King's Daughters' Convention.

The twelfth annual convention of the North Carolina branch of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons will be held at Greenville, N. C., on April 30th and May 1st and 2nd. All circles in the State are earnestly requested to send delegates and at once to notify Mrs. J. B. Cherry, Greenville, in order that arrangements may be made for their entertainment.

Several years ago it was reported that some young man in Pennsylvania had discovered the lost art of tempering copper so as to make it hard as steel. But this young man and his discovery seem to have been lost. Now the report comes from Seattle, Washington, that a Mrs. Benstrom and her two sons have made the discovery and can make copper so hard that a file can't make an impression on it, and that a chisel made of it will cut through the hardest armor plate. The boys were at work projecting and their mother helped them. There is a secret in it and now we shall see if a woman can keep a secret.—Wilmington Star.

The Osceola Band Concert.

The Osceola band, of Greenville, came yesterday afternoon on the A. C. L. freight and gave a concert in the opera house last night to a good-sized audience, the receipts being a little over $80.

The Osceola band has the reputation of being one of the best in the State, and judging from the magnificent music furnished last night, they deserve it. Each piece played was heartily applauded, and the audience thoroughly enjoyed the entire performance.

Mr. J. W. Eberhardt rendered a cornet solo entitled "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," accompanied on the piano by Miss Bruce Forbes. It was so much appreciated they had to respond to a clamorous encore.

The solos of Mrs. Travis Hooker and Mrs. J. B. Cherry were enjoyed more than any part of the concert. They both had to respond to encores, and when Mrs. Cherry sang a coon song it brought the audience to such a pitch of enthusiasm that she had to respond to a second encore. The accompaniments on the piano were all faultlessly rendered by Miss Bruce Forbes.

The following composed the band: Mess. Ola Forbes, leader; C. S. Forbes, A. A. Forbes, Sr., A. A. Forbes, Jr., J. W. Eberhardt, J. Q. Smith, Jas. H. Farrar, Geo. Woodward, David James, Ernest Forbes, Gus Forbes, Seth Hooker, Lawrence Hooker, Henry Hooker, Jno. Horne, Forbes Kennedy, James Moore and Jno. Evans.

The following came to take part in the concert. Mrs. Travis Hooker, Mrs. J. B. Cherry and Miss Bruce Forbes.

Mess. Harvey Jones, Tom Hooker, T. J. Moore, R. A. Tyson, M. H. Quinerly, C. B. Mayo, of Greenville, and Dr. Geo. B. W. Hadley, of LaGrange, were in the city to attend the concert.—Kinston Free Press, 28th.

The Legislature of Minnesota sat down hard on the cigarette and passed an act forbidding the selling or giving away to any one any cigarette, cigarette paper or any substitution for both or either, under a penalty of $50 for each offense.—Wilmington Star.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings in North Carolina

The State Guard will have an encampment at Wrightsville beach in July or August, three regiments going in camp at the time.

The ice manufacturers of the State have formed an association to control the price of ice and lessen the cost of manufacture.

Mormons are making many converts at Mount Olive, Wayne. One day this week nine persons left that town for Utah. Most of the converts are among the poor and ignorant.

A couple of Durham young people were principals in a romantic marriage Wednesday night. The young lady jumped out of the window of her home into her lover's arms, they drove about six miles in the country and were married in the public road at 11 o'clock.

Mad Cattle.

Some time ago a cow and a calf belonging to Mr. Robert Leonard, who lives near Lexington, were bitten by a dog. Last Saturday the cattle showed every symptom of having hydrophobia and became so vicious that they had to be killed Sunday morning. Mr. Leonard had the cattle buried. Another cow has been acting queerly and a close watch is being kept upon her. The dog that did the biting escaped.—Lexington Dispatch.

Marriage Commission.

The Indiana legislature has just passed a law providing for the appointment of a marriage commission composed of two women who are mothers, two physicians of note and one attorney. It shall be the duty of this commission to prepare a set of questions to be asked by marriage license clerks and by justices or clergymen who perform marriage ceremonies. The purpose is to compel candidates for matrimony to pass an examination as to their physical, mental and moral fitness, in the interest of society at large. The probabilities are, however, that hereafter when Indianians want to marry they will evade this ordeal by going into another State. The idea is undoubtedly a good one, but few young people will care to stand the examination contemplated.—Ex.

It stands to reason that no "refined young widow" or "young lady of refinement" with a large fortune will ever need to advertise for "a true and loving husband," yet the number of men taken in by this method appears to be legion. One of these rich and refined young persons turns out to be six youths under 21, of Syracuse N. Y., who were sharp enough to line their pockets before their matrimonial bureau was broken up by an official investigation. About 100 letters a day it is said, were delivered to this particular bureau. All of these were answered, the applicants being notified that the "widow" approved of their orthography and composition and that the "bureau" would arrange for a continued correspondence for $1 sent by return mail. As the boys are said to have operated this scheme several weeks without interruption, it is estimated their profits must aggregate several thousand dollars.—Macon, Ga., Telegraph.

FRIDAY, MARCH 29, 1901.

Again comes the report that Aginaldo is captured, and unless it is denied again in the next day or two he may be captured sure enough this time. The report says that General Funston bagged the insurgent leader and has taken him to Manila.

There is a calling of conventions again in the cotton growing states to get the farmers to agree to reduce the cotton acreage. It may result as such efforts have resulted in the past—everybody think everybody else is going to cut down the acreage and this particular everybody puts in a larger crop than ever. If cotton don't come down to 6 cents next fall it will hardly be the fault of the farmer.

Maybe, Maybe.

That was a sad case printed in The Danville Bee yesterday of where the North Carolina father came to Danville to get his daughter who had gone astray. She had been a good girl at home; had been a member of the church and Sunday school—and she had left home and stopped in Danville, and chose to become a woman of the town. All the time that she was living beneath the roof of the red-litten windows which floated the scarlet flag of sin she wrote to her people letters full of cheer and hope and told how she was prospering as a sewing girl. Finally the eyes of the old people were opened by a friend. The father came, bowed down with grief and found his unmarried daughter with a child six weeks of age and he took her to his arms and carried her back to her home—back where innocence and virtue and love and hope still dwelled. How many fathers would have done what that old man did? Many doubtless, but not all. So as he carried his sorrow in silence and returned with the soiled and polluted daughter, maybe, maybe somewhere beyond this world of strife, a white-winged angel saw what the old man did and writ upon the scroll: "Both shall be saved!"—Danville Bee.

And what about the man who is the author of the downfall of this girl? Doubtless he is being received with open arms in society and regarded as a fine fellow, as is usually the case with such. The villian ought to be wearing striped clothes and doing time in the penitentiary. It is time society (?) was realizing that such a man should not be countenance by people of respectability.

The Housing of Factory Workers.

It is by a grave oversight that the manufacturer has not oftener considered the employee's interest parallel with his own in building up his works. Within city limits, this is perhaps hardly possible; but it is growing more and more common for large works to move, or to be established, in rural and semi-rural districts, where land and taxes are low and there is room to spread as the growth of business may demand. Under these conditions it has been altogether too common—at least in the United States—for the proprietor to make the best arrangements he could for himself and leave his workpeople to get what they could after his bargain was tightly closed. It is not at all uncommon for a factory site to be given to the owners of the business, free of any charge and often free of taxes for a period of years, in consideration of their locating in a certain place. The neighborhood gains from the increased population and the increased chance of employment for its own people; but the employees practically pay the bill for the site, for all ground nearby is advanced greatly in value, houses are built in certainty that they will absolutely be needed by the incoming army of workers, and local landlords and lodging-house keepers put up their prices to the limit.

In a case of this sort, it certainly seems as if it would be only reasonable and just for the employers to act as a trustee of the tacitly confided interest of their men, and to secure for them the same advantages they get for themselves. In this there would be no paternalism, but simply the regard which an active partner might show for an unrepresented one—simply the regard which, it is now recognized, a controlling stock interest should show the other shareholders.—Charles Buxton Going, in The Engineering Magazine for April.

It was lately discovered that two small islands belonging to the Philippine Archipelago were omitted at the time of the treaty of Paris. This was done through geographical mistakes. We have settled the matter, however, by transferring one hundred thousand dollars of United States money to the Spanish government. This Filipino business is costing the people of this country just half a million dollars each day, with an occasional hundred thousand thrown in to pay for a small island which was overlooked. The inhabitants of these islands will not find out in fifty years that we have bought and paid for them.—Lexington Dispatch.

Hypnotism has been quite the rage here for some time but we have just discovered that it may be made more useful than ever. Some afternoons ago a young lady had a young man hypnotized and said she intended putting him to washing the windows. We have heard of young ladies hypnotizing young men before but this is a new service she was to put him to and if hypnotism can be used to make some people work then the half of the blessings it will bring have not been told.—Washington Progress.

A new industry in New Jersey is making flour out of sweet potatoes. A $1,000,000 company for that purpose has just been chartered. If this flour takes we will have to put up some mills down this way, where the sweet potato is found in all its glory.—Wilmington Star.

VIGOROUS OLD AGE.

M. J. B. Potter, Centreville, R. I., 80 years old, writes, Sept. 15, 1899, of Paine's Celery Compound

"Fifteen years ago I had to give up business on account of poor health. I was suffering from a number of old chronic diseases and had complete nervous prostration. In 1891 I commenced taking Paine's Celery Compound and soon found that I was getting the better of my complaints. I continued using it until I was restored to good health. Believing that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, I take the Compound in the spring and fall, and it keeps me well. Paine's Celery Compound has made almost a new man of me, and I have gained twenty-eight pounds of good, solid flesh and blood, thanks to its use."

Strong, vigorous nerves keep the stomach, liver and kidneys active. The ills of old age caused by the breaking down of these great nerve centres are prevented by Paine's Celery Compound.

Plenty of Them.

What is Easter without a new bonnet? is the front seat question with most of the ladies now. And from the displays at the millinery stores this week we should judge that if a woman fails to get a new bonnet it is not likely to be because there are not any here.

The State auditor is refunding the tax on gambling slot machines, which two years ago were licensed, but which the late legislature absolutely knocked out by striking them from the revenue act. They paid $100 a year each as license tax, and, strange to say, only $1,900 was collected from them in the entire State, of which $1,100 was in Raleigh. As the auditor remarked, "this is very excellent proof of the neglect of sheriffs to look after such matters, as there are said to have been over a hundred machines in the State."

No Editors in Hell.

An editor died and slowly wended his way to hell. The devil met him and said: "For many years hast thou borne the blame for the errors thy printers have made in the paper. The printers have deviled thee on Saturday eve for wages when thou hadst not a red to thy name. Men have taken thy paper without paying a cent, yea, verily, and cursed thee for not issuing a better one. Thou canst not come in. In this place there will be a continual dunning of delinquent subscribers (hell is full of them) and the sad wailings of the town killers will be like unto an amateur brass band playing a dirge in rag time. Begone! Heaven is your home."—Lexington Dispatch

The Shad Was Marked.

Two men, Jim Willis, and Will Lovinear, were arrested yesterday and held under bond, charged with stealing shad from the nets of Sam Morgan in Neuse river. The alleged theft was detected in a clever manner by Morgan. He suspected that his fish were being stolen and took a shad from the net and put a number of pins in the fish and also a paper in its mouth for identification. He then replaced the fish in the net. The parties mentioned above brought shad to the market yesterday and the marked shad was found among the number.—New Bern Journal.
