NEWSY HAPPENINGS AND BUSINESS NOTES.

WINTERVILLE, N. C., Dec. 18.
 Land Sale—A Bargain—One farm containing 87½ acres more or less. Nice tobacco, cotton or corn land, 50 acres cleared. Two good tenant houses and other buildings. Adjoins the lands of Henry Cory, Lewis Worthington and others and may be known as the James B. McGowan land. Apply to A. G. Cox.

Little Miss Lona Jane Kittrell spent Saturday in Greenville looking for Santa Claus. She didn't find him, but thinks he has been there.

Mrs. F. O. Cox and Miss Annie Stox went on a shopping tour to the capital city on the Tar last Monday.

Miss Cora Carroll, of Black Jack, was visiting Mrs. J. D. Cox Friday

T. R. Tyndall, of Hookerton, and J. W. Willoughby, from near Rochdale, have moved their families here and will make this their future home.

Mrs. J. B. Galloway, of Grimesland, was visiting her children Sunday who are in attendance upon school here.

Santa Claus Coming—To our friends, customers and the public generally we wish to state that we are carrying a nice and better selected stock of Xmas toys and confectioneries than ever before, and we earnestly solicit your patronage. Yours to please—Harrington, Barber & Co.

C. T. Kittrell went to Griffon Friday evening and returned Saturday morning

Miss Mary Harriss and Mrs. W. O. Barnhill spent several days the past week visiting Miss Mollie Bryan.

John Nichols and R. L. Little attended church at Black Jack, Sunday.

I have a beautiful line of silks, velvets, dress trimming, baby caps ribbons, laces, walking and dress hats &c., I will sell unusually cheap. Give me a call.—Mrs. C. A. Fair, Fashionable Milliner.

James Gladson was visiting the family of Mrs. Susan Tucker, Sunday.

Barnes Sumrell, of Ayden, was here yesterday.

W. L. Hurst, of Goose Nest, came here Tuesday to visit relatives.

C. A. Fair is agent for the famous "Balsam of Rosebud" for chapped hands, lips, &c.

Dr. B. T. Cox has fitted up the store recently purchased of Carroll Bros. for a drug store. It is a credit to our town and will compare most favorably with those of a larger town.

W. E. Hamilton has opened a store in the building recently occupied by Dr. Cox, and would be pleased to have the public call and examine his goods before buying for Xmas.

W. J. Kittrell, of Griffon, was here a short while Monday.

A Victory to be Proud Of

is the final and absolute cure of a sore throat, in which the rawness and tenderness have been spreading dangerously near those guardians of life, the lungs. The luxury of a sound throat and robust lungs is most keenly enjoyed by people who, having suffered all the consequences of "a little cold you know," have been rescued from misery and danger by Allen's Lung Balsam.

Merry Christmas.

Thing to Give

The Men Folks

Here they are—that is, if the gifts are to be of the practical sort. Maybe, above all he'd prefer an Overcoat or suit. Perhaps you couldn't please Father or Brother or Son better than to give him a gift of that sort.

Overcoats or Suits here at $5 and as high as $20. Lots of prices in between. Then if He's not in the family, but willing to be, for "Him" there's a multitude of suggestions—Neckwear, Suspenders, Gloves, Mufflers, Shirts, Handkerchiefs, Umbrellas Jewelry, etc.

Our stock is full of Christmas suggestions. A few minutes expended in our store now each day may save hours of indefinite seeking, and may lead to savings that will put money in your purse. Goods exchanged or money refunded—always.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1901.

JOLLY OLD UNCLE JOSH.

HIS GREAT GENEROSITY TOWARDS HIS NEWLY-MARRIED NIECE.

A Realistic Romance of Greenville in Which a Number of Prominent Business Men Take a Conspicuous Part.

[Copyrighted by the Author.]

True to his habits, Uncle Josh was up with the first streak of dawn next morning and took a before breakfast walk as an appetizer. He returned in time to see Polly and Charley coming down and he led the way to the dining room.

"I say," said Uncle Josh enthusiastically, "I've got a treat in store for you the first thing this morning. I've just had a stroll out in tobacco town and the way it is coming in is a sight. The first sale is at the Farmers' Warehouse, and I want you both to see it." "Agreed," said Charley, "I've heard so much about this warehouse I would like to attend a sale there. So off they went. They saw crowds of people, piles of the golden weed and heard the clear and distinct voice of H. A. Timberlake, the auctioneer, whose clarion call seemed to arouse the corps of buyers and caused contentment among the sellers. Uncle Josh told Charley that if he ever raised a leaf of tobacco to carry it to the Farmers' Warehouse, where his interest will be faithfully looked after by O. L. Joyner, the proprietor "The secret is," he added, "knowing where to sell your tobacco for the highest market price, and I have learned from past experience that the Farmers' is the warehouse."

Coming back down town a crowd at the show windows of R. T. Evans' photograph studio attracted the attention of Polly, and woman-like she wanted to stop there to see "what's up." Both companions followed suit and so much were they taken with the life work of Mr. Evans that they all agreed to have their "beauty struck" on the latest platino panels. Uncle Josh also gave two enlarging orders, one in crayon and the other in pastel, in handsomely gilded frames, (which Mr. Evans carries in stock in abundance), with the assurance that the photos of his "loved ones" would be returned to him after completion of the work. They also inspected his extensive stock of photographic and kodak supplies and expressed surprise that Mr. Evans can make "enlarging" from any size picture.

"Yum, yum," laughingly escaped Polly's rose bud lips, as they turned around the corner and came to S. M. Schultz popular store. "Uncle, I just can't resist the temptation to go in, you know I've got a sweet tooth, and those candies look so tempting." Charley half objected, for he knew if Polly got in there, there's where she would likely stay, but he relented, however, when he was reminded by her that Uncle Josh was footing the bills. The girl bought liberally of chocolates, cream bon-bons and other sweets, also fruits, nuts, dates and oranges, which they found in varied abundance, both imported and domestic. Uncle Josh told her not to hurry, but they'd all stay and look over the varied assortment of toys and other Christmas presents for both old and young.

"Talking about plantation supplies reminds me that we had better go to Jesse Speight's and see him concerning my cotton, cotton seed and peanuts I have to dispose of," and suiting the action to the words the party went up Main street until they beheld the smiling countenance of Mr. Speight. There was very little time wasted in making the desired bargain for all his farm products, knowing from past experience that Jesse Speight pays the "top-notch of the market"—all in cash, and never before had he heard a complaint about any wrong grading of the fleecy staple, of which Uncle Josh had a good number of bales, having wisely kept them for the expected rise the market. He declared Mr. Speight to be the best cotton hustler he ever saw.

"I would like to make you acquainted with Dr. D. L. James, my dentist friend, too," said the old man. "If you ever have to supplement your natural teeth." "Ugh! Don't you mention false teeth to me," cried Polly. "I'll never carry 'pearly lies' in my mouth if I go toothless." "Oh, as for that," laughed Uncle Josh, "if you'll only consult a good dentist in time, you can save the catastrophe. Dr. James, for instance, is wonderfully expert in saving natural teeth, and he has the skill and every mechanical appliance necessary to do his work with the least discomfort to his patrons."

While Uncle Josh was pondering where to go next, Polly suddenly asked: "Uncle, where can I find the best place to get shoes, dry goods and notions?" "Just across the street we'll reach the store of Ricks & Wilkinson. They carry a stock of dry goods that for variety and real value is seldom seen outside the largest metropolitan cities, and you are sure to be guided right in your selections. You will find the proprietors pleasant to deal with and their employes polite and expert, while the prices cannot be duplicated. And as for shoes, they take the lead." After looking over the stock Polly found goods and prices so seductive that she purchased an outfit of the famous John Kelly shoes for ladies. Charley also invested in a pair of the celebrated J. A. Banister shoes for men, while Uncle Josh treated himself to a pair of good farm boots. They were all delighted with their visit to this popular store.

"Say, Uncle Josh, would it be asking too much of you to get us a driving horse?" asked Polly. "Well, I reckon not, I'll honor your draft for anything you want. My friend, W. H. Harrington runs a new brick sale stable opposite the court house and we can depend on him for a good driving animal, if one is to be found in the market. He wouldn't sell a defective horse without telling us. The most conscientious man in business you ever met." Mr. Harrington luckily happened to have a nice animal on hand, and Polly got it while the old man made himself a present of a span of fine Kentucky males. Mr. Harrington keeps the best.

MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT

will thoroughly, quickly and permanently cure these afflictions. There is no guess work about it; if this liniment is used a cure will follow.

YOU DON'T KNOW how quickly a burn or scald can be cured until you have treated it with Mexican Mustang Liniment. As a flesh healer it stands at the very top.

Uncle Josh requested the party to visit his friend J. G. Latham, the fish and oyster dealer. Polly knew that her table would look slim without these commodities, therefore was glad of the opportunity offered. "This is the boss fish market in town and is popular with everybody who is particular to have the best," broke in Uncle Josh. The reason for this all is because he is very careful in what he handles and gets the freshest of everything and keeps nothing but the very best. To keep your Hub by in good humor trade with Mr. Latham every time Polly." And Polly promised to act upon her uncle's advice.

Attracted by the noise of busy machinery at the John Flanagan Buggy Co's factory the party went in. Uncle Josh had heard a great deal about this enterprise, but had no idea of its magnitude. The up-to-date machinery was explained to the visitors, all its details by Messrs R. Greene and O. Hooker, the genial proprietors, and their output of buggies was found of a superior make and finish. "Their buggies will easily compare with the best makes" remarked Uncle Josh, "while their prices are in active competition." Their cotton ginners was also inspected and the information was elicited as an established fact that cotton ginned by them brings a higher price than any brought to the market. Therefore Uncle Josh promised all his next seasons ginning to them.

"And in the matter of insurance, he continued, "that is of importance. You will want a builders risk on your new house, and fire, lightning and tornado insurance on your farm property; then you can't do a more sensible or satisfactory thing than to give your wife a paid up policy in life insurance and take out accident for yourself. J. L. Sugg not only has lines of the solidest and best companies, but is an expert and trust-worthy underwriter." He was visited at his office opposite the court house, and Charley had twelve of the most reliable insurance companies in the land to select from, and found Mr. Sugg a most pleasant gentleman to do business with.

"Law, me!" exclaimed Polly. "Uncle I forgot to tell you, but did you see THE REFLECTOR when we got back to the hotel yesterday evening? It had all about our trip around town. I wonder how it got in there so soon!" "You bet I saw it," replied Uncle Josh, "and read every word of it. Been reading it for years and would not be without it. You will want to keep up with the news and THE REFLECTOR is a straight forward, reliable paper, the favorite in this section. Here we are at the office now let's drop in and I'll subscribe to it for you." In they walked, and after introducing the newly married couple and taking receipts for himself and them, they were invited over to see the printing department. "That reminds me," said Uncle Josh to Charley, "you may want something in the line of fine printing, and Polly must have some nice visiting cards. THE REFLECTOR conducts a first-class printing establishment and work and prices are always right. Every business man should use good, neat stationery, and in order to get it should go to those prepared to do it. Good material and experienced workmen are required for this, and THE REFLECTOR has both."

"By the way, Uncle," said Polly, "You told us yesterday as we started out to get all these nice things for our home that you had already provided 'the cage,' but you have overlooked taking us around to see the house." "That's so," broke in the old man, "we will go right now and see it. I bought this splendid peice of property from L. C. Arthur, the livest and best real estate dealer in eastern North Carolina. Why he took me around to see what he has to offer in the way of real estate and I was just astounded. He has property improved and unimproved, and if a prospective purchaser does not find a house to his fancy already built, Mr. Arthur can show him a large number of beautiful building lots, desirably located, to select from. He sells all kinds of property, town and country, suitable for either residence or business purposes. And what is further you will always find Mr. Arthur clever and courteous, pleasant to deal with it, and there is no question raised about title when you take a deed from him.

The large business he is doing around Greenville is the best evidence of his popularity and reliability as a real estate dealer."

Upon summing up the wonderful events of the two days Polly began volubly to express her thanks. "You have bought us everything," she exclaimed.

"Only one thing," replied Uncle Josh, reflectively, "but I can remedy that."

"W-h-y," exclaimed Polly with great surprise, "Uncle, what can it be?"

"Well, it's a baby carriage, and—" But Polly had fainted.

PERSONAL NOTES.

Those Who are Passing: This Way.

Mrs. W. H. Parker left this morning for Virginia.

B. T. Bailey left this morning for a trip up the road.

Fred Forbes returned Tuesday evening from Trinity and will spend the holidays at home.

Miss Nina James has returned from Greensboro Female College to spend the holidays at home.

Miss Estelle Tyson, from near Farmville, who has been spending a few days here, returned home today.

Mrs. Shields, of Scotland Neck, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. E. B. Higgs, returned home this morning. Little Miss Lelia Higgs accompanied her home to spend the holidays.

A white man was robbed of $40 by two negroes in tobacco town, Tuesday afternoon. The negroes worked some kind of a card trick on him. Half of the money was recovered from one of them.

Musical.

Miss Lina Sheppard's music pupils will give a recital in her music room, on Pitt street, Friday night. The exercises will begin at 7:30 o'clock and continue just an hour.

Sheppard Will Case.

The evidence in the Sheppard will case was completed just before noon today, and the lawyers began their argument to the jury. There will be eight speeches made by counsel. The case will probably be concluded by Thursday night.

Meritorious Company.

Hamilton & Gregory Comedians gave about the best performance Tuesday night at the opera house that has been seen in Greenville this season. The bill consisted of two very funny comedies entitled, "Love and War" and "Why Smith Stayed Home," and from the first scene till the curtain fell it was very laughable.

Band Concert.

The Osceola Band concert will take place in the opera house Friday night. It will be free, but those who attend will have an opportunity of contributing any amount they please to a fund to help the poor children enjoy Christmas. Everyone should be glad of an opportunity to contribute to such a fund, as well as to hear some delightful music and specialties.

Fire at Littlefield.

A telephone message from Ayden to THE REFLECTOR says that Mr. Asa Garriss, of Littlefield, lost his dwelling house and kitchen by fire about 8 o'clock this morning. The contents of both buildings were also destroyed, the total loss being about $2,500. We are unable to learn how the fire originated or if there was any insurance. It is a heavy loss on Mr. Garriss and he deserves the sympathy of every one. Some years ago he lost a leg in an accident at his mill, and this second heavy misfortune is all the harder on him.

PACTOLUS ITEMS.

PACTOLUS, N. C. Dec. 10. 1901.

Dr. W. H. Bagwell, of Greenville, was here Sunday.

Glad to see J. H. Satterthwaite out again after being quite sick.

D. R. Willis, of Washington, came up this morning to spend the day.

J. J. Satterthwaite went to Washington Friday on business.

Southside Market.

I have opened a market on the Haskett property in South Greenville, just beyond town limits, and will handle fresh meat, beef, poultry and eggs. Will sell lower than can be had elsewhere. Nothing sold except for cash.

R. M. KENNEDY.

in the church Xmas night.

Owing to such a sudden change in the weather yesterday people were out wood hunting this morning.

W. G. Mizelle, one of the most successful farmers of this township, died last night.

B. B. Nicholson, of Washington, passed here this morning on his way to Greenville to appear in the Sheppard will case.

W. L. Nobles, of Whichard, passed through here this morning on his way to Washington.

Edward Jolley, of Greenville, was here last Thursday.

Julius Fleming went to Greenville Sunday.

William Thigpen, from near Greenville, was here this morning and left on the noon train for Washington.

Our friends, the Druggists.

It is a pleasure to testify to the generally high character of druggists. But because of a few exceptions to the rule, it is necessary to caution the public to be on guard against imitations of Perry Davis' Painkiller. See that you get the right article, the soothing, helpful Painkiller that was used in your family before you were born. Don't be taken into buying a substitute. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'.
