers on the other side were "loaded for Clark," and the fact that he was not put on the stand at the outset by the prosecution, as expected, added to this impression.

When he did take the stand, and after the direct examination was over—when every one was looking and listening for "something to drop," the crowd was disgusted beyond measure and even caution for many showed it.

"Stand aside!"

Surely that was not what Attorney Frank Osborne said—do I hear aright? "Stand aside," and not a question asked! Not even a squirrel-shot of that "load" fired! Bah! What does it mean? That is the way the crowd thought and felt and spoke—some of them.

Well, it meant this:

Not that the loaded gun of cross-examination was not still in the possession of counsel—not that.

But the enemy had spiked it!

In other words, one of counsel for the defense had talked and partly in Judge Clark's presence, about the writ of mandamus prior to being retained in this case.

That man was Governor Jarvis, if the lawyers on his side had pressed Clark he would have told what Jarvis said to him—would have done so, anyway, had not Jarvis objected and the Court sustained the objection—and that would have hurt the case of the respondents.

So, in order to save the defendants, Clark was spared—for it is probably true, as reported, that some "mighty uncomfortable and damaging questions" could have been propounded to "the man with the vaulting ambition."

Then, I heard on good authority, that the real reason Clark was not cross-examined was because Judge Furches asked that, and the reason he asked it was because Clark had not attacked him on the witness stand. Take your choice as to which of the two explanations is the correct one.

THE END IN SIGHT.

The trial is expected to come to a close by Thursday or Friday of this week—possibly a day earlier.

The fifty jurors (Senators) may or may not consult before rendering their verdict. In the event that they should desire to do so, they will go into "executive session," and discuss any point they elect among themselves.

And then will come the final roll-call, which will mean so much to two men and their families and good name in history and which will mean as much to the State and its future safety from encroachments of the judiciary upon the legislative branch of the government—provided, these men are believed to have wilfully or intentionally violated the Constitution of the state

If seventeen Senators respond "not guilty" the respondents are safe.

If thirty-four answer "guilty" they are ruined. Better would it have been for them had they never lived to bear and transmit to their children and children's children the disgrace such a verdict would heap upon them!

God grant that the verdict may be a just and righteous one. LLEWELLYN.

Alexander Collins and Millie Vinson

Died.

Mrs. Lucy Patrick died Saturday evening, March 23rd, at 9:30 o'clock, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. I. C. Hardy, in West Greenville, after a lingering illness.

Mrs. Patrick was in her 80th year. She leaves three daughters and one son—Mrs. Hardy, Mrs. Marion Johnson and Mrs. Andrew Outerbridge, all of Greenville, and Mr. C. L. Patrick, of Ayden. She also leaves 23 grandchildren and 8 great-grandchildren.

The interment took place Sunday afternoon at the family graveyard two miles from town.

Mrs. Patrick united with the Methodist church when only 10 years of age and lived the life of a true Christian.

It isn't difficult to bring a bald-headed man to the scratch.

A new use has been found for the telephone in Indianapolis, where subscribers arrange with the central office to be called in the morning, as at hotel, the telephone bell serving as an alarm clock. Sometimes, too, the obliging central office is asked to ring regularly through the night, at intervals of an hour or two hours, as the case may be, to give notice that it is time to take medicine.—Telephony.
