THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1901.

The good roads convention will be held in Raleigh next week. Let as many people as can go from Pitt county. Any who can go will be recognized as delegates and the information obtained will be of great benefit.

North Carolinians residing in St. Louis are interesting themselves in having their native State make a creditable exhibition of her resources at the exposition to be held in that city next year. North Carolina can lose nothing, but gain much, by making such an exhibit.

One of the old-time darkies, on being asked how he was making out, replied in this fashion: "Well, suh, times is mighty tight wid me, but I manages ter make a livin' by doin' a little plowin' a little wotin', en a little baptizin'!"—Atlanta Constitution.

A Cleveland man who had stolen five cents worth of coal was arrested the other day and fined $5 and costs, or $10.85. He declined to pay the fine, on the ground that it was unjust, and when his wife paid it he refused to leave the jail. The turnkey was obliged to eject him, and he vowed he would return at the first opportunity.

"Few people in England," remarks a London paper, "who grow the sunflower for ornament have any idea of its usefulness." Then it informs its credulous readers that in the United States the sunflower is so rich in oil that, "the seed of one of these monster plants will yield fifty gallons of oil; while the refuse of the seed, after this quantity of oil has been expressed, weighs 1,500 pounds when made into cattle cakes."

Rev. D. H. Petree informs us that the LaGrange dog story told in Monday's issue of The Free Press is an absolute fact—that the intelligent animal saw the need of a piece of lightwood to light its mistress' fire and really went out into the yard and secured same, laying it at her feet. Now here is a pig story that comes from the Raleigh Times: "A farmer on Idlewild Hill mourns the loss of a valuable hog during the windstorm Sunday. He relates that just as the pig started a squeal, a gust of wind came along and blew the squeal back down his throat, thus strangling him. Capt. L. W. Smith was an eye witness of this." The pig tale is not interred in the least as a reflection on the dog story, but both are good ones.—Kinston Free Press.

Bringing Up Of Boys.

Much interesting information about boys was given in the Sunday World. Elbert Hubbard, of "Message to Garcia," fame and Philistine notoriety, said: "A boy is a man in the cocoon—you do not know what he is going to do. He may make or unmake kings. Every man was a boy; it seems strange, but it is so." The last sentence of this utterance shows that Fra Elbertus is maintaining his reputation of being more amusing in the original than in any parody.

Similarly Mr. Lewis Nixon, a man whom boys should desire to emulate, said to Miss Kate Carew: "It's no use to map out a boy's career. He has to work out his own destiny. The country boy has great advantages over a city boy, because he develops his character along better lines and has no false social ideas to tangle up his judgment." It is certain that most of the glittering prizes in city life are won by country boys—barefooted Carnegies and village Schwabs, Depews, Platts and Crokers. Mr. Nixon's remark that "it's no use to map out a boy's career" would have interested Wordsworth, who discovered that "the child is father of the man."

A third item of interest about boys, and one of special importance to fathers, was the description of Prof. Ringel's "Spartan school" in a German village. Prof. Ringel puts his young charges through a regimen that is calculated to toughen them physically. They rise at half-past four, undergo a rigorous gymnastic training, eat lean meat and vegetables, spend much of their time in the open air, and inure themselves to fatigue and pain.

Ringel's course of training is a new application of an old theory. But it is a question whether too little coddling is not as bad for a boy as too much. Reports of the progress of the professor's pupils forty years hence will be interesting. Will the graduates of his stoic school be hale and healthy, or broken down men, their vitality exhausted by schoolroom hardships? Ambitious young athletes who individually subject themselves to a hardening process of the sort Prof. Ringel recommends at twenty, weaken at thirty and become consumptives at forty, if not already dead. Many semi-invalids have lived to be centenarians. Was there ever an athlete who accomplished this feat of longevity?—New York World.

An Iowa court has established a precedent which carries breach of promise beyond the grave. A young woman was engaged to be married, the hour was fixed but postponed, and a later date named. The man died before the time came around and the young woman sued for damages. The court decided the agreement settled the matter, that she was to all intents and purposes in the eye of the law his widow, and entitled to a widower's dower, which in her case amounted to $6,000. The deceased would probably make no objection, as he really intended to marry her and would have done so if he had not died.—Wilmington Star.

A Boston man has entered suit for $50,000 against a Western patent medicine firm for having used his photograph in "before taking" and "after taking" advertisements. He alleges that the use of the photo was unauthorized, and that while the "after taking" picture is a good likeness, he has never been sick and never looked like the "before taking" cut.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings In North Carolina.

Miss Mabel Wood, of Lenoir county, died Tuesday at Littleton female college where she was a pupil.

Mrs. Mary Lee Wilson, of Reidsville, was run over by a passenger train on Tuesday and instantly killed.

A work train on the Western N. C. railroad run into a landslide near Marion. Two of the hands were killed and several others injured.

A most distressing accident occurred near Lawrence Tuesday. A six year old son of Mrs. Staton, widow of Charles Staton, shot and killed his brother.—Tarboro Southerner.

In the suit of B. F. Long vs Southern Railway, in Iredell Superior court this week, a compromise was made by the railroad agreeing to pay the plaintiff $7,850 and all costs in the case. The suit was for $50,000 and grew out of the plaintiff's son being killed by a train at University station sometime ago.

Profit In Insurance.

Mr. J. R. Young, of Raleigh, the Insurance Commissioner, registered at the Buford last night. Mr. Young said that the insurance companies of this State are in better condition than ever before, notwithstanding the fact that this has been a very severe year on all companies.

There are 90 fire insurance companies in the State, 45 life insurance companies, 23 fraternal orders and 18 fidelity and casualty companies. There are seven home fire insurance companies and one home life insurance company.

In most of the Southern States there are less insurance companies than there were a year or so ago, said Mr. Young, but in North Carolina it is the reverse. There are more companies than formerly. The insurance companies last year paid into the State Treasury $150,000 in taxes, this being an increase of about 40 per cent. over the amount of taxes usually paid by the insurance companies of the State.

Up to 1899, or before the present insurance law and commission were operative, the insurance companies never paid into the State Treasury more than $80,000 in one year. Mr. Young declares that North Carolina gives better protection to all classes of insurance companies than almost any other State, and for this reason all the companies now doing business in the State will renew their license April 1st.—Charlotte Observer.

Start Girls Right!

Many beautiful girls become invalids for life, because at the crucial period of puberty they pay no attention to the laws of health. Mothers should protect their daughters' health by giving them necessary information and proper treatment. When the menses come on a girl unawares in her inexperience she is either frightened into convulsions, or scared into trying to check the flow. Many girls have checked the flow and it has never started again. And as a result they have grown pale-faced, with "crow-tracks" on their cheeks, and dark half-moons under their eyes. A dose of taken every morning after a girl is twelve years old will bring the menses on properly and keep them regular. It will help her to develop into attractive womanhood and equip her for the duties of wife and motherhood. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

The Hollywood, Asbury Park, N. J., February 8, 1900.

I read your advertisement in regard to Wine of Cardui in the Baltimore American, and it so favorably impressed me that on my visit to Baltimore during the holidays I purchased a bottle of it for my adopted daughter, who was suffering with female troubles. She had been under the doctor's care for some time, and when her periods would come on her suffering was something terrible. I induced her to try it and the first dose brought on her menses. She took it regularly according to the directions, and was greatly relieved. To use her own words, "It saved my life." J. WESLEY CROSS.
