FALL SELLING.

Putting it Strong.

And why not? When the merchandise and prices will back up the statements made concerning them, we have every right to "Put it Strong." There is nothing wrong in emphasizing excellence when the emphasis is within the bounds of truth, when facts are given without misrepresentation.

Our "Ad" States Facts.

Just facts, something well worth remembering. Counters and tables piled high. Stacks and stacks of mens, boys and youths clothing. Every place rambled and packed with shoes. We can show you to your entire satisfaction. Counter room needed in our dress goods department. Selling must continue to relieve the pressure. Come early before the best things are gone. All the latest styles and weaves in dress goods. Agents for Standard Patterns.

Queer Superstition.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 1.—When Undertaker Benjamin Burns went to the homes of Antonio Perenchy Antonio Green, at Yatesville yesterday afternoon to prepare two corpses for burial, he found a queer state of affairs. An attempt had been made to restore the two corpses of life by burying them. The lads met death by suffocation Sunday in an abandoned well near a farm house in the woods. Perenchy had dropped a bag of chestnuts in a well and crawled down after them. He was overcome by black damp and his companion Green, who attempted to rescue him, was also overcome by the deadly gas. The Italians about here believe in a superstition that if a body that meets death by suffocation is buried in fresh earth soon after death it will be restored to life. When the undertaker appeared three hours after the accident he found that both bodies had been stripped and buried beneath six inches of soil in the garden back of their homes. The parents, however, refused to have the bodies dug up, still claiming that life was yet to return. Not until this morning did they give up all hope and allow the undertaker to raise the bodies and bury them in the cemetery properly.

Cotton And Meat.

The Atlanta Constitution calls attention to the fact that when cotton was bringing 77-8c per pound, ribs were selling at 77-8 cents in Atlanta, while clear rib sides brought 9½ cents and hams 10 1-4 cents. It asks:

"Can a man afford to raise cotton at 77-8 cents per pound, and trade it with a bonus of from 1 to 3 cents per pound for ribs, ham and lard?"

The best answer is the old doggerel that was in vogue in Eastern North Carolina some years ago. It ran something like this:

"A pound of cotton for a pound of meat is really very dear eating;

The man who raises all cotton and no meat

Deserves a genteel beating"

If it is true that a farmer cannot get along when he gives "a pound of cotton for a pound of meat," it is more than true that he is in a bad way financially when he must give more than a pound of cotton for a pound of meat.—Raleigh News & Observer.

Under the new pension act the amount of pensions may not exceed $200,000 a-year, and the total annual pension to each of the four classes may not exceed the following figures: 1st class, $72; 2nd class $60; 3rd class $48; 4th class and widows $30. In case the special pension tax does not yield $200,000 a year, the State treasurer is to make up the deficit from the general fund. But there are nearly 9,500 pensioners under the new act; so many that the maximum allowances can not be paid out of the $200,000. Auditor Dixon says this year's allowances will be about as follows, 1st class, $60; 2nd about $50; 3rd about $38 or $40; 4th and widows about $20. Last year the 4th got only $14.50.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1901.

Raleigh is a bit excited over the city being flooded with counterfeit silver dollars, halves and quarters that were put in circulation by a penitentiary convict. The convict put in his spare time in prison in making the counterfeit coin. His term of imprisonment was out Monday, and as he was about to leave the penitentiary he was again taken under arrest by a United States official, his counterfeiting having been detected.

The cure of a case of tetanus, or lock jaw, by an anti-toxin is of very great importance to mankind. A Brooklyn boy who had stepped on the proverbial rusty nail was attacked by this hitherto incurable malady. The surgeons injected into the brain a serum which was intended to destroy the lock jaw germs, and in a short time the distressing symptoms disappeared. There is every reason to hope for complete recovery. Since we have robbed diphtheria of most of its terrors by the use of an anti-toxin, and since it has been shown that lockjaw is also amenable to that treatment we have the strongest reasons for believing that eventually every serious germ disease will come under similar mastery. —Philadelphia Record.

There is an amazing difference sometimes between the valuation of property when listed for taxation and when reported to a mercantile agency as a basis for credit. The most astonishing difference in such valuations recently came to the knowledge of this writer. A certain corporation recently organized in this State reported its property to a mercantile agency as being worth $600,000 and yet this same property is assessed for taxation at a valuation of $38,000. —Chatham Record.

Comment is unnecessary. The Landmark recently expressed the opinion that all tax returns should be published. The more we think about it the more we are convinced that if the law required the publication of all tax returns once a year there would be a mighty rattling of dry bones among the Ananiases who keep back a part. The pious gentlemen who swear they are worth practically nothing at tax-listing time, but who swear they are worth largesums to obtain good ratings in commercial agencies, would find themselves exposed. —Stateville Landmark.

What a Wonderful Discovery is Perry Davis' Pain-Killer! It not only cures the ills of the human family, but is also the sure remedy for horses and cattle. It has never been known to fail in a cure of the worst cases of colic, and for sprains, galls, etc., it never fails—try it once. Directions accompany each bottle. Avoid substitutes, there is but one Pain-Killer, Perry Davis'. Price 25c. and 50c.

RECOLLECTIONS OF GREENVILLE IN MY BOYHOOD.

BY T. C. DAVIS.

His sister, an interesting old lady, was the oracle of the neighborhood in household affairs, knew all the medicinal herbs and domestic remedies and could tell you the exact date of every birth, death or marriage that had ever occurred in the circle of her acquaintance. She was also a firm believer in signs, omens, and the supernatural generally, and used to relate how going alone through a field of tall rye one day she was suddenly confronted by a neighbor who vanished instantly, to her astonishment and fright, and on reaching home nervous and excited she was told in reply to her story that the person she had seen was sick and had been confined to his bed over a week. Now from a person of less credulity this story would have been received with many grains of allowance. But aunt Bond was a truthful, sensible woman, and generally knew what she was about. Yet after all she may have been mistaken. And it has even been suggested that instead of being a neighbor it might have been the shade of some ancient love, this particular time and place having been selected to claim a coveted kiss she had refused in the days of Auld Lang Syne.

In the two story house on the lot adjoining Mr. Lawrence, Mrs. James Hanrahan, widowed mother of Wat Hanrahan, Jr., and James Hanrahan, lived at one time. It was here her beautiful daughter, Kate, died. As you proceed up Water street on the further corner lot at the cross street stood Mr. Walter Hanrahan's store and dwelling, a sombree looking old place. The store, a long wooden building with double doors at the corner, had been painted red but looked old and rusty, and the dwelling also dark and forbidding was surrounded by a high wall and so densely shaded in the summer it could scarcely be seen from the street, altho' not more than fifty feet distant. He had a long row of ware houses on the side of his lot extending towards the river in which he stored corn, in former days the principle article of produce shipped north. But Schoolcraft traveled through the Mississippi valley and published his discoveries, Clark & Lewis made a report of their survey to Congress, and the Ohio valley and the Erie canal soon changed the granary of the country from the South to the West, and the old ware houses were left to solitude and decay.

What was once a street from Water street to the river had been an impassable gulch for years, business had gradually moved up town, and about the old corner, and Mr. Hanrahan's store particularly, which the old man had kept open from force of habit, the quiet never disturbed by the baited breath of his old clerk, Mr. Spain, or the entrance of a customer, was decidedly oppressive. He habitually remained in his counting room as still as a mouse and was seldom seen, but in the partition wall there was a little square opening with a slide through which it is said he watched his clerks in former days. It was in this old place he made the largest fortune ever gathered by one man in that day in Eastern Carolina, the foundation of which was laid in fortunate speculation in the war of 1812 and '14. He had been a great traveler in his early days and talked interestingly of his travels, was shipwrecked on one occasion and had his feet badly frosted from which he never recovered, and ever afterwards avoided the water as much as possible and even went to New York on horse back to buy goods.

All the stores at one time were on Water street and this was a principal corner. On the opposite side of the street Mr. Franklin Gorham and afterwards John Marklin Bond, an older brother of uncle Willie, did business. And Mr. Bernard on the other corner had his store and dwelling. The dwelling is the house in which it is said Gen. Washington was entertained on his tour through the South after his second term as President. Mr. Bernard was a successful business man, clever and sociable, and a most delightful story teller, and with that peculiar facial expressiveness and gesture common to the French he was enabled to invest even an ordinary incident with more than ordinary interest. His recollections of his old friends, Guizot and Leroy, were particularly entertaining.

At the next corner on Water street and the street leading to the river stood an old building known as the Whitley store and on the opposite side of the street the Whitley dwelling which was said to be haunted by foul spirits and was for a long time untenanted. The negroes gave it a wide berth at night and many a wild story was circulated about unusual noises heard there between midnight and day, but this folly was exploded by Mr. Thos. E. Nelson who repaired the building and occupied it with his family. The Whitley store was considered a desirable stand for business before the big bridge was built, which was probably about 1830, and the store was occasionally occupied when the bridge was repaired; it being on the street leading to the ferry. Sylvester Brown, son of uncle Jackey, was the last person I remember to have done business there. He lived in the building and died there, and also his wife, a sister of Mr. E. H. Rountree, of New York.

Children of the White House.

President Roosevelt will bring to the White House the largest family of small children that ever made its old walls echo with shout and laughter. All the Presidents but one, Buchanan, have been married men. Washington, Madison,
Jackson and Polk had no children.
The only little folks at the White House during the seventy years of the government were grandchildren, or other relatives farther removed than children, and these interrupted the quiet of the old mansion at rare intervals. The elder Harrison was the father of ten and Tyler had fourteen children, but in Harrison's case those who survived were grown when he became President. The same is true of Tyler's children by his first wife, who died while he was in office. The seven children by his second wife were born after his retirement. Lincoln took three boys to the White House, the youngest of whom was 8. Grant and Garfield had little ones, and so did Cleveland in his second term, but President Roosevelt breaks all the records in this particular, having an even half-dozen of happy, healthy, fun-loving youngsters.—St. Louis

PERSONAL NOTES.

Those Who are Passing This Way.

J. B. Cherry went to Weldon today.
J. C. Lanier went to Tarboro today.
Mr. and Mrs. Joel Patrick, of Grifton spent today here.
H. A. Gilliam, of Tarboro, came down Wednesday evening.

Ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis returned this morning from Raleigh.

H. M. Hardee came in Wednesday evening from Norfolk.

J. J. Stroud returned Wednesday evening from Parmele.

Miss Emly Higgs returned this morning from a visit to Kinston.

Ex-Judge M. L. Eure, of Norfolk, has been spending the last few days here.

Miss Brown, representing the Oxford Orphan's Friend, was here today in the interest of the paper.

Cotton Advancing.

The Bureau report that came out today at noon, gave the lowest estimate of the crop that has been made in years. In consequence of this there was rapid advance in price in both spots and futures.

September Tobacco Sales.

The sales of tobacco on the Greenville market for the month of September, as reported by Mr. M. A. Allen, Secretary of the Board of Trade, were 2,665,169 pounds. For the two months August and September, the sales were 4,318,863 pounds.

A Wonderful Sale.

On Wednesday at the Farmers Warehouse Mrs. Isreal Edwards sold her crop of tobacco off of one-half acre and it brought prices that are wonderful. The prices were as follows: 162 pounds at $41; 90 at $39; 71 at $14.50; 45 at $35; 64 at $35; 54 at $41; 50 at $14. This was an average of something above $32 and gave Mrs. Edwards a clear check of $172.86. Just think of that much made on one-half acre, and it will convince you that it pays to raise good tobacco and sell it at the Farmers Warehouse.

Marriage Licenses.

Register of Deeds, T. R. Moore, issued the following marriage licenses since last report:

WHITE

C. H. Wheathersbee and Nannie Belcher.

COLORED

Ed Gatlin and Eliza Little.
John H. Daniel and Lizzie Dixon.
Fred Foreman and Annie Moye.

William Pitt and Annie Brown. The total number of licenses issued during September was 19, of which 5 were for whites and 14 for colored.

Pardon boards are a legislative invention for weakening the punitive hand of justice by dividing the responsibilities for the remission of penalties. The Governor of North Carolina has devised a means of making surreptitious mercy difficult in that State by requiring that all applications for pardon of convicts must be duly advertised in advance in the newspapers of the locality in which the offenders lived or in which the crime was committed. This is an innovation that might be advantageously introduced in other States.—Philadelphia Record.

If you put a sign on the fence or tree or side of the house people must go to it to read it, hence few read it.

SEND YOUR SIGN TO

the people by putting it in

THE REFLECTOR

and you will see the difference. THE REFLECTOR goes to the people and carries your sign with it, and they all read it.

Advertising

in THE REFLECTOR will bring you success. Don't lag behind in the race, but let the people know what you are here for.

The easiest, quickest and best way to sell anything is to advertise it in THE REFLECTOR. Such an advertisement goes straight to the people, they learn what you have to sell and you reap the benefit.

We have just purchased a large supply of bright and attractive cuts to illustrate REFLECTOR advertisements, and you are at liberty to use them. If you don't know just what you want to say, we will help you get up your advertisement. That is our business, to help you talk to the people. The cost of an advertisement in THE REFLECTOR is the easiest part.
