very fortunate, indeed, to receive from the U. S. Geological Survey an "Educational Series of Rocks." These rocks, about 75 in number, consist of "Unaltered Sedimentary Rocks of Mechanical Origin, Unaltered Sedimentary Rocks of Organic Origin, Unaltered Igneous Rocks, Metamorphic Sedimentary Rocks and Metamorphic Igneous Rocks."

These will be a great help in teaching higher studies in science. The thoughtfulness of Miss Wood and the kindness of Profs. Fife and Fontaine, of the University of Virginia secured this valuable donation.

Out of forty seven applicants before the Supreme Court for license to practise law only twenty-eight were successful. This is the largest proportion of failures that has ever occurred. This is due to the examinations now being in writing. Until two or three years ago these examinations were oral and did not fully or fairly disclose the applicant's knowledge or ignorance of law. Many a license was granted because of the good luck of the applicant by chance having some easy questions to answer. Rarely were more than one or two rejected. But now when the questions are all written and the answers must be written, a fairer test is made of the applicant's law knowledge.—Pittsboro Record.

SATURDAY OCTOBER 12, 1901.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 11.

On Sunday evening last Senator Thomas C. Platt of New York arrived in Washington. He dined at the White House and spent the evening in earnest consultation with the President. On Monday your correspondent called upon him at the Arlington Hotel and secured an interview. Senator Platt said that perfect harmony existed between himself and President Roosevelt in regard to New York politics and that the President was heartily in favor of the election of Mr. Low and would lend his influence in so far as was proper to that end. When asked his opinion as to the extent to which tariff revision would be gone into at the next session he protested that he was too much occupied with the New York campaign at this time to have an opinion on the subject. When his attention was called to the statement of Representative Sereno E. Payne, of New York and chairman of the House Committee on Ways and Means, Senator Platt remarked very naively "that tariff revision would mean a great deal of work for Mr. Payne."

As may be imagined from the foregoing, Senator Platt was not in a very communicative frame of mind but he seldom is. He has the reputation of being one of the mosy taciturn of politicians even when undergoing the most adroit questioning. The Senator expressed surprise at the impression that had gotten abroad that Collector George R. Whitehead of Porto Rico was to succeed Appraiser Wakeman and a shade of Professional jealousy passed over his face when he was told that Secretary Gage had recommended Mr. Wakeman for the place. "Secretary Gage is not a New York Republican but the President is" he said "and the President knows what New York Republicans are entitled to recognition." "I am sure Secretary Gage has never recommended Mr. Whitehead's selection to me."

The statement of Representative Payne above referred to is in part as follows: "Any law which goes from the House to the Senate is open to the fullest amendment and discussion of every item in the tariff schedules. That this would result in great uneasiness in business affairs, a loss of confidence and secondly a large temporary loss at least to the people of the country cannot be disputed. The tariff question should not be opened unless for the most imperative reasons and only when the benefits would outweigh the temporary embarrassments and loss resulting from it. We are running along prosperously now with the present tariff law."

The truth of the matter is that Mr. Payne is afraid to open the question. The people of the country and particularly of the Northwest are demanding a reduction of the tariff rates. This demand is not confined to the Democrats but is heard on all sides. The action of Representative Babcock in introducing his reduction bill last year was an evidence of the growing spirit. When seen a few evenings ago at the Raleigh, Mr. Babcock informed your correspondent that he was going to push his bill this session because the people demanded it. His constituents want it. Mr. Babcock is very much in the same position as was W. R. Merriam, now Director of the Census, when he was running for governor of Minnesota. Mr. Merriam was talking tariff reform and the chairman of the Democratic Republican national committee called him to ask for it. "The people want it" was Mr. Merriam's reply "and unless I talk tariff reform I won't be elected." He continued to talk it and he was elected.

Now an Absentminded Man Forgot an Important Commission.

"Yes," said the bald man on the last seat, "I'm very forgetful about the little errands my wife asks me to do. No, she never lets me mail her letters. The other day she gave me a very particular commission, saying 'There, paste that in your hat.' By George, I did. I got a little mucilage and stuck the paper on which she had written what she wanted inside the crown of my straw hat and started for the office. Well, I was almost there when a gust of wind came up and blew my hat clear over into a big excavation where a building was going up. I was so mad that I wouldn't stop the car and go after it, but kept on to the office. I noticed the people smiled as I hurried into the building and up the stairs. I had another hat there and wore it home that night. 'Well, my dear,' I said, 'I couldn't execute your commission because I lost my hat.' My wife looked at me, and her face slowly puckered and she said, 'It's a good thing you didn't lose your head too.' And what do you think? That blamed slip of paper was gummed tight to my bald head! I guess I must have mucilaged it on the wrong side."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Laugh Was on Him.

"Yes, peoples, I'm sneaking these turnips out of the farmer's garden, and when I've filled this old barrel I'm off to the next village to sell 'em. See? I reckon ter make sumfing handsome outter this day's work."

"Now, then, up she comes! I could split wiv larfing to fink how wild that farmer feller will get when he finds all his beautiful turnips gone forevermore. I can hardly hold the barrel for larfing!"

And when he got to the next village, as per programme, he had a 19,000 double barreled horsepower fit when he found that old barrel hadn't any bottom to it. Oh, Lor', oh, dear, ain't it hard!

SUICIDE OF TRUSTS.

Will the trusts kill themselves off even if they are not destroyed by legislation? That is a question which was raised long ago in some quarters, but cannot yet be answered with certainty, although there are indications that many of these greedy corporation, like their swinish prototype, are cutting their own throats as they swim down the stream of prosperity.

It cannot have escaped the attention of readers who have followed the course of the New York stock market during the last few days that a number of the most pretentious trusts are having the water knocked out of them very effectively. The stocks of these "industrials," as they are styled in the reports, have long been held up by the great financial operators seeking to impart confidence to the market. They have shared in the common bull movement supported by the kings of finance in the effort at once to protect their own "industrials" and, to steady the nerves of the country during the period of trepidation following the shooting of President McKinley. But this support seems to have been withdrawn and for several days trust stocks little dealt with but quoted at the prices which obtained some time ago, have been offered down on the exchange until they reached their proper level of actual values. This level seems to be very low indeed. The stocks of certain of the would-be monopolies with inflated capitalization appear to be held in but the higher estimation than Conderate bonds. They have served their purpose in making fortunes for their promoters, have encountered independent competition with disastrous results, and have sagged until they now possess merely a speculative value, and very little that.—Columbia State.

PERSONAL NOTES.

Those Who are Passing This Way.

J. N. Hart returned Friday evening from Richmond.

Sylvester Fleming, of Washington, was here today.

Leslie Newton left Friday evening for Winterville.

Miss Lucy Forbes left Friday evening for Kinston.

J. L. Starkey returned Friday evening from Baltimore.

W. S. Atkins returned Friday evening from Scotland Neck.

Miss Mary Lassiter, of Greene county, is visiting the Misses Flanagan.

E. F. Stewart, of Washington, came up Friday to visit A. J. Griffin.

Prof. G. E. Linebery, Principal of Winterville High School, spent today here.

B. M. Starkey left Friday evening to visit his daughter, Mrs. Denmark.

Mrs. S. D. Lee came in Friday evening from Norfolk to visit her son, W. T. Lee.

R. M. Hearne, of Washington, came up today. He will soon make Greenville his home.

Miss Hennie Ragsdale came up from Winterville this morning to spend a few days at home.

F. C. Toepelman, of Henderson, who spent a day or two here, left Friday evening for Kinston.

J. N. Gorman is back from Richmond on the tobacco market and has again started his factory.

Judge F. D. Winston, of Windsor, will hold court here next week, Judge Bryan being too feeble to come.

Lee Stewart has returned from Washington and will again make his home with his uncle, A. J. Griffin.

Beautiful Window.

The center window of C. T. Munford's big store contains a magnificent display of furniture. We do not believe a city store could get up an exhibit more attractive than this. It is a credit to Mr. Munford and his salesmen.

All But One.

In saying Friday that all the sidewalks on Evans street between Third and Fifth streets had been paved with brick or cement, we overlooked the Jarvis stores. There is a plank sidewalk in front of them yet, but it will not be long before a hard pavement will have to be put there.

Marriage Licenses.

Register of Deeds, T. R. Moore, issued the following marriage licenses this week:

WHITE

Benj. Anderson and Sadie Stocks.

J. L. Mathews and Maggie Briley.

COLORED

W. C. Fleming and Augustus Bullock.

Lemuel Teel and Ida Forbes.

Washington and Politics.

If President Roosevelt is sincerely friendly to Booker T. Washington the president will refrain from drawing the negro educator into politics. Washington was called into conference by the president recently, it is said, but was too wise to commit himself on the "southern situation" except to urge the appointment of "the best man" to office. This is "the high, safe middle ground," as a South Carolina politician puts it. Washington has constantly eschewed politics and to that his success and the high regard in which he is held are largely due. It would be a grave mistake to now change his policy and Washington knows it. —Columbia State.
