TAX VALUATIONS.

There is much inequality in the valuations of property for taxation. It is not right that such should exist. Those who have property ought to be willing to pay their fair proportion of taxes. Instead of shirking their part of the taxes they ought to feel thankful that they own property to pay taxes on. If wealthy citizens are not willing to bear their part of the public burden they should be made to bear it.

The rich man who fails to pay his proper share of taxes by his property being undervalued, though perhaps he does not realize it, robs those who do pay their fair and just part of the taxes.

The theory of government is that the burden of taxation should fall upon the people in proportion to their ability to bear it: he who has much should pay much; he who has little should pay little.

If valuations were correctly made and property properly listed the rate could be considerably reduced.

The Free Press thinks that a good way to bring about equalization of valuation in North Carolina—that is, to have property listed at its real value—would be to have a law requiring the publication of the tax lists in each county. This would show up the inequalities and public knowledge and public sentiment would cause a correction of the inequalities.—Kinston Free Press.

Twice Widowed by Railroad.

There is a singular coincidence in the death of Mr. John Rosemond, the engineer who was killed Saturday night in the wreck on the S. A. L. near Cheraw.

Mrs. Rosemond, his wife, is a native of Danville, her maiden name having been Miss Abbott. She was a widow when she married Mr. Rosemond, her first husband, Mr. Briggs being an engineer who was killed seven years ago. He stepped from his engine and was struck by a passing train. Mrs. Briggs was left a widow with a two-year-old child. This time her second husband killed in a railroad wreck, leaves her again with a two-year-old child.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Rosemond left for Danville, accompanying the remains of her husband, which reached here Sunday night. She had just arrived in Raleigh to make this her home when the wreck occurred and was boarding at Mrs. John Beckham's. The body of Mr. Rosemond was so mangled that the casket was not opened.—Raleigh News & Observer.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 27, 1901.

The Tar Heel is the name of a new weekly just started at Elizabeth City, W. L. Cahoon editor. The first number shows as handsome a paper as there is in the State. Elizabeth City is an enterprising town and the Tar Heel is a credit to it.

There is no accounting for love's vagaries. A Chicago man who was recently arrested for marrying eighteen different women, all good looking and some young, was a rheumatic old stick of sandy complexion, with a squint. He was not even glib of speech, and so far as any man could judge he was about the last mortal creatures to engage the interest of any woman. Yet all his deceived victims adored him and wanted to get him free. Indeed, he would have been released by their unanimous consent had they not quarreled over the question as to who should have him. This is only one of hundreds of cases. The latest heart breaking old coot is Owen Stickney. Owen hasn't any legs, he hasn't any money, and in the eyes of the sheriff at Rochester, New York, he is a poor spirited creature. Yet the legless wight has induced the beautiful and accomplished young wife of E. H. Green, of Akron, Ohio, to elope with him. Mr. Green is a prosperous and handsome young man who adores his wife and has been good to her. The men who profess that they understand women will please step up and explain.—Philadelphia Record.

The Ohio and Iowa Elections

The two important State elections in the West this fall will be those of Ohio and Iowa and in the respective results some measure may be possibly obtained of the comparative popular strength of the two different Democratic policies pursued—that of turning away from the past with a modified party programme and that of continuing on with the old platform.—Springfield Republican.

To Attract People.

A Boston merchant tells The Transcript that his object in advertising is to get people to his store; that once he has them there he can sell to them what they had no idea of buying at the outset. To attract people he always has some useful article to offer at a low price. "The newspaper is the only medium of publicity which I have any use for, but of newspaper space I use a great deal," he adds.—Philadelphia Record.

There is generally something crooked about a straight tip.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 26. Rear Admiral Schley no longer has the slightest doubt that the whole official power of the Navy Department is being used against him. His letter protesting against Hackett's action in construing his request that a copy of an objectionable newspaper interview which Rear Admiral Howison be forwarded to that officer, in order to give him an opportunity to say whether he was correctly reported into a challenge of Howison's right to sit on the Court was manly and straight forward and must have made Hackett feel as small as most unprejudiced persons think he is, but it did not make him change his ruling. There seems very little doubt that Howison did use the language quoted—the reporter swears that he did and that he was selected as a member of the Court of Inquiry by Hackett with the full knowledge and he was a Sampson partisan. That is why Hackett did not wish to ask him about the interview. These men are playing with fire and are smirching the good name of the American Navy as a whole as it was never smirched before, and all for the dastardly and cowardly purpose of ruining as brave a man as ever commanded a ship. But there is a day of reckoning ahead; It will take place before the Court of Inquiry, if there be fair play and if the officers who sit on that Court have the moral courage to do their duty, regardless of the wishes of the clique that is now running the Navy Department; if not, the fight will be transferred to the halls of Congress, and if the power of the administration over a partisan majority be strong enough to prevent justice there, the case will be then taken before the highest court we know in this country—the people—and then it will be settled right.

This seems to be a bad year for Perry Heath's friends, whether they be manipulating the funds of National Banks or utilizing federal office to get rich quick. Another man that he placed on Uncle Sam's pay roll is in trouble for crookedness. This time it is W. F. Hoey, who like Neely hails from Muncie, Ind., and who owes his appointment to be collector of customs at Nogales, Ariz., to Perry Heath's pull with the administration, who has been arrested for carrying on a wholesale business for smuggling Chinamen to the United States from Mexico at from $200 to $300 ahead. The joke in this case is that Perry Heath especially recommended Hoey to Secretary Gage as a man whose sterling integrity especially fitted him to take a position from which another man had just been removed, about a year and a half ago, on account of irregularities in his office. According to reports on file in the Treasury Department Hoey hardly waited until he got warm in the office before he started his scheme to get rich by smuggling Chinamen across the border from Mexico. It remains to be seen whether Perry Heath's pull can do as much for this crook as it has done for Neely who robbed the Cuban postal funds and is still untried.

Judge Hoke as a Candidate.

While no one pretends to quote Judge W. A. Hoke, of Lincolnton, on the subject, it is understood that his many friends in this section will certainly ask that he be nominated as an associate justice of the Supreme Court next year. That he is one of the fairest, simplest and ablest judges in the South no one doubts.—Charlotte Observer.

A Handkerchief Worth $1200.

Among some superb photographs of "The Handsomest Laces in America," which occupy a double page in The Ladies' Home Journal for September, is shown an exquisite handkerchief valued at $1200. When one closely examines the weblike film, and the remarkable detail of the dainty design, this sum seems none too much to pay for such a piece of work. Its making doubtless occupied the greater part of one woman's life. The handkerchief is now the property of the Drexel Institute in Philadelphia, to which it was presented by the widow of George W. Childs, the famous journalist and philanthropist. The other beautiful laces shown on this page are owned in New York and Boston, most of them being included in the collection loaned to the Metropolitan Museum of Art by Mrs. Astor. This collection is valued at the enormous sum of $62,000.

Trading Away From Home.

The man who sends away from home to buy things which the merchants of his own town have to sell, and seeks to excuse himself with the plea that he can buy goods cheaper elsewhere, knocks a prop out from under the community in which he hopes to earn a livelihood, and perhaps accumulate a fortune. Such a man is wandering off after false gods. The chances are after he has settled freight bills and other incidental expenses, the things he bought away from home cost him more than he could have had to pay for exactly similar articles kept by local merchants. And, besides, he has set a bad example for his neighbors and done himself an injury, because he is scripping his town, his own business interests have not yet escaped. A dozen men of this type will do more injury to a community than six of the biggest cowlers and kickers on earth.

So says an exchange and with much of truth. But when the same merchants fail to make known the advantages they offer even the class of goods handled—while trade is drawn away by the attractive announcements of the big city merchants, who is to blame for it? There is not much sentiment in business and people usually trade where they find that they can stand where they can get it to the best advantage.—Anderson Gold Leaf.
