Our Raleigh Letter

Notes from the State Capital

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 24, 1902. Mirible dicta, the work of the "Board of Examiners of State Institutions," created by the last Legislature, is not going to turn out to be the unprecedented and unimpeachable success that some of its creators and god-fathers predicted for it.

After spending over $1,800 in expenses, the three members of the board last week made their first report to Governor Aycock, for transmission by him to the General Assembly which meets in January. The publication of a synopsis or outline of the voluminous document in the Raleigh dailies has caused no little dissatisfaction among the management of some of the institutions reported on, while in at least one case, that of the Central Hospital at Raleigh, the people themselves (who have noted the shameful manner in which this institution has been neglected by the past several Legislatures, while the one at Morganton has been given everything it needed or asked for) are severely criticizing the niggardly recommendation made in its interest.

This board while recommending another special appropriation of $30,000 for still more additional buildings at Morganton (the capacity of which is already double that of the one at Raleigh, and the facilities and equipment indefinitely superior, being practically new), decline to recommend a dollar of appropriation for new buildings at the Central Hospital, or extension of present ones—and this in the face of the following language, taken from their report: "The board finds that while there are considered to be about 900 insane persons in the Eastern district, there are only 404 patients in this asylum. The others are either in the jails, the county homes or in charge of their relatives. This is indeed a sad condition of things."

The appropriation for additional room at Morganton is all right, as it is needed, but why should the Raleigh Hospital be again almost totally neglected?

Superintendent Mann, of the State Prison, pulls the board up pretty short in a communication showing some grave errors into which they had fallen. The board credits the present Penitentiary management with excellence and notes the fact that it has been more than self-sustaining during the past two years.

The negro A. & M. College at Greensboro is given an apparently deserved "roast," and the board recommends a decrease in the appropriation to that institution hereafter, and states why.

The shutting down of five cotton mills (at Charlotte and Concord) last Saturday, on account of inability to secure coal, and the consequent idleness of several thousand mill operatives, is a deplorable state of affairs, both for the mill owners and their operatives.

During the last three months Governor Aycock granted eleven pardons and commutations of sentences, and he has now given to the press his reasons in each case. "Blessed are the merciful"—when there are good reasons for exercising that Christ-like virtue, altogether too rare in these days—and Governor Aycock always has a good cause for exercising executive clemency. In this latest list at least one is proved to be an innocent man, and the governor's friends admire him all the more for his refusal to be influenced by the persistent clamor of his critics—journalistic and otherwise.

John McMahon, "a preacher's son," of Rutherford county, has been convicted of seducing 15-year-old Daisy McArthur, of the same county, after which McMahon's brother was arraigned for seducing Daisy's older sister, Florence McArthur. If the judge sentences them to the penitentiary for five years, (the limit) it can be stated in advance that they are two convicts whom Governor Aycock will never pardon—unless it is shown that they were unjustly convicted. The governor despises the perpetrators of this crime, and has already made it hot for some of them—offering a reward last summer for a fugitive seducer, the first instance on record in North Carolina.

Three weeks ago yesterday Rev. Weston R. Gales, of Montreat, Buncombe county, preached the last sermon he ever delivered, in Metropolitan Hall, this city. Last Saturday he was brought here, a corpse, and buried—in his native city, where his grandfather and father and so many of his ancestors rest. He was only forty-six years of age, and in personal appearance very greatly resembled his father, the late Major Seaton Gales—a handsome and distinguished looking man.

In middle life he grew to be a man of force. He conquered himself, and he devoted the last dozen years of his life to the betterment and salvation of his fellows—in Christ's name. He was one of the purest and best known and most successful of all the evangelists in this section of the South, and he did a great and lasting work for the Master who has now called him Home, where he is today, safe with his eternal reward. Would to God there were more men like him to labor among and lead the weaker aright—"tall men, sun-crowned." But, alas, we have so few—so few!

Two More Residences.

Mr. J. R. Moye is having material placed on his lot on Fifth street, on part of the O'Hagan property, preparatory to building a handsome residence.

Mr. Henry Sheppard is getting material on his lot on Evans street, south of the academy, to build a five room residence.

THE REFLECTOR appreciates the promptness with which many subscribers have responded to the statements of account recently sent them. However, there are many others who have not responded and they should not keep us waiting. Let this reminder be the last one necessary.

Liberal Legislation May be Expected.

North Carolina has a number of laws that were evidently built on the principle that it is a misdemeanor to want to do business. All such laws should be promptly wiped off the book and a policy diametrically opposite adopted as quickly as possible.—Winston Journal.

News and Opinions.

We don't believe anybody named Hilderbrand is going to start a newspaper like the Washtugton Post in Greensboro.—Winston Journal.

Mr. Pritchard shows his sense by not talking and we hope he will show his backbone by sticking up. Right or wrong, he cannot now recede from his position without forfeiting the respect of his friends.—Durham Herald.

At Charlotte the Federal Court is engaged in the third annual trial of a party of Asheville financiers charged with wrecking a bank. Wonder how many trials they would have gotten if they had been arrested for stealing a sack of flour.—Winston Journal.

Mecklenburg county is to have a complete rural free delivery service. This is the first county in the state to have a complete service and when it is remembered that Mecklenburg has more miles of good road than any other county in the state the matter is easily explained. In this matter good roads are a two-fold blessing.—Durham Herald.

The News and Observer does not like it because Mr. Darnall, the musician, has changed his name since leaving Durham. Agreed. The man who changes his name and cultivates his hair should keep away from home if he expects to be appreciated. This sort of thing causes people to wonder why a genius cannot be sensible.—Durham Herald.

The Spartanburg, S. C., Spartan remarks that "James K. Jones, national Democratic chairman, thinks the elections of this year point to Democratic success in 1904." It will doubtless be remembered that Arkansas is somewhat of an optimist when it comes to his party's chances of carrying an election. Whatever may be said of his course in other things the national Democratic chairman cannot be accused of inconsistency in his political prognostications.—Charlotte Observer.

One thing, however, is assured. The republican party in North Carolina will stand by its Greensboro platform. The race issue is dead, dead beyond resurrection. The republican party is prepared to see that the negro in this state is assured his rights under the law. Further than that it will not go.

It is for the best interests of the state, of the republican party, and of the colored man himself, that there should be no longer a race issue in politics. The conservative minds of both races and both political parties recognize the fact and welcome the dawn of an era of better political feeling.

President Roosevelt is the leader of a great political organization. He is a northern man and must necessarily view southern problems from a northern standpoint. He is, however, a just man and an honest one. If his party in the north insist upon political recognition for the negro it is certainly desirable that this recognition should be given by Federal appointments in northern states. It is believed that the President can be brought to realize this fact. If the rights of the colored man are jeopardized, the courts of the land are open to pass upon his cause. The south, however, will continue to regulate its own domestic affairs, and if, occasionally, it has to bear with a Federal appointment that goes against the grain, it will bear

M. F. Watson, a white man, was placed in jail yesterday in default of a bond of $300 which was required of him, being tried on a warrant charging him with the larceny of $65 from a drunken man with whom he slept one night this week. The man who lost the money was named Tola, and was found by Watson on the streets, in a drunken condition, and asked Watson where he could sleep that night, and Watson took him to a house for lodging, and they were given a room, which both occupied. Tola had a roll of money, which he showed to a woman at whose house they were staying, and Watson also. The next morning the money was missing and Watson was charged with the crime, and placed in jail after a hearing before a J. P.—Kinston Free Press.

"Fewer Gallons, Wears Longer."

The secret is out and Greenville can go on living just as if the riddle had never been asked.

No, it can't, either. Greenville is not going to be what it was before. Its houses are going to be brighter; its people a little more prosperous—they are going to have some of their money left to buy other things with.

The answer to the riddle is this: You can paint a building with fewer gallons of Devco Lead and Zinc paint than with mixed paint, and it will wear several times as long as a building painted with lead and oil mixed by hand.

There's proof abundant of it all over the United States. There will soon be proof abundant of it in Greenville.

What will people do with their money? H. L. Carr sells this paint.

Great Work of Life Saving Service.

The report of the work done during 1902, by the life saving service of this country, makes a most gratifying exhibit, in the results obtained through this humane organization.

The report shows that the number of disasters to vessels within the scope of operations of the service during the year was greater than ever before with the exception of the year 1898 and 1901, yet the loss of life was small. The number of lives lost from documented vessels—those of five tons or over—was only 19, while six were lost from smaller craft—sail boats, row boats, etc., making a total of 25, a number far below the average.

The amount of property imperilled was greatly in excess of that of any previous year in the history of the service, owing to the unusual number of large vessels involved. No less than 54 vessels of over 1,000 tons burdens, of which number 33 were steamers, suffered disaster. The loss of property, however, was comparatively light.

The number of disasters to documented vessels was 395. On board these vessels were 3454 persons, of whom 19 were lost. The estimated value of the vessels was $9,283,630, and that of their cargoes, $5,139,380, making a total value of property involved, $14,393,010. Of this amount $12,125, was saved and $2,267,790 lost. The number of vessels totally lost was 51.

It is this great work of the hardy and brave life saving crews, which so greatly lessens the dangers of those who must gain a livelihood upon the waters and saves property from total loss.

It is a service which brings great returns for the money spent in keeping it up.—New Bern Journal.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1903.

Do you agree with what THE REFLECTOR said about another train being needed on this branch of the Atlantic Coast Line? If so, show your interest by acting.

In New York a man and woman are to be married in a lion's den. The man says he hopes the lion will not kill him. After awhile he may curse the lion for neglecting the opportunity of performing a charitable deed.

The dudes and dudesses are holding their annual exhibition of clothes and shape in New York. They call it a horse show, but a "J. A." show would be a more appropriate name.

That old grandmother of American journalism, the New York Tribune, can cast its eye over toward Indiana and see a negro hanging to the limb of a tree. This time it was not traitors and rebels who did it.

A woman in Indiana took medicine to make her beautiful, and died from the effects of it. If she thinks anything at all now, she probably thinks 'twere better to be homely and alive than beautifully dead.

Shades of Fenimore Cooper! Out in Dakota the noble red man has been forced to doff his war paint, clip his flowing locks, and descend to menial labor. Next thing we will be hearing of a strike among Indian laborers. From this it is only a step to divorces, golf, cigarettes and other comforts of civilization.

A Kentuckian, armed with revolver and bowie knife, was sand-bagged and robbed of money, diamonds and jewelry in New York last week. He attributes his mishaps to the fact that for the first time in his life he took a drink of water and it made him drunk. He insists that if he had stuck to the drink of his fathers it never would have happened.

A woman walked into a police station in New York the other day and asked the sergeant to send the dead wagon for her child and give it a decent burial, as the child had died from poverty and lack of proper food, and the mother was too poor to buy a shroud for it. Isn't it an awful thing—a little child starved to death amid more wealth and splendor than a Persian Shah ever knew! What to this poor mother is Mr. Carnegie's splendid palace of books?

It's been a long time since there's been anything doing in the Philippines in the way of war. Maybe the Filipinos are busy preparing applications for pensions.

The One a True Index of the Other.

It affords some people a great pleasure to beat the newspaper. Everybody wants something from the paper, but few are willing to give anything in return. If the editor wants pay for his hard work a kick comes. People are always ready to take the newspaper man's money, but never in a humor to pay the newspaper man any money; when paid it is done in a way to make him feel like he had just robbed a henroost. We heard a man say not long ago that he had read an American newspaper three years and had not paid a cent on it. He actually bragged about it. We would not trust such a creature as far as you could throw a bull by the tail. It would be difficult to point out an instance where a town has grown into importance that its growth can not be attributed to the work of the newspaper. The newspaper, above all else in a town, should receive the hearty support of the town people. As a rule if a town has a poor paper it is because the people and business men do not give it the support it should have. To speak lightly of your home paper is one of the most unworthy acts that one can be guilty of, for when you do so you condemn yourself because it is evidence that you do not give it your support. Would you have a newspaper that you can be proud of? Then give it your support. You are often urged to speak well of your town and sing its praises, wherever you go; a far better thing to do is to stand behind your newspapers and they will do the rest.—American Ga Herald.

His Investment.

"When I knew old Hunks years ago," said the returned traveler, "he hadn't a soul above dollars and cents. I find him now the best read man, especially in history and the works of standard novelists, I ever met. I can't understand the change in him." "The explanation is easy," replied the old citizen. "He lent $1,000 to a man who wanted to start a high class circulating library. After a year or two the man failed, leaving nothing but the books as his assets. Old Hunks had to take them for the debt, and as nobody wanted to buy a lot of second-hand books he started in and read all of them to get his money back."—Chicago Tribune.

He Beat Them All.

A great many good educational speeches have been made in the State this year by Gov. Acock, Dr. McIver, Dr. Winston and others, but from the quotations we have seen from the twenty minutes' speech of Dr. H. L. Smith, president of Davidson College, on the closing night of the educational meeting in Raleigh last week, it completely dwarfs every other speech on education that has ever been made in North Carolina. It was fresh, new, original, lofty. In English equal to Macaulay's he gave in a nutshell the whole argument in favor of education and the dangers now to be combatted.—Newton Enterprise.

Stepped Against a Hot Stove.

A child of Mrs. Geo. T. Benson, when getting his usual Saturday night bath, stepped back against a hot stove which burned him severely. The child was in great agony and his mother could do nothing to pacify him. Remembering that she had a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the house, she thought she would try it. In less than half an hour after applying it the child was quiet and asleep, and in less than two weeks was well. Mrs. Benson is a well known resident of Kellar, Va. Pain balm is an antiseptic liniment and especially valuable for burns, cuts, bruises and sprains. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

The Best Remedy For Croup.

[From the Atchison, Kan., Daily Globe.]

This is the season when the woman who knows the best remedies for croup is in demand in every neighborhood. One of the most terrible things in the world is to be awakened in the middle of the night by a whoop from one of the children. The croup remedies are almost as sure to be lost, in case of croup, as a revolver is sure to be lost in case of burglars. There used to be an old-fashioned remedy for croup, known as five syrup and tulu, but some modern mothers say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better and does not cost so much. It causes the patient to "throw up the phlegm" quicker, and gives relief in a shorter time. Give this remedy as soon as the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

It is generally believed that night caps were invented in the days of knighthood.

For a Bad Cold.

If you have a bad cold you need a good reliable medicine like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to loosen and relieve it, and to allay the irritation and inflammation of the throat and lungs. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

All the troubles of the past are as nothing compared with the good of now.

Heavy eating is usually the first cause of indigestion. Repeated attacks inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach, exposes the nerves of the stomach, producing a swelling after eating, heartburn, headache, sour risings and finally catarrh of the stomach. Kodol relieves the inflammation, protects the nerves and cures the catarrh. Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia, all stomach troubles by cleansing and sweetening the glands of the stomach. Jno. L. "I got soaked by rain," says Gertrude E. Fenner, Muncie, Ind., "and contracted a severe cough and cold. I failed rapidly; lost 48 pounds. My druggist recommended One Minute Cough Cure. The first bottle brought relief; several cured me. I am back to my old weight, 148 pounds. One Minute Cough Cure cuts the phlegm, relieves the cough at once, draws out inflammation, cures croup. An ideal remedy for children. Jno. L. Wooten.

NOTICE!

GREAT SALE OF VALUABLE LANDS.

By virtue of the power conferred upon me by a Decree of the Superior Court of Pitt County, made at March term 1902, appointing me a commissioner to sell the land of the late Thomas J. Shepard, I offer the lands lying in Pitt County, for sale at the Court House Door in Greenville October 13th, 1902 and the bids then made having been raised, a decree was made at October Term, 1902, setting aside the sale on the 13th of October and directing me to sell said lands.

Now by virtue of the power conferred upon me by the said two decrees I will offer for sale to the highest bidder for cash at the Court House Door in Greenville, on MONDAY, DECEMBER 1ST, 1902, the lands of the late Thomas J. Shepard in parcels or lots as follows, to wit:

1st. That certain tract or parcel on the south side of the Mill Pond above high water mark, containing about 1,325 acres, adjoining the lands of R. R. Fleming, J. B. Little, J. H. Satterthwaite, the heirs of Daniel Hill, the lands of Alfred Jenkins, M. A. Woolard, Frank Pollard and others and containing the five separate parcels or lots of 115, 320, 380, 390 and 120 acres respectively, sold in separate parcels at the former sale and then sold together in one body and bid off by Whitchard and Co. This body of land will be offered as a whole.

2nd. The tract lying on the south side of the Mill Pond above high water mark, adjoining the lands of W. H. Rollins, the heirs of G. G. Perkins, W. B. Roebuck and others, containing 225 acres, more or less, and known as a part of the Home place.

SNOWDRIFT STORIES

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

When the conductor of the U. P. train came back to the parlor cars and said that the train was stopped by a snow-drift twenty feet high and half a mile long and that it might be three days before we were dug out, there were considerable swearing among the male passengers and weeping and lamenting among the women and children. Night came down with a wild wailing of wind and everybody kicking and ready for a quarrel, and then the Chicago drummer showed what kind of a man he was. In a quiet, gentle way he drove the passengers into the last coach, kissed all the children, smiled at all the women and bowed to the men as he began:

"Ladies and gentlemen, this is a simple incident of railroad travel in the winter. In a few hours we shall be steaming on our way again, and this detention will be remembered only as a pleasant adventure. Three years ago business called me to Manitoba. It began snowing one day, and in the course of three hours our train had come to a standstill. We were caught between stations twenty miles apart, and within ten hours engine and cars were buried out of sight. There was only food enough for one meal, and by noon next day the fuel had given out. There were more than a hundred of us, and death by freezing and starvation stared us in the face."

"Seems to me I heard of that incident," said the redheaded man from Omaha.

"Of course you did—of course," replied the drummer, "as the details were published far and wide. We were in that drift for sixteen days. I have always felt sorry for the ten little children, but under such circumstances what can you do? It is a case of the survival of the fittest. Yes, the children had to go. There came a day when we had eaten the last of our shoes and gloves, and we had to begin on the children."

"You don't mean that you turned cannibal?" exclaimed the mother of a four-year-old boy.

"Ah, madam, when men are dying of hunger they have no sentiment," replied the drummer. "The last of the children had disappeared when we were rescued. I am sorry, deeply sorry, but I feel myself blameless. I had eaten my shoes, gloves, hat and the velvet collar of my overcoat first. I had even tried to eat the plush cover of the seats, but the stuff got tangled in my teeth and wouldn't go down. I knew that there were ten fat children aboard, ranging in age from one to seven years, but I was not the first to propose it. No, believe me, I was not. I had intended to keep right on and starve to death, but the others were fierce to live, and live they did. The first child selected was a beautiful little boy. Ah, I remember!"

The drummer wiped tears from his eyes with his knuckles and was overcome for a moment. When he could control his voice again, he said:

"I cannot go on. I refer you to the papers of that date for further particulars. I brought up the incident for its moral effect alone. Always remember, my friends, that no matter how bad things are they might be worse."

Most of us had mentally set him down as a bold faced liar, but he forgave him on the ground that he was lying in our interests, when he cleared his throat and resumed:

"I was in the Blank hotel in St. Louis when that terrible conflagration broke out. As I am a Chicago man, and as there is a bitter jealousy between the two cities, I was stuck away up on the ninth floor in a small room. It was midnight, and I was sleeping like a babe when the smoke and flame and confusion aroused me. Hastily throwing on my clothes, I dashed out into the hall. From a window at the back end dangled a rope—a single rope. There was just time for one person to slide down before the rope would be burned in twain and rendered useless, while there were forty women and myself to be saved. In this emergency—"

"You saved the forty women, of course," interrupted an old maid from Iowa.

"No, ma'am; I am happy to say I didn't," replied the drummer. "With their shrieks and screams ringing in my ears, I caught the rope and descended in safety, and every one of them perished."

"But that was worse than cowardly on your part. A man who would do that!"

"I acted for the best, I assure you, ma'am. Those ladies were delegates to a Christian Endeavor convention. They had attended a meeting that day. They were ready to go. On the contrary, I was at that time a sinful man and needed at least two years to even stop swearing. There has never been the slightest doubt in my mind where the forty went to, but if I hadn't escaped by the rope my whereabouts to this day would be a subject of anxiety to my friends. The moral lesson I seek to convey is that none of us should ever stand in the way of somebody else getting hold of a good thing."

Two or three of the men said something about punching some one's head, and three or four of the women looked upon the drummer as a monster. Others looked horrified, and some tried to smile in a doubtful way, and it was a painful pause as the drummer hunted in his vest pocket for a trachea. As he dropped it into his mouth he said:

"I tell you the story because of the moral lesson conveyed. There are worse things than being snowed up here. For instance, we might be strangled in our beds." M. QUAD.

Rheumacide

Continues to make Miraculous Cures

READ THIS LETTER:
ALMOST A MIRACLE.

DILLON, S. C., Aug. 10th, 1902.

Gentlemen:—In September, 1899, I took rheumatism in a very bad form. In a month after the disease started I had to give up my work and go to bed. It continued to grow worse until my arms and hands were badly drawn, so much so that I could not use them. My legs were drawn back until my feet touched my hips. I was as helpless as a baby for nearly twelve months. The muscles of my arms and legs were hard and shriveled up. I suffered death many times over. Was treated by six different physicians in McColl, Dillon and Marion, but none of them could do me any good, until Dr. J. F. Ewing, of Dillon, came to see me. He told me to try your RHEUMACIDE. He got me one bottle of the medicine and I began to take it and before the first bottle was used up I began to get better. I used five and a half bottles and was completely cured. That was two years ago, and my health has been excellent ever since. Have had no symptoms of rheumatism. I regard "RHEUMACIDE" as by far the best remedy for rheumatism on the market. I cannot say too much for it. I have recommended it to others since and it has cured them.

Will say further, that I began to walk in about six days after I began to take "RHEUMACIDE," with the aid of crutches; in about three months after I began to take it, I could walk as good as anybody, and went back to work again.

Very truly,
JAMES WILKES.

MISS MAY MARKELL,

A Society Belle of London, Canada.

MISS MAY MARKELL of London, Ontario, Canada, is a beautiful girl who knows what suffering is and Wine of Cardui has brought her back to health. She is one of the social favorites of her home and her recovery to health has permitted her to enjoy the company of her many friends instead of lying on a bed of sickness and suffering. For the health she now enjoys she gives credit to Wine of Cardui. She writes:

"I have found Wine of Cardui an excellent remedy for female trouble. I suffered for three years with terrible bearing-down pains at the menstrual period. I could hardly stand on my feet and was never real well. Wine of Cardui was the only medicine that I could depend on to do me any good, as I tried several with no success. Wine of Cardui cured me and I have now enjoyed perfect health for two years, and give you all the credit for I know you deserve it."

For a young girl Wine of Cardui is the best remedy to guide her through womanhood by starting the menstrual flow in a healthy and natural manner. Menstruation started right is very easy to keep regular through the years of mature womanhood. Then the "change of life" need not be feared. Thus Wine of Cardui is woman's best relief from youth to old age. A million women have secured blessed relief from their sufferings by taking this treatment. It relieves menstrual troubles in an incredibly short time. In a simple case of deranged menses Wine of Cardui never fails. To relieve disordered menses is to remove the cause of other female troubles. Any physician will tell you that to remove the cause of a disease renders the cure easy, in fact seldom fails to complete the cure. If you would have the same relief which Miss Markell secured try Wine of Cardui. You can take it without an examination and without any publicity whatever. You can take it in the privacy of your home and secure just as much benefit as if a doctor had prescribed it for you. Thousands of women are feeling the vigor of returning health by taking Wine of Cardui.

AN ARRANT SWINDLE CHARGED.

Lightning Rod Men are Accused of Sharp Work.

Complaint reaches this office that lightning rod men now in this county are swindling many people. The averment made is that a man is told that a certain piece of work will cost, say $15 or $20, but when it is completed the bill is perhaps $100 or more and he finds he has signed a contract to pay so much per foot for the rods, so much for each ball and so on, and after the work is up it measures up all right for the amount asked. Of course the trouble is in signing such a contract, for it is stipulated therein that a man waxes all homestead exemptions and gives his note. There would be no hitch were a man to have his premises measured and the number of feet and the cost put in the contract before it is signed, but our informant says only the most confiding or ignorant are asked to sign such an agreement and once signed it is valid and binding. It is a sharp practice the lightning rod men are up to, and the way to treat them is to have nothing to do with them. The generally accepted theory is that a lightning rod is worth no more than a chew of tobacco as a protection against the elements, but the way to do these men is not to sign any contract until the last cent is put in the contract.—Greensboro Record.

End of the Century Book Club.

Reported for THE REFLECTOR.] Mrs. R. W. King was the hostess at another of her delightful entertainments in honor of The End of the Century Book Club on Tuesday evening of last week. There were several visitors present in addition to the members of the club. Mrs. L. C. Arthur furnished the literary program in a nicely deflected analysis of Aaron Burr's character as an historical personage, and as a hero of romance. The remainder of the evening was devoted to the program for an annual banquet to be given on the 9th day of December, at the residence of Mrs. Arthur.

The club will hold its next regular meeting with Mrs. Bowen.
