WINTERVILLE DEPARTMENT.

THE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

WINTERVILLE, N. C., July 23.

Monday night a large audience gave the closest attention for about one hour to the eloquent and stirring address of Hon. John H. Small, of Washington, N. C. He said he was glad to have this his first opportunity of visiting a town so well known for thrift and industry, but especially glad because it lifted the torchlight of education high over all. It was very fitting to have the institute at this place. He had heard eloquent addresses on education which after the charm of the voice was gone left the people with no stronger grasp on education. He was not here to do that or advise how to teach as the Superintendents and instructors knew better than he did, but he was here to speak on "Universal Education."

In doing so he represented a constituency not belonging to any special party and not composed of men and women able to choose for themselves, but a constituency of 600,000 children. Public speakers glorify education but it is for "my child" and not for all. Universal education was the touchstone of national success and the only means of success in commerce, sending abroad the gospel or in world power.

A noted Frenchman in 1793 said the most essential thing after bread was education.

The German empire has great power and influence because Pestalozzi laid the foundation for universal education and the school teacher is abroad there today and as the result she even rivals England in commerce. England holds many dependent nations because back in Cromwell's day they said education was for all, and the great Premier Gladstone who stood for all that is noble in manhood reiterated the same thing.

The power of this great western republic is not due to universities and colleges, but to the teachers who have gone abroad in the land and taught in the humble log huts, teaching all of the people. Here the speaker read a short extract from the Saturday Evening Post showing how the United States had invaded the markets of the world and was driving back England and Germany, said power being acquired from free education. He said it was as much the duty of the State to furnish free education in the reach of all as it was to protect life and property.

If there was a child in Pitt county not in school last year then somebody was lacking in duty.

North Carolina is one of the oldest States but her history is not written. Here on Roanoke Island was the first settlement, first white child born, and first sacrament administered. She has not been lacking in patriotism, as was shown at Moore's creek, King's Mountain and Guilford Court House and in Mexican war, also the civil war in which she furnished more soldiers in proportion to her population than any other Southern State. These daring deeds should be properly written for the children to study. If you have any ambition in life, study yourself and until you can do this you are lacking in one of the strongest qualities. So should a State study itself.

Passing through the statuary hall in Washington City a stranger asked, "who is here from North Carolina?" Should he say no one was worthy? This would be false. Should he say she had one hundred worthy of any hall but not State pride enough to put them there? This would be the truth. It is hard to know which to criticize most—lack of man or base ingratitude.

Today we have no decent history. We have loyal men who can stand and never bow the knee to money, and women who would grace womanhood anywhere, but lack universal education. North Carolina is like the rich young ruler who was not willing to sell all that he had and give to the poor.

If the colleges were all destroyed they would rise again, but tear down public schools and you deprive the children of the chance of being good citizens. Roanoke Island was settled long before Plymouth and Bath was a flourishing town when Boston was only a village, but today Massachusetts has thirty times the wealth, forty times the manufacturing interest and only one thirtieth as many boys who cant read and write as are in North Carolina. Why? S. S. Prentiss told the story in his famous speech at New Orleans when he so vividly portrayed the public school houses which were on every hill top in Massachusetts. There meet the rich and the poor together, There the future statesmen poets and philosophers mingle.

A Republican form of government is the child of knowledge and pines in the arms of ignorance. After more than two centuries of progress nearly one third of children of school age are not in school. Not two months ago a fine looking young man—very type of Anglo Saxon blood had to confess he could't write his name to an important paper. Somebody had failed in their duty. Any county which fails to provide schools for all her children commits a crime against heaven and mankind. You see suits in court for damage to life and property, but there if no way to get damage to life and property, there is no way to get damage for the States neglect of brain, but we can arrange it for just condemnation.

The great educational meeting in Detroit said a child had as much right to be protected from ignorance as a man had to have property and life protected. If the opportunities are furnished and the child don't go to school the law should compel it to go. The Cox Mfg. Co. requires skilled men to run their business and why not the schools. This is what the teachers are getting here and the state should furnish such training.

He congratulated the people on rearing a building worthy of any community, but if there was any child out of school last year on account of poverty then you are lacking in duty. See that all have the chance of an elementary education.

No one does his best except for humanity's sake. Then you have the satisfaction of knowing you have lifted up a human being.

A new day dawns. Once political speakers spoke for schools before election but forgot them afterwards, but in future will not do so.

In future may Pitt, Greene, Beaufort and other Eastern counties see to it that they—the home of freedom—shall not be left behind their sister counties in the west, but join in removing this most common disgrace of ignorance.

OUR RALEIGH LETTER

Our Raleigh Correspondent Secures Interviews with the State Chairman and Other Party Leaders on the Future of the Party and its Platform.

Special Correspondent of Reflector.

RALEIGH, N. C., July 22.

There has been a great deal of interest manifested all over the country during the past week over the action of the Ohio Democratic Convention in declining to endorse the last National platform (by a vote of some 900 to 6) and its failure to "express confidence" or mention in any way the last candidate of the party for President, and some of the dailies up North have been publishing interviews with the party leaders in the various States on this initial movement to prepare for a different declaration of principles and to abandon the dead issues of the last two campaigns—free silver and the other pro-populistic plank.

I have interviewed a number of the leaders of our party in North Carolina, and find that all of them with scarcely an exception, endorse the platform adopted by the Ohio Democrats and approve of the course pursued by that convention.

WHAT SENATOR SIMMONS SAYS.

Among the number who have favored me with their views is Senator Simmons, Chairman of the State Committee, who ought to be good authority. Senator Simmons said:

"The Ohio platform, in many respects, is an admirable Democratic pronouncement. It is on the right line. The next National Convention of the party should, in my opinion, neither re-affirm or repudiate the platforms of recent years, but it should modify them and make an up-to-date platform of its own in line with the best thought of the country and the best interests of all the people.

"In matters of policy and expediency there should be concessions to changed conditions. A stand should be taken for a broad and progressive program of National progress and development. But there should be no surrender or abandonment of the fundamental and immemorial principles of the party. They are as immortal as the principles of free and representative Republican government."

Mr. Simmons added that he did not think the Ohio Convention intended any reflection upon Mr. Bryan, "who is regarded by so many of his countrymen as a great man, actuated by pure and honest motives"; nor did he believe that Mr. Bryan will countenance or aid the plans of some of his alleged partial "friends" to put out a bolting ticket in that State, for which purpose it is proposed by a few of them to hold a convention on July 31st.

EX-CHAIRMAN POU'S VIEWS.

Hon. James H. Pou, former Chairman of the State Committee, a particularly shrewd and able party leader, said:

"I regard the action of the Ohio Democracy as a most hopeful sign. It is a promise that we will not allow past divisions to prevent future unity. Our party will not please its enemies by tying itself to the hopeless issues of the past, but will promptly meet new conditions and continue to do battle for the people's rights. It promises success next year in States that we haven't carried since 1892. I regard the outlook for party success now as brighter than at any time since the veto of the seigniorage bill in 1894.

"We will find a great leader in ample time—one who will lead us to victory in 1904."

Mr. Pou also stated that he did not regard the action of the Ohio Convention as an internal reflection on Mr. Bryan, adding: "While many Democrats do not subscribe to Mr. Bryan's views, he is regarded by a great many as a great man, possessed of pure and honest motives"

General J. S. Carr's views along this line were published last week, and I have obtained those of several other leading Democrats for New York papers, but it is impracticable to say, they all agree that the "dead issues" and the impracticable and unpopular populistic planks of the last two National platforms must be abandoned and that the party must boldly meet the new conditions and bravely champion the right side of the paramount issues of the present and future.

At present Gorman, of Maryland, and Senator Hill, of New York, seem to be the favorites for next Presidential nomination. But it is impossible to see three years, ahead, in politics especially, and a new man not now thought of may then become the most available and strongest candidate.

Spraying to Kill Weeds.

We have been watching the reports of killing weeds by spraying with copper sulphate for some time, waiting until some decision was reached as to proper strength to apply, amount to use, time of using and results, says American Cultivator. We would not advocate it where the cultivator, weeder or the hand hoe can be used, as we think that the stirring of the soil is as important as the destruction of weeds, but upon the cereals and such crops as cannot be well cultivated this may prove important. An experiment with a 10 per cent solution, or 10 pounds of the sulphate in 12 1/2 gallons or 100 pounds of water, used when wheat was three to five inches high or about June 1 was found to kill ragweed, wild barley, wild buckwheat, penny cress and other weeds, while 4 pounds in 50 gallons killed ragweed, mustard and some other weeds. The stronger solution burned the wheat leaves at the tip, but the yield was much larger than on an adjoining plot not treated. The increase of the crop we should not consider as important as the freeing the land and the seed grain from the seeds of these foul weeds. About 40 gallons were used to the acre, and it was found to be an economical method of destroying weeds even when the larger amount was used.

Growing Rape.

From all the reports we see from those who have grown rape we believe it to be a good and profitable crop to raise for green feeding swine, sheep and young stock or for poultry that are confined to yards and think it might have considerable value as a part of the feed for fattening stock or preparing them to fatten. Its feeding value is given in the tables as nearly equal to cabbage or a mixture of peas and barley and higher than green fodder corn, and it will grow more pounds of green feed to the acre than either of these excepting the corn, while the seed is not expensive or the labor of caring for it not great. If fed to milk cows, it might impart a turnip flavor to the milk unless care was taken to feed directly after milking. We hope to hear from some of our readers who will test it this year for swine and poultry. Get the Dwarf Essex seed and give it a good chance where it can be cut and thrown into the yards handily.—American Cultivator.

Died.

Mr. Ben Abrams died Monday night at his home just beyond Grindel creek. He was about 40 year old, and a most industrious farmer. He was unmarried, a maiden sister occupying the house with him.

She's a "Bird."

The wife of a Methodist minister in West Virginia has been married three times. Her maiden name was Partridge; her first husband was named Robin, her second Sparrow, and the present one's name is Quayel. There are two young Robins, one Sparrow and three little Quayels. One grandfather is a Swann and another was a Jay, but he's dead and now a bird of Paradise. They live on Hawk avenue, Eagleville, Canary Islands, and the fellow who wrote the above is a lyre bird, an interested relative of the family.—Ex.

They Went, all the Same.

The average editor has troubles enough to make an ordinary man grey headed in a short time, and if THE REFLECTOR had not started so red it would have been grey long ago. Every day it's something, and when vexation fails from our quarter it comes from another, so it is no wonder that there is a devil in every well regulated print shop. This bit of lamentation is called forth by the fact that the reader of Monday's issue of THE DAILY REFLECTOR might easily infer, so far as the print goes, that the Greenville Light Infantry have no Lieutenants in the company. In making the copy—type-written copy at that—giving the rank and file of the company as it went to encampment, we had the names of Lieutenants J. R. Corey and A. D. Johnson in their proper places, but the printer who got on that copy concluded that it would look better to skip entirely over the Lieutenants and left them out.

The Veterans.

Mr. A. A. Forbes, who Monday made a canvass of the town to get up the dinner for the reunion of the Confederate Veterans on Thursday, tells us that he met with a most gratifying and cheerful response from all he called upon and is assured that the Veterans will have an elegant dinner. He also received enough cash contributions to provide lemonade for the occasion. Mr. Forbes says he would like for a committee of about a dozen young ladies to meet at the Academy Thursday morning to arrange and serve the dinner.

Director Ola Forbes tells THE REFLECTOR he will take the Osceola Band down to play some for the Veterans. It is going to be a big day for the Veterans and they all should come.
