WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent
WASHINGTON, D. C. May 2.

As all of the appropriation bills, with the exception of the general deficiency bill which will not be reported until the last of the session have been reported, it is possible to make an approximate estimate of the total appropriations of the session and to a certain extent of this Congress. The general appropriation bills so far reported, some of them already laws, aggregate $658,851,208. This is without taking into account the $17,000,000 appropriated on Tuesday for public buildings and numerous other special appropriations. As it is estimated that the general bill will approximate several millions it is considered safe to predict that this will go down in history as a "billion and a half dollar Congress," for it is safe to assume that the appropriations of the short session will at least equal those made this year. Should the Nicaraguan Canal bill become a law that would add $180,000,000 more to the aggregate. In this connection, too, it is worth remembering that, by the repeal of the war revenue taxes, the annual receipts of the government have been curtailed by a sum estimated at $70,000,000. The greatest incentive to lavish expenditure at this session of Congress has been the apprehension on the part of the protectionists that a surplus in the Treasury would lead to tariff reduction and their object has been to expend the surplus, irrespective of necessity, in order to obviate any revision of the tariff schedules.

The methods employed to secure the passage of the Omnibus public building bill this week serve as an excellent example of the manner in which the dominant party effects its ends. This bill contained many appropriations for worthy objects and some long needed public buildings, but it also contained provisions for others which were little short of "looting the Treasury." In order to secure the passage of the unworthy bills the republicans consolidated all bills for public buildings into one measure. Opposition to one would mean opposition to all. They went even farther and included in the bill a provision for some public improvement in almost every state in the Union so that any Representative who voted against it would be voting against the wishes of his constituents. A special rule was adopted which made it impossible to amend by striking out any of the notoriously unworthy provisions and limited the debate to three hours, manifestly too short a time in which to consider a bill with objects so numerous and diverse. I cite this case merely as a sample of methods in the House.

The President has determined to appoint Henry Clay Evans Consul general at London, vice the recently deceased William McKinley Osborne. The appointment will not meet with the approval of the G. A. R. as it is very much in the character of a promotion, the position carrying several times as large remuneration as that of Commissioner of Pension. Mr. Roosevelt believes, however, that Mr. Mr. Evans administered his office with exceptional justice and that he deserves great reward.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings in North Carolina.

Charlotte has a man who takes keen delight in catching snakes and chewing them to death.

A sensation has developed at Lenoir that is very much the counterpart of the famous Cropsey case Elizabeth City. A Miss Childers was accompanied home from church by a widower and has not been seen since. The man says the young lady was crying when he left her at the door.

Robbers attempted to break into a house at Durham while only the mother and a daughter of the household were at home. The young lady thwarted the purpose of the robbers by sending pistol balls after them.

Frank Farmer, of Onslow county, fell from the roof of his house, Friday, and broke his neck.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

The Boy Who Wanted the Flag at the Head of His Bed.

There is a five-year-old boy in Massachusetts avenue who is of the blood of patriots, says the Washington Star. His grandfather was in both the Mexican and civil wars, and his father was also a Union soldier; consequently the little fellow has heard much "flag" talk in his short life and has exalted ideas of its protective qualities. He was the baby of the family till very recently and occupied a crib bed in his mother's room. When the new baby came, Harold was put to sleep in a room adjoining his mother's, and as he had never slept alone before his small soul was filled with nameless fears which he was too proud to tell in full.

"It's mighty lonesome in here, mamma," he called the first night after he had been tucked in his little white bed.

"Just remember the angels are near you and caring for you," replied mamma from the outer room.

"But, mamma," he objected, "I ain't acquainted with any angels, and I'd be scared of them if they came rustling round same as I would of any other stranger."

"Now, Harold, you must go to sleep quietly. Nothing will hurt you."

"Can't I have the gas lighted in here?"

"No; mamma doesn't think it necessary, and it is not healthy."

There was silence for a time, and then the small voice piped up again, "Oh, mamma!"

"Yes, dear."

"May I have grandpa's flag?"

"Why, what for? I want you to go right to sleep."

"Please, mamma!" And a small nightgowned figure appeared at the door. "Just let me stick the flag up at the head of my bed, and then I'll go right to sleep—indeed I will. You know the other night grandpa said at the meeting that 'under the protecting folds of the flag the weakest would be safe,' and I feel mighty weak, mamma."

He got the flag, and when his mother looked in on him an hour later he was fast asleep, with a fat little fist under his red cheek, holding fast the end of the "protecting" flag.

Peculiar Actions of a Bird.

One day as I was passing under an evergreen tree a whippoorwill fluttered down in front of me and ran along on the ground as if wounded. Of course I thought it was wounded and tried to catch it, but it ran just fast enough to keep ahead of me. After we had gone over twenty rods the bird flew up in the air and disappeared. It had been calling me away from its nest, which I had already found.—Walter Fisher in American Boy.

Handy Boxes.

Housekeepers would find it very convenient to have a neatly covered box in each room in which to keep the towels, bed linen, etc., belonging to that room. It should be large enough to hold an extra pair of blankets or a comforter that might be found at a moment's notice should the weather turn cold during the night. It is economical, too, for by so doing the best bed linen is saved for the guestroom, and sheets which have been turned or patched may be used for the children. When the housewife has more work than she knows how to do, she is not always careful to select the bedding which belongs to a particular room. These boxes should be padded before they are covered, and then they form good seats, but care should be taken that they are not too high.

BARBERS AND CHRISTMAS.

"Our trade suffers more than that of any other during the Christmas holidays," said a Thirteenth street barber. "Contrary to all rules, we make less money within the ten days of the Christmas season than in the dullest lull of the summer months. About 20 per cent of our regular customers who are shaved three times a week suddenly drop off about three days before Christmas and do not return until early in January. It's nothing new. You see, it's like this: The tipping habit about Christmas time has grown so in America that a man seems to think that he is forced to give his barber at least a dollar around Christmas. Instead of keeping on and feeling the pangs of a pricked pride hundreds just change places for a week or so. The thing has become so evident to us that we expect it. When we hear the perfunctory phrase, 'Well, I guess I'll go out of town for eight or ten days,' or one customer say to another, 'I think I'll take a run up to Maine for a week's shoot, we are on.'—Philadelphia Times.

To Pay a Quarter Per Baby.

Cook county will have to pay 25 cents a head for every baby born inside its limits and whose birth is reported to the county clerk after New Year's day. This is on account of a law which was enacted by the last legislature.

The object of the law was not to place a bounty on the birth of babies in Chicago, but to insure the recording of the births of the babies who may be born. The physician presiding at the birth of a child will be entitled to collect the tax. If he neglects his duty, the parent of the offspring will have the next chance at the county's quarter. This piece of silver will be paid by the county treasurer upon notice by the county clerk that the birth in question has been reported to him.

"I expect this new law will cost Cook county about $15,000 next year," said President John J. Harberg of the county board. "There were nearly 50,000 babies born in Chicago last year."—Chicago News.

A Full Dinner Pail.

David Long, a laborer, walked into the Second National bank of Danville, Ill., the other afternoon, placed his dinner pail in the teller's window and said he wanted to make a deposit. Then to the astonishment of the bank officials he opened the pail and showed that it was full of soiled and crumpled bank notes of an almost forgotten issue. There was a little less than $1,500 in the pail, and every dollar of it was of the old war issue of thirty-five years ago and worth a hundred cents. The bank retained the greater part of the money, but some of it was in such condition that it had to be sent to Washington to be exchanged. Long, who is about seventy years old, refused to make any explanation of how he came into possession of the money. Crumpled up in some of the bills were small feathers and bits of straw, which gave evidence that the money had been at one time concealed in a bed.—Indianapolis News.

Entirely Willing.

John L. Sullivan was in the North station the other day and, seeing a little Irish baggage man coming along with a bicycle, squared off at him with that easy humor for which he is noted. The little chap, who didn't weigh over 135 pounds, put up his free hand. "Wait on a bit," he said, "till I lean me bicycle against the rail." John L. was so tickled he tipped back his head and roared. Then he told the pygmy who he was.—Boston Journal.
