THE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

WINTERVILLE, N. C., July 20.

On Wednesday night Rev. E. Pope, of Snow Hill, gave one of the best lectures of the session. He said he was glad to come in contact with such a host of teachers and imbibe the spirit of progress which he found here. Here an ideal work for North Carolina was being done. He congratulated Winterville upon being the bravest town of its size in North Carolina to entertain such an assembly. Although the town has just sprung up, already she is known far and wide, for she has unfurled to the breezes her banner with the noble inscription of "Morals and Education." The town has shown itself generous indeed to invite such a host of teachers to come and spend a whole month here.

His subject was, "The Teacher's Opportunity." North Carolina has often been referred to as the Rip Van Winkle State, but she is no longer asleep. She is now offering an education to all.

For the last ten years the high schools and colleges of the state have been giving better prepared teachers and the result is being seen in the schools.

The man who was going to act as guide to show to the traveling world the places of interest on the historic field of Waterloo spent months studying the grounds so that he might be a good guide. So the teachers must first by thorough training qualify themselves to develop the best that is in the child.

An errand boy in New York, who became a millionaire on being asked how he succeeded so well, said he put his whole soul in the work. So must the teacher do. When the pupil see that the teacher's soul is on fire they will strive harder to learn.

In the future the glory and honor of men and women will depend upon their culture. The women have led in this work in the past and must in the future.

Once a lady passing by some boys playing marbles was attracted by a ragged, barefooted one gailows boy who was winning all the games. She persuaded him to go to Sunday school, then to the day school and in later years he was the boy who lay for 12 months in old Bedford jail and gave to the world "Pilgrims Progress." This in turn was the cause of Boxer's conversion who wrote the "Call to the Unconverted" and "Saint's Rest". All of these books have shed their influence over the ages and led thousands of souls in the way of life.

The first Sunday school ever started was by a woman although this credit is given to Robert Rakes who started one 14 years later, and then at the suggestion of a woman. When ages shall have passed away Helen Gould and Clara Barton will be honored as the noblest of Christian characters. The teacher has a good chance to correct any mistakes there may be in the home. Many children are neglected at home on account of ignorance or the busy cares of life. Here the speaker related some very amusing stories showing how children are blamed for every thing that goes wrong. It is for the teacher to uplift these and give them high incentives in life. Let the teachers use what they get here for the benefit of the children. Tell them of others who have risen to noble heights.

A lady teaching in Randolph county saw a gawky 14 year old boy come in one day. She took a kindly interest in him. Later he led his class at Trinity college, also at Yale he took first honors in a class of 113 and to-day fills a position in one of the best colleges in the South.

The teacher has a fine field for character building. The most successful in all occupations are educated. Teachers are to lift up the fallen and make them better. Service for others is the best of life and will outlive all else. In the darkest ages of the world's history one died for another and to-day the story of Damon and Pythias is known everywhere. The prettiest statue in Madison square is that of a man holding up a child which he rescued from a burning house and gave the babe safely to its mother, losing his own life in the act.

The reflex influence comes to the faithful tailors in the future.

The best men are to come from the rural districts and the teacher must find and polish the diamonds.

A poor widow moved to Wofford college to educate her boy. By hard work she kept him in college and lived on cornbread and molasses. The boy graduated with highest honors. He received showers of bouquets when he delivered his graduating speech, but he took all to the rear of the hall and gave them to a poor woman plainly clad and wearing a calico bonnet saying "mother you deserve them all."

For all of these efforts to uplift poor children we will receive great reward in this life and the life to come.

One of the most entertaining and comic entertainments on record was given in the chapel Thursday night, 18th. We are unable to name the performance. It seemed to us that it might be called a comedy, a tragedy, or a theatrical performance, but the presiding officers, Superintendent, Davis, called it a debate. The subject for discussion being: "Resolved, that man is the head of the household." Speakers

—Prof. G. E. Lineberry, W. H. Ragsdale, F. E. Carr, C. S. Coon, Z. D. McWhorter, E. F. Munford and Messrs, W. F. Evans, John Stokes and M. P. Davis. The speeches were limited to two minutes each and Misses Lucy Brooks and Clyde Cox were the very accurate time keepers for the occasion. The speeches were filled with stories from physiology civil government history, negro songs, dialect recitations, keen with side splitting anecdotes and soul stiring oratory and clearly demonstrated the fact that neither the first or second congressional districts were lacking in material with which to fill the national hall of legislation.

The decision of the question was left for the audience to decide when they shall have learned more about it from "Sweet experience."

It is important that those who go on excursions for pleasure or health should make some provisions against the attacks of bowel disense, which not only cause them great inconvenience, but are sometimes fatal in their results. A bottle of Perry Davis' Pain-Killer is we have found, a most effectual remedy against such attacks. Avoid substitutes, the only one is Perry Davis' Pain-Killer, Perry Davis'. Price 25c and 50c.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 19th.

Has New York a new Democratic candidate for the Presidential nomination? That question is being asked in Washington since a prominent New York Democrat dropped a quiet hint that Col. Dan Lamont, who was Mr. Cleveland's private secretary during his first administration and Secretary of War during his second, and who has since been associated with ex-Secretary Whitney in various big business enterprises, might become Democratic candidate for governor of New York, and if elected would become a candidate for the Presidential nomination. Of course, there are some substantial "ifs" to be considered in connection with this matter, but the whole Presidential question is one of "ifs" at this time. There are several reasons why Dan Lamont would make a strong candidate for any position he might aspire to. First and foremost is his personal popularity—a man who could spend eight years in Washington as prominently associated with administrations as he was with those of Cleveland without making an enemy, as Dan Lamont did, must necessarily be a remarkable sort of a man. The next reason in importance is that he would have the advice and active assistance of William C. Whitney, who has shown himself to be one of the shrewdest political managers the country has or has ever had. This thing may be no more than the idle talk of a summer day, but if Dan Lamont becomes a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of New York, he will get it, and that would naturally make him a Presidential possibility.

Riots Would be Growing Daily.

The editor of The Concord Standard made some forcible remarks about a citizen of that town who owed him money and refused to pay. The citizen overheard the remarks and objected to the language. The editor told him to pay up and all would be forgiven, and was walking away when the citizen struck him. The editor pulled his knife and warned the citizen not to repeat the offence. A magistrate fined the citizen and the mayor allowed the editor to go free after a hearing. If all editors were to have personal difficulties with all the people who beat them out of money a riot would be in progress every day in the year.—Statesville Landmark.

A YEAR AND A DAY

Like a white thread carelessly caught on the dark skirts of an untidy woman lay the dusty road across the dun brown earth. One solitary traveler alone gave a touch of life to the deadly monotony of a landscape made up of low sky and high hills, continually meeting and falling apart in endless undulations. From the earth itself arose the soft, shining shimmer of intense heat, and through it, with a sort of automatic unconsciousness, plunged the figure whose gun and game bag bespoke the hunter—a hunter and a mighty man as well, whose broad shoulders, lithe limbs and lean, unhand-some face bore the unmistakable stamp of breeding and refinement.

For hours this man had tramped, utterly lost to the discomforts of the present, in the intense pain of vivid retrospection, a retrospection suddenly interrupted by a spectacle of human misery as grewsome as it was pathetic. Quite alone, yet within the shadow of a hastily improvised shelter of bending boughs, lay the worn and wasted figure of a man, a man upon whose brow lay damp and cold a ghastly dew, whose limbs had already fallen into the absolute immobility of coming dissolution and whose passing life seemed caught and focused in wide opened, anguished eyes.

Started out of his long day dream, Serge Vernon knelt beside the sufferer, pressing his brandy flask to his lips. "Stranger," said he, "God sent you. I am dying—dying with my work undone. Out yonder I've a daughter looking for water, a pretty girl and a good one, raised a lady with her mother's people, but she left them all for me. I didn't ask it. At first I even tried to send her back. Ranch life is hard on some women, but she loved it—loved everything—the dogs, the horses, the wild, free life that was glad and beautiful to us both—until he came, a man, rich, handsome and educated like herself, a man whose speech was the speech of her own people and who brought to his wooing all the subtle arts of civilization. I never thought of danger, never dreamed of treachery, until the black hearted scoundrel had gone—gone denying the private marriage into which he had entrapped her and flinging her shame in her face. What could I do but follow and wipe out that shame in his heart's blood? Murder they called it; just judgment I knew it, but for her sake guarded well the secret that she has never guessed, that she must never know. But trouble came of it and loss until now, when I must leave my poor girl penniless and alone in a strange land. They have offered a reward for the murderer—$1,000 for him alive or dead. The proofs are all here," laying a purple hand across his laboring breast. "Stranger, she needs it. Will you get the money for my girl? When the end comes, she has promised to go home. Then find the murderer of Jim Rannas and send the blood money to the woman who, before God, is his widow." Jim Rannis! Serge Vernon lived in that moment a year of misery—the long year since Stella Marsden had chosen between his love and his cousin's fortune, the cousin who cared so little for the treasure won that he soon left it for a taste of pleasure and adventure in the new world. All that he had found and deserved death as well. Little liking the task, Serge had crossed the water, had learned the evil story of a wasted life, lived under a false name, ended in disguise and disgrace, had offered a reward for the apprehension of the murderer and had found him.

There was a rustling among the wild rose bushes, and looking up, Serge saw them part above the head of a girl, tall, fair and like a rose herself. Their perfume caught in her wind blown hair, their bloom on perfect lip and cheek, lip and cheek that paled at sight of the dying man as, with a low cry, she dropped beside him.

In the pocket of Serge's hunting shirt lay a letter, a sweet and gracious appeal for forgiveness, written by his cousin's widow. The letter, that morning received, had been less a surprise than his own reception of the fact that she was no longer inconsolable. Knowing the heights of sacrifice to which this guilty wayfarer had attained, seeing his paternal passion returned with absorbing filial affection, he realized that the English girl, willing to sell her sordid soul for the Vernon title, was no longer his ideal of perfect womanhood. Suddenly, loud and clear, from the dying lips came the eager question, "Stranger, will you get that money for my girl?" Serge Vernon laced his head and lifted his hand. "As God is my witness," said he, "I will."

Before Serge Vernon and his wife were married she told him the story of her sinless shame, but he gave her no answering confidence. Today her father sleeps in an honored grave, and she in her happy English home has won all hearts save that of the widowed Lady Vernon. Serge himself discourages this intimacy between the two, feeling it to be unnatural and unwise.

VETERAN'S REUNION.

Give Them a Happy Day.

Next Thursday, 25th, is the date set for the annual reunion and picnic of the Confederate veterans of Pitt county. They have selected the Academy grove in Greenville as the place of meeting.

When notice was given some days ago that they would hold their reunion on the 25th, THE REFLECTOR called attention to it hoping that the people of the town would interest themselves in the matter and do something to make the day an enjoyable one for the old soldiers. As yet we have not heard any one showing any interest in the matter. It will not be creditable to the people of the town if they allow the old soldiers to come here, provide for themselves and receive no attention whatever. Let some steps be taken at once to give them a happy day.

Society Woman Runs a Laundry

About a year ago Mrs. Alfred Schermerhorn, a society woman of Brooklyn lost her fortune in speculation. Nearly all of her swell friends manifested such strong disposition to drop her acquaintance that Mrs. Schermerhorn took the initiative by dropping theirs, and being a woman of sense, began to look around for some means of self-support. She hit upon the idea of operating a laundry and opened such an establishment in Southampton, L. ### Health and Beauty

For generations women have been taught that "beauty is only skin deep," but, like many proverbs, that will not stand. Beauty is blood deep. There can be no beauty without health. Our grandmothers lived closer to nature than we do, and they were so sheltered by their home life that health and beauty were theirs naturally. Skin foods, freckle lotions and face bleaches were unknown commodities. But there has been a great change in the life of women since then. With broader education and larger opportunities, she has developed mentally at the expense of her health. From the quiet duties of home she has gone forth until now we find her in many avocations of life, which prove too great a tax on her vitality. How sad it is to see the cheek robbed of its color and the eye of its fire. These symptoms nearly always show derangements in the delicate feminine organism. They don't call for bleaches or paints or powders, but for a remedy that will make the afflicted organs strong and well. Wine of Cardui is just such a remedy. Women broken in health and spirit have been made healthy and happy by this Wine. No one should give up to the "blues" and this reliable remedy has been tried. It has proven a blessing to other women and will not disappoint you. It brings that buoyancy of spirit, elasticity of step and lightness of heart which is the corner stone of beauty. A healthy woman is always beautiful.

Westville, February 4, 1900. I feel that I must say a few words in praise of the Ladies' greatest friend, Wine of Cardui. It is the most wonderful remedy that I ever tried. I have been a sufferer for years, at times being confined to my bed two or three days each month. A friend recommended Wine of Cardui, and since I have taken it I have been greatly relieved. I intend to continue to take it, for I know it is as recommended. I will use every effort to get others to use it. Mrs. MARY B. COOLEY.

RAILROAD SCHEDULES

Changes Suggested That Will Help the Town.

Acting on the petition recently sent from Greenville to the officials of the Atlantic Coast Line for more convenient schedules on this branch of their road, Mr. E. Borden, Superintendent of Transportation, came to Greenville Friday evening to consult with our people relative to the changes desired. A committee representing the business interests of the town met Mr. Borden at Hotel Bertha and talked the matter over, discussing fully the different schedules and connections with this line. The committee agreed upon these points and submitted them to the railroad officials for their consideration:

(1.) That the morning passenger train pass Greenville the same hour as at present (8:30 o'clock) making connection at Hobgood with the Norfolk & Carolina morning train going to Norfolk. That the evening passenger train reach Greenville not later than 6 o'clock, and in order that this might be done it was agreed to give up the evening connection with the Norfolk & Carolina train from Norfolk.

(2.) That the morning freight train from Kinston be held at Kinston until the 8:30 o'clock passenger train from Goldsboro shall reach Kinston, so that mail and passengers from west of Goldsboro can reach Greenville in the morning.

(3.) That Greenville have a Sunday train, as it would be a great convenience and beneficial.

(4.) That if practicable the south bound freight train from Weldon reach Greenville at an earlier hour.

(5.) That the passenger train be equipped with a better class of coaches than have recently been used on this road.

These changes will give Greenville many advantages that have not been heretofore enjoyed. The morning passenger train will continue to give direct connection for Norfolk. The evening train coming at 6 o'clock will not only give us mail two hours earlier and thus afford more time for attending to correspondence, but will also give us convenient connection via Kinston and Goldsboro with trains for

NOTICE.

I will return from the Boston Conservatory of Music about the middle of August, and will open my music class at the time the schools begin their fall term. I wish to thank all parents who have patronized me in the past, and request those who desire their children to study music to send them to me the coming session.

MISS LINA SHEPPARD.

the west and north at night. Then the holding of the freight train at Kinston for the train from Goldsboro will bring us a morning mail on which Raleigh papers and other important mail could come here. So if these changes are put in effect Greenville will practically have a double daily mail service with one passenger train.

Mr. Borden expressed his personal approval of the changes suggested and said he thought the committee was very reasonable in the request made. He further said his road appreciated the splendid patronage received from Greenville, and it was their desire at all times to do whatever was best for the interest of the town. The committee found him a very pleasant gentleman.
