OUR RALEIGH LETTER.

Special Correspondent of Reflector.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 14.

President Roosevelt has set the Republican politicians of the South generally, by the ears by the appointment of ex-Governor Jones (Democrat) of Alabama to a vacant United States judgeship—case where no "competent and fit" Republican could be found to fill the place.

THE NEXT UNITED STATES SENATOR.

One hears (if he keeps his eyes well "peeled") among politicians of the inner circles of both political parties (the Pops don't count any more) considerable speculation already afoot the United States Senatorship to be filled by the Legislature to be elected a year hence.

So far as the Republicans are concerned there is but one favorite and he the present incumbent. Senator Pritchard is also strong in the affections of some men of affairs and influence in this State who have never been identified with the Republican party organization. There is talk of "faith" in Mr. Pritchard's re-election—certainly if his party and partisans control the next Legislature. That is all that can be said at present, however.

Among Democrats, there is considerable division of sentiment as to the particular gentleman who should be honored on this occasion to the highest office within the gift of our people. While in Washington I heard considerable speculation along this line. A gentleman who is not supposed to be a candidate, on this occasion, has many friends. He resides "west of Raleigh," of course, but not so very far west. If his candidacy is announced, it will surprise many of the politicians and play ducks and drakes with the chances of several of them. His friends, however, say he is deserving of any honor, and really entitled to high honors at the hands of the party—that should have been extended before.

As to Governor Aycock, he positively is not a candidate, actual or implied, if his own words are to be believed—and so far as this writer is concerned, he searches no farther for the fact.

Messrs. Lee S. Overman, R. B. Glenn and Locke Craig are known to be candidates and each has a large and very devoted following. That either would honor the office, those who know them cannot doubt. But it takes more than simple capacity and fitness to win a race like this—and there's likely to be some lively shaking and punch up the persimmon tree for the tallest fellow. And there are, or will be, others.

MISCELLANEOUS MENTION.

There remains but one week from this date to the opening of the State Fair, which begins October 21st and lasts a week, as usual. The railroads have made a rate of one fare. That is to say you can come for the usual price and get back home for "nothing." This is the same arrangement as we had last year.

Ex-Treasurer Worth last Friday paid over the last payment in making good the defalcation of his late clerk Martin, now serving a Governor Aycock will deliver the address at the Weldon Fair on Thursday October 31st. The Greensboro Fair pulled off last week, is said to have been successful and satisfactory to the management. LLEWXAM.

Not a "Cowardly Assassin."

A good many of our contemporaries have protested, and properly, we think, against the many references to President McKinley as a "martyr"—as "martyred President," etc. Mr. McKinley was not a martyr in any proper sense, and it is a misuse of the word to say so. But there is another phrase, which is much used in connection with his assassination which is quite as inaccurate as a statement of fact, and that is in the references to his slayer as the "cowardly assassin." The villain deserves to have everything else said of him except this. His act was everything else except cowardly, but this it was not. He knew perfectly well, committing his awful crime in the presence of a multitude, that his life would pay the penalty for it; he had good ground to believe that he would lose it on the spot; yet it will be recalled that he showed plainly by his subsequent statement that he had only one concern, after he had made up his mind to the deed, and that was lest he should be interfered with—lest in some manner his purpose to kill the President might miscarry. It required an unimaginable amount of nerve for a sane man to have done what he did under the circumstances under which he did it. To call him a "cowardly assassin" is to weaken, by inaccuracy of statement, the case against him.—Charlotte Observer.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 14.

Rumor is still rife concerning the Isthmian Canal treaty, but all is conjecture. I have it on no less authority than a member of the Cabinet that the salient points of the treaty with Great Britain have been agreed upon and that the treaty will be completed and submitted to the Senate as soon as Congress assembles.

It is well understood in inner circles that the President finds himself in a serious dilemma in regard to his recommendations to Congress, concerning our relations with Cuba. He appreciates thoroughly how essential to Cuban good will and to Cuban prosperity is the admission to the United States, free of duty, of Cuban sugar.

The Schley Court of Inquiry still holds daily sessions. Judge Advocate Lemly announces that he will not be ready to rest his case before the middle of next week and Mr. Rayner estimates that it will be the middle of November before the defense is concluded.

The Hemp Inquiry committee has adjourned to Nov. 18. The evidence is practically in and it will, it is presumed, have little more to do than render a decision when it convenes.

There is a rumor afloat that Ambassador Choate who has started for Washington, ostensibly to confer with the President in regard to the canal treaty, comes at the President's request and that he will bring with him his resignation, ex-Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, being named as his successor. The only information which the most persistent interrogation can elicit from the State Department is that nothing is known of the change. The fact that Mr. Roosevelt is a decided positivist, or as his Western friends would say "hustler" and that Mr. Choate is not, some people describe him as supine, probably gave rise to the rumor, together with the fact that Mr. Wolcott has recently acted as a special emissary to the Court of St. James. Nevertheless the change is by no means unlikely even if the President has not already signified its desirability to Mr. Choate.

It is stated that "the assistant postmaster of Chicago has devised a plan for the convenience of those who transmit postage stamps by mail in lieu of currency. By this plan the sender would buy a certificate for the desired amount from the local postmaster and mail that instead of stamps. The receiver could convert this certificate into stamps at par, or into cash at 1 per cent. discount. It is said that this plan has received the approval of the Postmaster General, who will recommend it to Congress." Business men encounter no greater nuisance than the receipt by mail of a lot of stamps stuck together or to the letter covering them, but why a certificate, convertible into stamps? The person remitting would as well buy a money order, payable in cash. What is needed is a law by which to hang anybody who sends stamps in a letter except when wrapped in oiled paper, and for the Postoffice Department to stop issuing stamps of greater denomination than 2 cents. The average business man would almost as lief have no remittance at all as to have it in 5-, 8- or 10-cent stamps. They are an irritant and a burden.—Charlotte Observer.

New Jersey is a good State to live in. The people there pay no taxes and are slow to die. No taxes whatever are levied for State purposes, the taxes on corporations and on the corporation fees producing sufficient revenue to run the government without the levying of a cent of taxes. This condition of affairs alone would make New Jersey a desirable place of residence in the eyes of many people, but that is not all the State has to brag on. The New York Commercial says that President Dryden, of the Prudential Insurance Company, makes the statement that his company's statistician has compiled a morality table which shows that, "close behind Norway, ahead of Great Britain, France and Germany, and ahead of all the other States of our own country, New Jersey has the lowest death rate." Next to the Swedes and Norwegians, the Jerseymen live longer than any other people in the world. With long life and no taxes to pay, and furthermore, living right around the fountain head of apple jack, the Jerseyman ought to be reasonably contented and happy.—Charlotte Observer.

A STEP AT THE TIME.

Begin With the Shorter Ones and They Get Longer.

Everybody was here today. Good weather for show day, after all. There was hardly walking room on the streets today.

Court will continue only this week and there will be none held next week.

You will still find the best heater on the market at Ormond & Carr's, its the Wilson.

Just received can crabs, lobsters, pigs feet, ham pork at S. M. Schultz.

Schools and circuses don't run well together, and the schools had to take a forced holiday today.

THE REFLECTOR is printed before the circus today so as to give the printers a chance to see the show.

This is the last day to get coupons for the Junior Buck Range. Take your coupons to A. H. Taft & Co. tomorrow.

Only those folks who were compelled to be there saw inside the court room today, and even those were wishing there wasn't any court.

How to Get In.

"Riding down Oxford street on top of a bus," writes William E. Curtis from London, "I poked the driver in the back with my umbrella, as Americans usually do, and asked him questions. He was good natured and answered them cordially. Some of his retorts were quite witty. You seldom find a bus driver in London without a keen sense of humor, and they all like to talk.

"As we were passing old Newgate prison I inquired, 'How do you get inside that place?' What I wanted to know was whether I must go to some official for a ticket of admission, and this was his answer: 'When you get off this bus, go hup 'beind the first cove you see, and 'it 'im has 'ard has you kin in the 'ead. The bobby will do the rest.'"

A Life of Accidents.

Rebecca Wampler, said to be 100 years old, who died the other day in Dublin, Ind., had met with many accidents during her life. At the age of 6 years she fell from a picket fence and broke her finger. In 1852 she broke her ankle, in 1865 she fell down a cellar and broke her collar bone and three ribs, in 1885 in a runaway while returning from church she was thrown from a vehicle and her right hip broken, in 1888 she slipped and fell on the pavement, breaking her left hip; in 1892 she broke her left leg at the knee, in 1896 she fell from a tree, breaking her arm; in 1898 she fell out of bed, breaking her right arm, and in 1900 she broke her right hip for the second time.

Fascinating Abdul Hamid.

The character of Abdul Hamid must obviously have many facets. The latest of his visitors is Dr. Herzl, the Zionist leader, who reports that he is perfectly charming. "The sultan spoke to me with the greatest kindness. I found him a courteous, charming gentleman. One almost forgot he was this mighty potentate. He has kept himself in touch. I found, with all the latest developments of modern life and evidently is far from having those medieval notions which one somehow associates with the Ottoman empire."—London Mail.

His Claims to Fame.

A man appeared in the bankruptcy court in London the other day who described himself as a descendant of the Pharaohs and hereditary hierophant of the sacred mysteries. His two claims to fame are that he has discovered that "hurrah" is of Egyptian origin, being really "hoo ra" and dating from Rameses, and that he has written a poem called "The Doom of hoos: One Thousand Lines of original Melodious Verse."

CIRCUS DAY.

It Came, and Everybody With It.

Talk about folks—big folks, little folks, old folks, young folks, men folks, women folks, white folks, black folks, and all other kinds of folks—they were here today. But that was nothing more than might have been expected when it was announced that John Robinson's circus was coming to town. If there is any one thing that will bring out the people more than another, it is a big circus. Before the first grey streak of dawn they were coming in and the stream kept swelling through all the forenoon until the crowd was away up in the thousands.

The circus train—or rather trains, for it came in two sections of twenty-odd cars each—got here from Kinston before daylight, and as fast as the crowd struck town most of them went at once to the depot to see the train unload. This in itself is well worth seeing. The system and regularity, almost like clock work, with which one of these great circuses is unloaded, conveyed to the show grounds and put in readiness for the performance in a few hours, is marvelous. And no wonder people are attracted.

After seeing the circus unload everybody got ready for the parade and every thoroughfare through which the pageant passed was thronged. This is as far as many of the people get, for it is usually estimated that hardly more than one-half or two thirds of those who come to town on circus day ever get under the big tent. But they have a great treat in the big street parade, for the gaily caparisoned horses, glittering uniforms, gilded chariots, blare of trumpets, cages of animals, bands of music, the indispensable clown, and the big elephants, are all there, and make a spectacle of grandeur seen only when the big circus comes.

And with all this pleasure the people get for nothing, and the benefit the town gets by having so many people come in to spend the day, it does look like the law making powers take the wrong view of the matter when they try to tax the circus out of existence.

The show itself began at 2 o'clock, the tent being pitched in Mr. L. C. Arthur's field at the eastern terminus of Ninth street. THE REFLECTOR goes to press too early to speak of the performance, but as John Robinson always gives a good show the same can be said of this one.

There will be another performance tonight.

A Plucky Advertiser.

The busiest dental establishment in New York is that which is regularly advertised in the leading newspapers, and the advertisement of which is occasionally enlarged to a full page of The New York Herald. The price of such a page is large; but it is evident that the advertisement pays, or it would not be repeated.—Philadelphia Record.

Just so long as the government places a tax of $1.10 on whiskey that is sold for $1.25, just that long will people engaged in its manufacture attempt to evade the tax. But this furnishes jobs for members of the faithful who otherwise could not be provided for.—Durham Herald.
