SOLOMON TEMPLE AND THE QUEEN OF SHEBA.

The Grand and Clossal Biblical Spectacle by John Robinson.

John Robinson's ever popular and ever welcome shows come to us this year with such important accessions and augmentations as to overshadow all contemporary amusement ventures. They have not only materially strengthened their ring and hippodrome performances, and largely added to their already vast menagerie, but are producing an astonishing new feature, which can but commend itself to all classes of patrons. We allude to the grand biblical spectacle of "Solomon, His Temple and the Queen of Sheba." Unerring in historical accuracy, faithful in scenic delineation, realistic in depiction of incidents and events, impressively grand in pageantic effects, magnificent in costumes and appointments, entrancing in musical features, bewitching in beautiful ballets and exciting in games and chariot races. This unprecedentedly sublime spectacle will commend itself to every visitor. The show will exhibit at Greenville Tuesday, October 15th.

1901 Crop To Be 9,100,000 Bales.

Hot Springs, Ark., Oct. 10.—The convention of Cotton States Commissioners of Agriculture adjourned sine die this afternoon. A report of the committee on uniform fertilizer guarantees and laws was the feature of to-day's session. It recommends to the Legislatures of the cotton States that a law be passed similar to that now in force in the State of Georgia practically bars the lower grades of fertilizers from the markets:

The estimates of the commissioners of the cotton crop for 1901 is 6,100,000 bales. This estimate is based on government and State reports and the observation of the commissioners. Pursuant to a resolution passed by the association a committee of six was appointed by the chair to appear before the congressional postal committee and recommend that all printed matter and seeds mailed by the Agricultural Departments of the States of the Union go through the mails free. Resolutions were also passed endorsing the movement in the Southern States looking toward establishing courses of instruction in schools in elements of scientific agriculture. The association then adjourned to meet in Nashville next year.

"Go South, Young Man."

Some one from Victor, Iowa writing in The Southern Farm Magazine over the initials "I. S. R.," urges the young men of the country not to come west in search of Dame Fortune's golden smile, but by all means to go south. We quote the writer's language as follows:

"Go south, young men, and build yourselves up. The country will take care of itself. We have never invited you specially to come west except on a speculation, while the south invites you as a help. When matters of civil government are once adjusted the older people will flock thitherward on account of the climatic advantages. The younger people should flock there that's different—that is different in style, in make and in price, from the suits nearly every store has.

Our spread is ready and you are invited in to see it. Every style that fashion has smiled upon is here, and every suit—as it comes to us goes to you, at a bargain.

and assist making the surroundings still more attractive. The south needs no booming. Common sense and education teach the thinking mind which locally has the preponderance of good things. If there were no objections nature would be completely upset. If the main object is even to make money, the preference is in the south. Looking from the standpoint which I see the subject convinces me that it is a duty for men to use their influence in the same direction. I sign myself the friend to the young people of the east, and especially northeastern portions of the country. If, however, they are determined to come west, I shall first advise them, should they write me, to go south."

This writer, whoever he may be, has an intelligent appreciation of the inducements which this section of the country offers. We heartily commend his advice to the young men of other sections.—Atlanta Constitution.

More than twenty-five good stories will form part of the contents of the five weekly issues of The Yourth's Companion in October. Among the writers of them will be Jane Barlow, C. A. Stephens, Mrs. Steel, R. L. Hendrick, Sarah Orne Jewett, Annie H. Donnell, L. J. Bates, Carroll Rankin and Holman Day. There will be stories of sea and land, stories of North and South, stories of the pioneers on the old frontier, stories of adventure in field and forest.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1901.

Today the period of mourning for President McKinley ended, and flags on government buildings over the country that had hung at half mast were raised to full mast.

Col. Harry Skinner has been to Greensboro attending a gathering of prominent State Republicans. Revenue officers and postmasters composed most of the attendants. A Greensboro correspondent to the Charlotte Observer says that Skinner made the speech of the occasion. The correspondent says, "he declared that he believed implicitly in everything taught in the Republican catechism, including protection, subsidies, etc. He held that these principles, if carried out, would enrich North Carolina and the South, even as they had added to the accumulated wealth of the New England States."

THE NEWSPAPER AS AN EDUCATOR.

The newspaper of today, particularly of metropolitan make-up, offers a liberal education to the individual who would learn. In fact the newspaper is as great an educational factor of our modern civilization as the school room, though this fact is not appreciated nor comprehended by every one. It goes without saying that those who would drink deep from the well of knowledge can reach the bottom only through the discipline of application and a thorough study of the great questions which involve science, art and letters. But the average individual, who seeks only superficial knowledge and a more direct and intimate acquaintance with the world and its multitude of interests, finds in the modern newspaper his best medium. In the quickest and easiest way he learns all he wishes to know concerning the political, religious and scientific movements of the world. He becomes familiar with those great questions in a far more practical way than he could possibly gain in years of text-book study. He acquires historical knowledge, which, if thorough in its connecting links, is up on the important epochs, great events and famous personages and their characteristics, and the absorption of this general knowledge has its refining and elevating influence, making its impress on character and domestic life. It is often a marvel to many that men who have had meagre educational opportunities are known to be well versed in economic measures, questions of finance and general knowledge. They are invariably great newspaper readers, devouring all within their reach, and assimilating it as only thoughtful minds can. We have known several of this character, all of whom had, on account of poverty, been obliged to leave school at an early age—even before mastering the "double rule of three," and "Webster's blue-back"—and yet these men were the most entertaining conversationalists on matters historical, current events and public questions. They were sons of toil, but omniverous readers gleaning their knowledge from newspapers and magazines by lamplight. These men were exceptional examples of newspaper education, as they were the enquiring kind, who seek and find knowledge under all circumstances, but such instances are proof of the advantages which the newspaper offers to all who would have knowledge. The newspaper of today is a welcome visitor to every home. Its very reading offers opportunity for rest, and the few minutes spent in its perusal tends to lighten labor and break the monotony of a prosy existence.—Charity and Children.

THE JOHN ROBINSON SHOWS.

A Gorgeous, Sumptous and Impressive Augmentation.

The acme of scenic splendor was reached when John Robinson produced the great spectacle of Solomon, His Temple and the Queen of Sheba.

No court was greater in all that pertained to magnificence than Solomon's, and as historically reproduced with dozens of calcium and vari colored lights on the brilliant costumes and scintillating armor, it has received unstinted praise from all who have been fortunate enough to witness the grand spectacle.

The circus has been characterized as the most interesting in its unexceptional features and in the general excellence of its ring performances. The menagerie is large and comprehensive and includes living specimens of the rarest beasts, birds, reptiles and amphibii.

The colossal Roman hippodrome is in itself a feature that has no duplication and carries the spectator back to Imperial Caesar's day.

The show will exhibit at Greenville Tuesday, October 15th.

CENTRAL BARBER SHOP.
I have moved my Barber Shop to the shop in front of Munford's new big store. I have also associated with me Julius Fleming, who has been working with me for a long time. We have fitted up for the handsomest shop in the town, and offer the public the best service ever offered here. We appreciate highly the liberal patronage we have received in the past. We cordially invite all of our past customers and all others who desire first-class service to come to see us in our new shop. We intend to please you and will do so regardless of expense or labor. We are ready at all times to accommodate you with first-class shave or hair cut.
EDMUNDS & FLEMING.
Opposite Munford's Big Store.
