FALL SELLING.

Putting it Strong.

And why not? When the merchandise and prices will back up the statements made concerning them, we have every right to "Put it Strong." There is nothing wrong in emphasizing excellence when the emphasis is within the bounds of truth, when facts are given without misrepresentation.

Our "Ad" States Facts.

Just facts, something well worth remembering. Counters and tables piled high. Stacks and stacks of mens, boys and youths clothing. Every place rambled and packed with shoes. We can show you to your entire satisfaction. Counter room needed in our dress goods department. Selling must continue to relieve the pressure. Come early before the best things are gone. All the latest styles and weaves in dress goods. Agents for Standard Patterns.

The Manufacturers' Record, of Baltimore, makes an announcement which ought to be of special interest to the people of the South. It says:

"Nearly twenty years ago the Manufacturers' Record was established with the view to aiding the material upbuilding of the South. What has been done during these twenty years and what the future has in store for this section will be broadly and comprehensively covered by the foremost authorities of the world in a special edition to be issued by the Manufacturers' Record in commemoration of its twentieth birthday.

"This will be the best and most comprehensive publication ever issued in behalf of any section. This is strong language, but the Manufacturers' Record promises that it will be fulfilled. For all time to come it will be a standard historical reference for the facts and figures about the South. It will be a separate and distinct publication from the regular issue of this paper, and while reaching all of the regular subscribers of the Manufacturers' Record, plans have been perfected to give it a very large additional circulation throughout this country and Europe."

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1901.

RECOLLECTIONS OF GREENVILLE IN MY BOYHOOD.

BY T. C. DAVIS.

Mr. Nymphas Price had a store at the bridge on the street leading to the river, and kept a handsome store for that day. He did a large business at one time, particularly with the ladies, with whom he was a great favorite, and his memory is still green with me as a valued friend of my father's family. His old servants, Isaac and Milley, were notables. Nearly opposite Mr. Price and nearer the bridge Mr. Henry C. Jordan did business. He was a clever man, married Fanny, eldest daughter of Dr. John C. Gorham and moved to Falkland. On the corner lot above Mr. Price, Capt. Marshall Kinsaul lived, a kind hearted man, and was said to have been a great wit.

Going up bridge street the next old landmark is the Masonic lodge, in the first story of which the youth of the town for several generations received their first school lessons, while those more advanced were prepared for the seminary and college. The old building is probably little altered with the lapse of fifty years. But the faithful teacher of that day with the blessings of her pupils and the plaudits of the community has long since crossed the dark river to the land of the blessed.

And now in soft Elysian shades
 Night springs supernal.
 With harp in hand she lists
 To catch the notes of Angel Choir,
 Reclining on beds of Asphodel.

And who of the pupils could answer roll call now?

Sally Hoyt, Mary E. Hoyt, Sarah Brooks, Bettie Hanrahan, Matilda Gorham, Cathrine Congleton, Allen Nobles, John Nobles, Tillet Nobles, Sally Ann Johnston, Mary Ann Carney, William Ann Atkinson, Margaret Hoyle, Jas. Hoyle, Bettie Lawrence, Clarissa Lawrence, Nancy B. Lawrence, Martha Nobles, Sue Nobles, Penny Cherry, Lewis Lawrence, Peter Lawrence, Violet Jordan, Bettie Davis, Thos. Davis, Joseph Davis, Jas. Davis, Dick Selby, Henrietta Green, Ann Kinsaul, Eliza Eason, Jack Johnson, Bettie Brown, Martha Ann Harrison, Bettie Perkins, Sarah Parker, Alvana Parker, Georgiana Parker, Laura Selby, Mary Nelson, Adelaide Clark, Cathrine Mooring, Edwin Mooring. (There are some others whose names are not recalled).

It may be on some bright summer day when the air is filled with the breath of flowers and bird notes echo in a cloudless sky, some sauntering school girl returning home will tell mama she saw near the old lodge gate a venerable man leaning on a long staff who looked eagerly into the faces of all who passed him and seemed to murmur,

They are all gone! They are all gone!

"The mossy marble rests
 On the lips that he has pressed
 In the bloom,
 And many he loved to hear
 Have been carved for many a year
 On the tomb."

On the corner across the street what is now the Episcopal church lot, in a little two room house, William Ruff, gun smith, as his sign indicated, lived and worked at his trade. But I do not remember ever to have seen his shop door opened. He had no family and his name expressed this character perfectly. In the rear of this lot was a public cemetery on one corner of which stood, and probably still stands, the old Methodist church. The scene of many an old time revival, none of your modern protracted meetings in which people are continually warned against excitement, but always a genuine shake-up frequently conducted as I remember by a professional, familiar not only with his Bible and the classic poets, but a hypnotist with a peculiar, solemn face and voice. And when heard at midnight, into which these meetings always extended, in the weird light of expiring tallow candles, midst the mourning, groaning and occasional scream from the half a hundred penitents prone upon the altar rail and adjacent benches, he suggested to his congregation the wailing of the tempest for the great assize, and they separated to their homes with texts of Scripture and quotations from Milton and Dante battling in their brains, or with the Hymn Dies-Ira ringing in their ears.

It was to these meetings after denouncing revivals and revivalists in unmeasured terms that my venerable uncle would sometimes go when he could no longer restrain his curiosity in the prevailing excitement, and once there with the first pathetic appeal his tender heart would melt and with his red bandanna he wiped his eyes and escaped as soon as possible with a vow that he would never enter that church again.

How vividly I recall that tall, square figure, smooth shaven face, long neck, with his clean, stiff, high cut, cravatless shirt collar. He was always on the move, on business, of course, but he could gather more news and later news than anyone else, a faculty much appreciated by his neighbors who, like the citizens of a certain city, spent much of their time in hearing and relating what they heard. Be it remembered that our elders had no daily newspapers, rail roads, telegraphy or telephony. And notwithstanding the Major had a word and a smile for everybody, he was sufficiently dyspeptic to make his humor as variable as the cloud and sunshine of April, consequently he might be seen in front of a store or at the Court house surrounded by a crowd to whom he denounced in amazing terms some unfortunate individual he imagined his enemy, but always with a peculiar humor that impressed those who heard him that his cholera would exhaust itself in words, closing these outbreaks as generally did by predicting some dire calamity on some member of his own family and always relating one or more of his stock stories of which he was hero and came out second best. Seating himself one day at the dinner table he said, "Now for the oysters." Whereupon he was handed an oyster patty, or pie, and laying down his knife and fork with the air of a long suffering and much injured man, he looked up at his wife and said, "Matilda, child, why did you have the oysters cooked in this way?" "Why, Mr. Selby," said she, "I thought you liked oyster pie." "No I don't, no I don't,"

said he, but before he said anything more a dish of smoking hot stewed oysters were uncovered before him, at which he was a little disconcerted, but recovering himself immediately muttering he said, "It seems to me that everybody but my own folks know that I like my oysters fried," and immediately a dish of fried oysters were placed before him whereupon he turned very red, but soon broke out into a hearty laugh and said to his wife and daughter, "I'll give it up, you have beaten me at my own game."

WEATHER BULLETIN.

Fair tonight and Saturday. Frost tonight. Light northerly winds.

A STEP AT THE TIME.

Begin With the Shorter Ones and They Get Longer.]

Knights of Pythias meet tonight.

FOR SALE—Nice house and lot. K. HYMAN.

The cooler weather is stimulating trade.

County Commissioners will meet Monday.

If you want fresh or salt fish call phone 111. J. G. LATHAM.

John Lowler, the world's famous clown, is yet with Robinson's circus.

Just received can crabs, lobsters, pig's feet, ham and pork at S. M. Schultz.

Draw your tender plants under shelter tonight or they might get a frost bite.

If you need a heater go to see Ormond & Carr, they carry the Wilson.

Mr. Alfred Forbes is having a brick sidewalk placed in front of his store.

You will still find the best heater on the market at Ormond & Carr's, it's the Wilson.

All members of the Baptist choir are requested to meet at the church tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Tomorrow, first Saturday and nice crisp weather ought to bring a big crowd to town.

There are some stay watermelons around yet, but most folks feel like giving them the cold shoulder.

A little boy went around among the stores inquiring for banana seal. He wanted to plant some.

Let cotton keep a humping and the farmers and everybody else in this part of the land will be pleased.

The weather is putting people to looking after their last winter's stove, to see if it will do for another season.

The town loses a canine inhabitant occasionally. There are more that could be spared and an over-abundance still left.

Notwithstanding much bad weather this week it has been lively on the tobacco market. Good prices prevail and that brings tobacco here.

The Distinctions.

"I could never see," remarked the Sabbatarian caustically, "wherein the 'sacred concert' differs from the ordinary concert."

"Why, that's simple enough," replied Wagg.

"It is?"

"Certainly. The 'sacred concert' is given on Sundays only."—Philadelphia Press.

One Point Ahead.

Jones—The big newspapers beat the magazines.

Brown—How's that?

Jones—Well, when you buy a big newspaper you get a lot of magazine news, but when you buy a magazine you don't get any newspaper news.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Circus Business.

Mamma—Oh, see, Willie, your little brother can stand all alone! Aren't you glad?

Willie—Yes, I am. Now I can get him to stand up against the fence while I throw knives around him, can't I?—Catholic Standard and Times.

Suburban Summer.

Jones—I put nine buckets of water on every tree in our yard every night.

Smith—Oh, you must be fond of your trees.

Jones—No; I want to make the time pass.—Chicago Record-Herald.

He Couldn't Lose Them.

Mrs. Naggs—I understand your husband is unable to meet his creditors.

Mrs. Wagg—Don't you believe it. He can and does meet them much oftener than he cares to.—Chicago News.

TOWN MATTERS.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen.

The Board of Aldermen met Friday night in regular monthly session, the entire Board being present, and had business to occupy them until 11 o'clock.

The finance committee reported that a fire engine note and interest had been paid since last meeting, and that about $50 was left in the treasury.

The street committee reported that the streets were in bad condition, and that most of the work had been stopped temporarily because of scarcity of work. The committee was instructed to continue all needed work, even if money had to be borrowed to meet the bills.

The lights and wells committee reported that some new lamps were needed to take place of those worn out. They will be purchased.

The market committee reported some repairs needed to roof of market house which will be looked after soon.

The white cemetery committee reported sale of two lots and renewed the recommendation that a man be employed regularly to keep the cemetery in order. No action taken on the recommendation.

The ordinance committee reported that the ordinances had not yet been printed and they were instructed to cause the work to be done at once.

J. White petitioned that he be released from paying boarding house license tax except for three months, the time he had conducted a boarding house, as he has now discontinued the business. The petition was granted.

W. H. Ragsdale, County Superintendent of Schools, called attention of the Board to the fact that no action had been taken on the demand made by the Board of Education at a recent meeting for certain fines due by the town to the public school fund. An order was passed to the effect that the Treasurer of the town pay over, as soon as convenient, to the Treasurer of the county the amount due the school fund for fines collected between March 11th and July 1st, 1901.

The Tax Collector and Police officers made their reports of collections during the past month.

All the offices of police were declared vacant and the Board went into an election by ballot without nominations. The result of the election was as follows: J. T. Smith, Chief Police; W. H. McGowan, Assistant Police; S. I. Dudley, Night Police.

When they were sworn in the two day police officers were ordered to go on duty each day at sunrise and continue until 9 o'clock, P. M., and the night officer to go on duty at 9 o'clock, P. M. and continue until sunrise next morning, except that on Saturdays and special days the day officers are to remain on duty until 11 o'clock, P. M. The officers were also instructed to wear their uniforms.

W. H. Harrington called attention to the dangerous condition of the old stable building and blacksmith shop near where he is putting up a new building on his lot fronting the Court House, and a committee was appointed to investigate the condition of the buildings.

The Board agreed to go in a body on Saturday morning, 5th inst., at 8 o'clock to inspect the proposed new street from Skinnerville, in West Greenville, to Dickinson avenue.

A motion to excuse J. S. Tunstall from paying boarding house license for boarding teachers was lost.

Accounts amounting to $740.21 were allowed and ordered paid. This included the fire engine note and interest amounting to $371.
