At 8 o'clock this morning, at the home of Mr. Herbert Hardy, brother of the bride, in South Greenville, Mr. Marion H. Tucker, of Norfolk, and Miss Esther E. Hardy were married by Rev. D. W. Davis, of the Christian church, a few relatives and friends being present to witness the ceremony.

Miss Gussie Harrell played the wedding march as the bridal party entered the parlor. The bridegroom was accompanied by Mr. L. W. Tucker as best man, and the bride by her brother, Mr. Clarence Hardy.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple drove to the depot where they took the morning train for Norfolk. They were accompanied to Norfolk by Messrs G. M. Tucker, J. A. K. Tucker, J. H. Hardy, J. W. Brooks, Raymond Tucker, Mrs. Herbert Hardy and Misses Mamie and Daisy Tucker.

Another Remarkable Case.

R. M. Davis, writing in the Salisbury Sun: Some months ago I was called to furnish a burial outfit for an old colored woman in the north ward of the city. When I carried the coffin to the cabin I found lying dead upon the bed, the great, great, great grandmother of the family, aged 105; sitting in the chimney corner was the great, great grandmother, aged 76; standing near by was the grandmother, aged 50; and by her side stood her daughter, aged 30, holding in her arms her own little girl, aged 4. Five generations in all and every generation represented by a female.

In Case of Accident.

Accidents will happen. Mother strains her back lifting a sofa. Father is hurt in the shop. Children are forever falling and bruising themselves. There is no preventing these things, but their worst consequences are averted with Perry Davis' Painkiller. No other remedy approaches it for the relief of sore strained muscles. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'.

HIGH TAX A MISTAKE

It is Better to Encourage Circuses.

In political campaigns we often hear much stress laid upon the question, who pays the tax? and the argument of the speakers goes to show that this burden always falls upon the consumer. At any rate this is good Democratic doctrine, and the case in which it does not apply is the exception rather than the rule. It is unquestionably true as regards tariff—the consumer pays it; and it is equally true when it comes to a circus—those who patronize it have it to pay.

It is the circus in particular that runs the mind of THE REFLECTOR in this channel just now. There was more or less talk when the circus was here Tuesday about its costing people more than usual to see it. We spoke to some of the proprietors of the circus about this, and the reply was that taxes and expenses were so very high that they were compelled to charge more or lose money.

Circus people, like those engaged in other business, are in it for what they can get out of it, and unless they can make money the business must stop. And when you come to think of the expense of maintaining a big circus it is just something enormous. To begin with there is an outlay of hundreds of thousands of dollars in equipment, with the daily running expenses going up in the thousands. And when it comes to taxes, this item alone cost the circus $475 ($200 for State, $200 for county and $75 for town) for showing in Greenville Tuesday.

Now another question or two. Is a circus an evil, or does it prove a benefit to the town it visits? One thing is sure, John Robinson's circus left large sums of money in Greenville Tuesday, besides what the people who come to see it spent. The business men got the benefit of this, and what helps the business people helps the town. What else than a circus would have brought such a crowd of people to town? Some of the merchants tell us that their trade Tuesday was equal to what it is on the day before Christmas, and one went so far as to say it would be a paying investment for the merchants to make up the tax for a big circus to come around occasionally rather than not have them come.

And when it comes to the people, what affords them so much amusement as a circus? Hundreds and hundreds of them, too, only see the part that is free, but the street parade and what takes place outside the tents—while costing the circus people much to give it—is a good show in itself and people come many miles just to see th, and they get it free. However, those people spend money in town just the same, and the town gets the benefit of their presence. And who is not glad to see a big crowd in town?

So upon the whole we argue that it is a mistake to tax circuses unreasonably. First, because the tax is going to come out of the pockets of the people, and they ought to have the opportunity of a day of amusement now and then without paying too dearly for it. Second, because they bring a large crowd to town whose coming greatly benefits every branch of business, and the business men being the mainstay and backbone of the town, anything that helps them should be encouraged.

Clawed By a Leopard.

At the menagerie of the Robinson circus yesterday afternoon a man had an experience he will remember and bore away marks from the big animal tent to remind him of his narrow escape.

The man, whose name was not learned at the time, was somewhat under the influence of liquor. He had gotten inside the ropes that are stretched to keep the crowd from approaching too near the cages containing the dangerous beasts of forest and jungle. Once inside the barrier the man stumbled and to support himself caught with his hand the edge of the cage containing a leopard. His hand laid between the iron rods, partly inside the cage.

The big spotted cat was on the opposite side of the cage, but quick as a flash sprang and struck the hand, the claws cutting into the flesh. The man was quick enough to withdraw his hand before the animal could fairly fasten upon it. In doing so he swayed against the cage and exposed his head to a fresh attack.

Fortunately the keeper now saw what was going on and made a rush towards the cage, seizing the man and dragging him out of the way. The keeper was much alarmed as well as angry and told the now sobered fellow that the leopard might have torn away the side of his head in another moment and warned him to be off. This he did, binding up his wounded hand in a handkerchief.—New Bern Journal.

Girls Used as Telegraph Messenger.

Henry V. Shelty, local manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company and the American District Messenger Service, yesterday afternoon began the novel experience of substituting girls for boys as messengers.

Several applications were received in response to an advertisement for girls to do messenger duty and from the number three were employed. Contrary to the custom of the boy messengers, they did not linger by the wayside. During the afternoon they were kept busy, and when 6 o'clock came they were tired, but not discouraged. Manager Shelty has concluded to make a thorough experiment with them, and if he finds them satisfactory they will replace the boys, except in one or two cases. Mr. Shelty realized that he will have to discriminate as to the destination of the girls, as it would not do to send them into saloons and similar places. For this purpose boys will be maintained in the service.

Asked why he desired girls to do messenger service, Mr. Shelty said that he had to it because it is almost impossible to get boys.—Bridgeport, Conn., Special to Baltimore Sun.

INTERVIEWING CROKER.

The reporter who goes to interview Richard Croker for the first time realizes he is confronted with a serious obstacle when Mr. Croker puts the usual question to him, "Why should you come to me for this information any more than you should ask any other citizen you should meet?"

When William J. Bryan arrived in New York on his first visit during the last presidential campaign, Mr. Croker and another prominent Tammanyite were on the committee to meet the Democratic leader at the Grand Central station. There was an enormous crowd present, and the police had hard work keeping them in order. At one time the crowd pressed in on the platform. Mr. Croker and the other gentleman were seated on a truck well up the platform.

A police captain in charge of the squad approached the chieftain and asked: "Mr. Croker, do you want me to keep this crowd back in the street?"

Mr. Croker surveyed him a moment with his piercing eyes and answered: "You see that man over there sounding the car wheels? You go ask him, and if he don't know, you go down to Mulberry street and ask your chief."—New York Times.

To Avoid Lightning.

If out of doors, keep away from trees, haystacks, houses, large sheets of water, river banks, etc. If in the open plain, where there are no trees or buildings, you are safer lying down than standing up. If near a wood, stay there and do not go nearer. If near a single tall tree, you are pretty safe 30 yards away. Indoors you are safest of all if you adopt Franklin's plan. Find the geometrical center of the room. Hang up a hammock by silken cords, get in and stay there. Failing a hammock, sit on one chair in the middle of the room with your feet on another, first placing beneath them a feather bed or hair mattress. But do not sit under the gas chandelier. Whether out of doors or indoors, keep away from the chimney or from metallic masses of any kind, and possess your souls in patience.—London Mail.

Robins' Nests.

How do the robins build their nests? Robin Redbreast told me. First a wisp of yellow hay. In a pretty round they lay: Then some shreds of downy floss, Feathers, too, and bits of moss, Woven with a sweet, sweet song, This way, that way and across; That's what Robin told me.

Where do the robins hide their nests? Robin Redbreast told me. Up among the leaves so deep, Where the sunbeams rarely creep, Long before the winds are cold, Long before the leaves are gold, Bright eyed stars will peep and see Baby robins—one, two, three; That's what Robin told me.

SKINNER MAY SUCCEED BERNARD.

Winston Salem, Oct. 14.—It looks like Harry Skinner, the ex-Populist, will get District Attorney Bernard's place for the eastern district of North Carolina. Many Republicans are already confidently predicting that he will "land" and that he will get Bernard's office. Ex-Sheriff Clarence Call, of Wilkes who carries a congressional bee around in his silk hat, attended the Republican conference in Greensboro Saturday and before he boarded the train for home this morning he was asked if Harry Skinner would get the eastern district attorneyship. Mr. Call replied: "I am afraid he will, though there are many Republicans who think Claude Bernard is just as good a man now as he was four years ago—in fact, better, for he has had experience." The ex-sheriff continued by saying that Skinner was a bright fellow, a fine speaker, a man of experience and a warm friend of Senator Pritchard. "It may be good politics in South Carolina to put new converts in office, but I do not consider it wise to adopt this plan in North Carolina when we have so many good men in the Republican party," added Mr. Call. In referring to Skinner, the ex-Sheriff said he had come over to the Republicans as the Populist party is dead and the Democrats did not want him. The Wilkes man thought Harry should be required to vote the Republican ticket at least a few times before he was provided for. "If I should go over to the Democrats I would not expect an office until I had rendered some service," said Mr. Call.—Special to Charlotte Observer.

Lonely Homes

A home is never complete without children. Yet many homes are childless. Many wives are desolate for the lack of a child to love. Their lives are aimless—void of the high motives of motherhood. While barrenness is causing incalculable sadness and sorrow, it exists in most cases on account of some little female trouble, which Wine of Cardui would speedily set right. This pure Wine regulates the disordered female organs by building up the worn out nerves and regulating the menstrual flow. It restores the fallen womb to its proper place. By strengthening the generative organs, it makes pregnancy possible where barrenness exists. You can depend on

WINE OF CARDUI

Suffering women all over the land have been depending on it for seventy-five years. No more convincing proof can be given than the testimony of Mrs. Benson, who is only one of thousands of women to whom Wine of Cardui has brought a permanent cure. Many cases of miscarriage—that trouble which robs mothers of their hopes—have been avoided by timely use of the Wine. You are asked to try Wine of Cardui and Theford's Black-Draught, its companion medicine. Nine out of ten cases of female trouble, barrenness included, yield to them. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

Vanderhoort, Ark., April 2, 1900.
Last May I had a miscarriage, which was followed by flooding. I read your Almanac and my husband got me a bottle of Wine of Cardui and it stopped my flooding and restored my fallen womb to its place. Now I am cured after taking three bottles and have another to take which I got this morning. I am expecting to become a mother and Wine of Cardui will be my doctor.

Carried to Goldsboro.

Early Tuesday morning while the circus train was unloading some colored employes had a difficulty and one of them was seriously cut. The circus people took charge of the wounded man and today carried him to Goldsboro to place him in the hospital there.

A Mean Slur.

At Greenville today two circus men engaged in a fight in which one of them was almost disembowelled. If the circus gets out of that town with only this casualty count it fortunate. A gentleman who has just returned from Raleigh, states that a well-known man of that town said he paid fifty cents for a reserve seat ticket then began to get angry at himself, but all at once it occurred to him that the circus had to go to Greenville, and over the troubled waters of his ire there settled a great calm.—Tarboro Southerner 15th.

We suppose the Southerner intended this for a slur upon Greenville, but if that paper will look after the misdoings of its own town it will have enough to attend to. This disturbance among the circus men themselves was the only one that we have heard of occurring on circus day. If the circus men want to fight among themselves it is their business. So far as the home and county people are concerned, we never saw a more orderly and well-behaved big crowd than was in Greenville Tuesday.

A Little Loss.

of flesh and strength, little barking, obstinate cough and a little pain in the chest may not mean galloping consumption, but they are signs that prudence will not neglect. A few doses of Allen's Lung Balsam cause a free discharge of mucus and so loosens the cough. It heals the inflamed air passages and all its beneficent work is accomplished without a grain of opium.

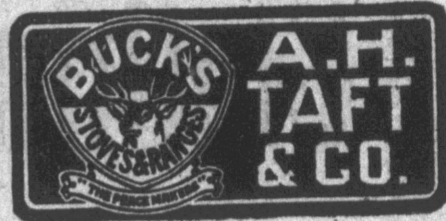

The Coupons are in the hands of the committee and the little stove will be given away tonight at 7 o'clock, October 16th, 1901.
