FALL SELLING.

Putting it Strong.

And why not? When the merchandise and prices will back up the statements made concerning them, we have every right to "Put it Strong." There is nothing wrong in emphasizing excellence when the emphasis is within the bounds of truth, when facts are given without misrepresentation.

Our "Ad" States Facts.

Just facts, something well worth remembering. Counters and tables piled high. Stacks and stacks of mens, boys and youths clothing. Every place rambled and packed with shoes. We can show you to your entire satisfaction. Counter room needed in our dress goods department. Selling must continue to relieve the pressure. Come early before the best things are gone. All the latest styles and weaves in dress goods. Agents for Standard Patterns.

RICKS & WILKINSON.

A SUMPTUOUS SUPPER AT HOTEL MA- CON.

For the Benefit of St. Pauls Episcopal Church.

Sometime ago we were asking you to "look this way." But on Thursday, the tenth day, we beg of you to come this way. To Hotel Macon and partake of oysters, sandwiches, turkey, pickles and ham. For twenty five cents this will make a supper, that will be no sham. Our extras, are salad and cream. You won't mind paying ten cents, we deem. For the girls will be so pretty and bright, our hostess so charming and entertaining. You will not mind remaining till the "Wee Sma" hours of night, But after thanking you kindly, we bid you good night. However, we sing that sweet refrain, "Please don't forget to come again."

THE PRESIDENT'S DOG.

A little incident which somebody about the White House witnessed the other day is significant both as an illustration of certain traits in the character of President Roosevelt and as an example for his admirers. There has been an impression among certain of his critics that he believed "the strenuous life" to consist chiefly in hunting and killing animals; but though a mighty hunter, he is not merely a Nimrod, as the following occurrence shows.

It was a rainy, dreary day, soon after Mr. Roosevelt's return to Washington, and after a busy morning the President and his secretary started out for a walk. Just outside the door lay a homeless, friendless dog, as close to the wall as he could get, his body curled up into the smallest possible bunch to avoid the rain and possible observation. As the two men emerged from the door he looked up apprehensively to see if a kick or a stern "Be off with you, now!" would compel him to beat a rapid retreat. But nothing of the sort occurred. Mr. Roosevelt's expressive face took on a look of pitying and kindly look, and bending down, he stroked the animal's head and pulled him gently by the ears.

"Poor doggie, haven't you any master?" he inquired. Then he went back into the house, and the dog, with instinctive understanding of the situation, trotted close at his heels. The President ordered that the waif should be taken to the kitchen and given a good meal; and it is said that that dog will be the dog of the White House during this administration.

Mr. Roosevelt is not one of those sportsmen who are satisfied with popping away at tame pigeons. When he goes hunting he wants the excitement of killing a dangerous wild beast. It will be a good thing for his boy admirers to remember that the man who led the charge at San Juan Hill was quite as ready to befriend a homeless cur as to hunt cougars or grizzlies.

The plan to stock the woods of Maine with elk from Wyoming has aroused considerable interest among Maine guides and hunters, and among sportsmen generally. The project will probably culminate in the drafting of a bill to be brought before the Legislature of the Pine Tree State at its next session.

OLD CLIPPING.

A Relic of By-Gone Days.

On Monday Mr. Asa Garris, of Littlefield, brought THE REFLECTOR a newspaper clipping that bears date of 1819. Mr. Garris told us that he found this clipping in one of a lot of very old books that he recently purchased at a sale. The clipping was from a paper printed somewhere in Georgia, though there is not enough of it to ascertain the location. It is printed in old style type when f was used for s. A news item on the clipping is reproduced below, which shows that in those days an umbrella was considered of more value than a wife. Here it is just as it appeared:

SALE OF A WIFE.

The donafter paper says, on the laft market day at Relford a considerable degree of curiosity was excited by a rumor that a female was to be fold by auction! about a 11 o'clock the dealer in human flesh, made his appearance at the market fione attended by his wife, a goodlooking woman of about twenty where the captive far one was offered for fale, with all the etceteras of dress that then decorating her person, when she was purchased for 2s. 6d, with an umbrela, value 7s. The name of the husband is William Jackfon, of Workfon, that of the buyer James Drake, of Sottoncum-lound; and maiden name of the wife, Charlotte Watkinfon, of "Tickhill God blefs her."

On the same clipping is an advertisement set in the following style type that in display would hardly suit the merchant of today: It reads:

THE fabricer informs his friends, and the public in general, that he has taken the last tenement of Tolfairs range of Stores, better known by the name of the old Court Houfe, where he has now opened, an extensive assortment of DRY FANCY, & MILLINERS GOODS. These articles have been selected from the best fresh importations from Europe, and will be BE DISPOSED of for CASH at a very reasonable profit. He folicits a portion of public patronage.

Experts employed by The Indianapolis News have ascertained that the exact centre of population in the United States is ten feet north of the barn of Henry Marr, in the southeastern corner of Columbus township, Bartholomew county, Indiana.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 7.

President Roosevelt has started out by establishing very cordial relations with the democrats especially those from the South, who are most prominent in National legislation. The fact that the President rather boasts of being "half-Southern" by birth and that he has heretofore expressed eminently just and friendly sentiments toward the Southern people has given him a warm place in popular esteem in that section. But from these personal observations it is not to be hastily conjectured that he will violently reverse the Republican policy of regarding the Solid South as terra ingrata. He may lend some official help to any promising effort to break down democratic supremacy in certain Southern states; for instance, the McLaurin movement in South Carolina, or the anti-negro-disfranchisement democratic faction in Alabama. President Roosevelt is a stalwart Republican. He is not at all likely to repeat the Greek gift policy of President Hayes in dealing with Southern situations. Mugwump democrats will find as little favor with him as mugwump republicans. Hence, the wiser Southerners are not predicating too freely upon favors to come from President Roosevelt. They say "he will be as fair as a patriotic republican President dare be" and that is the sum total of their expectation.

Unless there is very skilful management of the projects of anti-anarchy legislation in the coming Congress an unfortunate wrangle will occur. Men of all parties are substantially agreed that a measure to prevent the importation of anarchists and punish the exploitation of anarchistic doctrines should be passed. But any attempt that presages undue restriction upon the ancient rights of free speech and a free press will meet with strenuous opposition from leaders of both parties. Senator Hoar has already sounded a warning against any such attempt and the democrats in Congress may be counted as a practical unit against such legislation. It is even strongly intimated that President Roosevelt would promptly veto any bill that should go too far in that direction.

Two months yet intervene before Congress assembles, but already President Roosevelt has begun to shut himself in with his thinking-cap to prepare his message to the national legislature. The message which President McKinley would have written had been discounted by his public utterances since his re-election so far as its most salient features were predicable. President Roosevelt's message will be another type of document. The whole nation expects it to be redolent of Rooseveltism and will be on the quiver for its appearance. After handling reciprocity, a merchant marine and the Philippine policy the President will have in question, trusts, civil service reform, Southern disfranchisement, the Isthmian canal and pending Statehood demands.

The Virginia campaign is beginning to attract attention among the politicians at the Capital. The democrats are handicapped by having an unfinished Constitutional Convention and an inchoate suffrage plan on their hands. Col. J. Hampton Hoge, the republican candidate for Governor, is a bold, eloquent campaigner and is making a hot and bitter fight against his former associates of democracy. Nevertheless the democrats are confident of a complete victory at the polls, but realize they will have to fight for it without stint or

In Maryland there are complaints of general apathy among the voters of both parties, but it is promised that ex-Senator Gorman, will now actively take the field at the head of the democratic column and he has already predicted a victory for the party in November. The Senator is one of those wise men who never predicts unless he knows.

The strong opposition that is being made to the re-election of Senator James K. Jones, Chairman of the National Democratic Committee, in Arkansas, is giving his friends great alarm. Ex-Governor Clark is attacking the Senator on the stump in joint debates before the people, and the campaign at present is said to wear a doubtful aspect for the latter. Some of the strongest Congressmen from the state are among the forces arrayed against the Senator.

The McLaurin movement to help on a new lily-white republican organization in the South, is not feared by the Democratic leaders. They say it will "die a bornin'", and that the South will remain loyal and steady, in 1604, to a true blue democratic ticket.

The hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," which the President murmured in his dying hour and which has been on the lips of the multitude during the week, was written by Mrs. Sarah Flower Adams, who was born in 1805. It was a record of her own religious experience, and was written as a memorial of answered prayer, probably without any expectation that it would be of public service. It was furnished, with thirteen other hymns, to Charles Fox's "Collection of Hymns and Anthems," published in London in 1841.

Though President Roosevelt is the youngest chief magistrate this country has ever had, he is not so youthful as the heads of some other governments. The President is forty three years old, but Emperor William will not be forty-two until the 27th of this month. The Czar of Russia is only thirty-one. Emmanuel II. of Italy will be thirty-three this coming November. Wilhelmina of Holland was twenty one years old last month, and Alfonso XIII. of Spain, the youngest of them all, was only fifteen on May 17th last.

State Fair Marshals.

Among the marshals for the State fair, appointed by Gen. W. P. Robers, chief marshal, are several from this section. Col. I. A. Sugg is on the honorary list, while on the active list are W. H. Grimes, A. J. Moore, L. W. Tucker, Frank Wilson, Harry Skinner, Jr., Alston Grimes, R. Williams and J. L. Davenport.

DON'T BE AFRAID OF WORK.

One thing that keeps young men down is their fear of work. They aim to find genteel occupations, so they can dress well and not soil their clothes, and handle things with the tips of their fingers. They do not like to get their shoulders under the wheel, and they prefer to give orders to others, or figure as masters, and let some one else do the drudgery. There is no doubt that indolence and laziness are the chief obstacle to success.

When we see a boy, who has just secured a position, take hold of everything with both hands, and "jump right into his work," as if he meant to succeed, we have confidence that he will prosper. But if he stands around, and asks questions when told to do anything; if he tells you that this or that, belongs to some other boy to do, for it is not his work; if he does not try to follow out his orders in the correct way; if he wants a thousand explanations when asked to run an errand, and makes his employer think that he could have done the whole thing himself, one feels like discharging such a boy on the spot, for he is convinced that he was not cut out for success. That boy will be cursed with mediocrity, or will be a failure. There is no place in this country for the lazy man. He will be pushed to the wall.—Success.

Some people who don't get all they deserve are lucky.

Has taking ways—vaccination. It must be the artful girl who paints.

Dull care isn't a marker to a dull razor.

It is much better to hit the nail on the head than the nail on the finger.

Most of us attribute the success of others to luck.

Adout Trade Marks.

When Jenny Lind was receiving her remarkable American ovation, fifty years ago, it was mentioned at a table where she was entertained that an enterprising fish merchant had already registered a trade-mark for Jenny Lind herrings. A young girl at the table promptly said: "That is a selfish idea."

Every trade-mark is a selfish idea. Certainly there was never before such a trade-mark impetus as now exists. Owners of every kind of movable property, whether animal, vegetable or mineral, are using and registering trade marks. To supply the demand for information about patenting trade-marks, C. A. Snow & Co., of Washington, D. C., have published for free distribution a small book of information about trade-marks, explaining what may be patented (registered) as a trade-mark, with pictorial illustrations of many trade marks procured for their clients, and decisions in trade-mark cases.
