Country Saloons And Distilleries Must Go

At the meeting of the Anti-Saloon League held in the Methodist church Sunday afternoon, there was an interesting discussion of what steps should be taken now to rid Pitt county of bar-rooms. It was decided to begin at once a canvass of the county for signatures to a petition to the next Legislature to accomplish this end.—Greenville Reflector.

One of the first things the Legislature ought to do—and one that will do it more credit than any other act it possibly can enact—is to pass a law substantially in these words: "On and after July 1, 1903, it shall be unlawful to manufacture or sell whiskey in North Carolina except in incorporated towns. And then it should make such regulations as would prevent the incorporation of cross roads stores as towns. The evils of distilleries and saloons in communities where there is no police protection are an hundred fold worse than in large towns.

The passage of such a law would relieve Pitt and all other counties of the saloon distilleries in the rural districts. Under the present local option laws then each town could have saloons or could close them up, just as the majority decides.

This is the policy that makes for Home Rule and will secure prohibition wherever public sentiment is in favor of it.—Raleigh News and Observer.

"Fewer Gallons, Wears Longer."

The secret is out and Greenville can go on living just as if the riddle had never been asked.

No, it can't, either. Greenville is not going to be what it was before. Its houses are going to be brighter; its people a little more prosperous—they are going to have some of their money left to buy other things with.

The answer to the riddle is this: You can paint a building with fewer gallons of Devos Lead and Zinc paint than with mixed paint, and it will wear several times as long as a building painted with lead and oil mixed by hand.

There's proof abundant of it all over the United States. There will soon be proof abundant of it in Greenville.

What will people do with their money? H. L. Carr sells this paint.

More Cause for Thankfulness.

The editor has additional cause for feeling good this Thanksgiving. Tuesday night his good friend, Manager W. S. Atkins, of the Greenville Knitting Mills, remembering that cold weather was near, came to the office with a bundle for him. This bundle contained two suits of nice knit underwear just made at the mills. The product of these mills improves all the time and it is no wonder there is such demand for the goods as to keep well ahead of the output. Mr. Atkins is a most efficient manager.

THE STATE PRESS

News and Opinions.

A new and unusual law is about to go into effect in New York, the working of which it will be interesting to observe. After the 1st of January the carrying of parlor matches or keeping them in one's house is to be prohibited, and any firm handling them will be subject to arrest. The fire commissioner has discovered that more than 1,300 fires were caused by parlor matches last year and, as his department has authority to regulate the sale of combustibles, he has placed parlor matches under the ban. Hereafter the use of old fashioned sulphur matches or safeties will be allowed. The danger from a sulphur match is reduced to a minimum as it can only be struck upon a prepared surface. The law will bear harder on sensitive nostrils but will be easier on property owners and insurance companies.—Charlotte Observer.

Hon. A. M. Scales, chairman of the board of directors of the Colored Agricultural and Mechanical College, is busy today preparing a statement of the management and the results of the operations of that institution in behalf of the industrial training of the colored young men of the State. This statement will completely riddle the remarkable and unprecedentedly unjust criticism which the public institutions' board made in report to the Governor this week.—Greensboro Record.

Pays for Itself.

In Switzerland, the ideal republic of the world, the school house is the most elegant of all the buildings in the town—the perfection of mechanical genius without and of artistic talent within. The sight of the building is an inspiration. It is the town's pride. Pupils are taught good manners, good morals, patriotism, love and respect for the home, for parents, for all in authority, cleanliness of person, proper respect for their fellowman. The love for the true and the beautiful is inculcated. Ideals are created. The school is the greatest uplifting force in the republic. A Swiss statesman visiting America observed a very high fence around a farmer's orchard. He asked as to the purpose of the fence. He was told that it was to keep out the boys. "What?" said he, "have you no schools in America?"—Charles I. Parker of North Carolina.

North Carolina Day.

All the schools in town have united to celebrate North Carolina day in the schools. Instead of having the exercises today they will be held Friday morning beginning promptly at 9:30 o'clock. The program furnished by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction for the public schools will be rendered. Everybody is invited. The exercises will be held in the court house and there will be ample room for all who may wish to attend.

Amateurs Notice.

The Deestrick Skule will be rehearsed at the opera house Thursday afternoon. Every participant is requested to be at the opera house promptly at 3 o'clock. This is very important, as the Creightons will be present, and all who will take part should be familiar with the entire program. Make it a point to be on time, so there may be no delay.

NEWSY HAPPENINGS AND BUSINESS NOTES.

WINTERVILLE, N. C., Nov. 26.

Those having holly trees on their land would do well to see O. A. Fai of this place. He ships to the northern markets and might pay you a fancy price for some. The conditions are that it shall be fresh and green with plenty of berries.

Leslie Smith, of Farmville, was in town Sunday.

George Perry, of New Bern, is down here to spend Thanksgiving with the boys. He is accompanied by Walter Dixon, of Bellair.

A. G. Cox Mfg. Co. recently shipped over one thousand five hundred Economic Back Bands for plow and wagon harness at one shipment.

Abe Carraway, of Farmville, was in town Sunday.

Oscar Taylor, of LaGrange, was here yesterday on business.

Turkeys are making right much ado around here. We imagine they are saying "Don't axe me."

Joseph Darden, of Falling Creek, and Robert Darden, of Greene county, were in town yesterday.

One man from Grimesland left here yesterday with four cart loads of wire fence. We learned that he had over a mile, and expects to get another half mile in two or three weeks.

Miss Smith, of Farmville, was visiting Misses Hattie and Effie Kittrell Sunday.

Rev. C. W. Blanchard filled his regular appointment here Saturday and Sunday. Continuing from Sunday we are having services all this week. Preaching at 11 A. M. and at 6:45 at night. Already a deep interest is manifested. All are cordially invited to come out and hear a series of sermons applicable to the condition of every one.

Rev. T. Neill Johnson, of Raleigh, Sunday School Field Missionary for the State, was here Saturday and preached at the Baptist church.

"The more the merrier." That is the way it is with our customers. Every liberal minded man who gets a good bargain wants to let his friends hear of same and gets them to take advantage of the opportunity to do likewise. This jollification spirit is due not only to the large crowd all going one way, but also to the fact that they are liking the goods bought better and better every day.—A. G. Cox Mfg. Co.

Several parties here have not bought their winter's supply of wood yet. If those having wood to sell would get the contract to furnish so much and haul it while the roads are in good condition there would be considerable advantage in it to them.

A useful hint was given the other day by a physician who removed a piece of grit from a patient's eye. The accident had occurred at the beginning of a railway journey lasting some hours. "Another time when you are troubled with grit in the eye," said the doctor, "don't attempt to get it out, but just cover the eye with your hand to keep it closed and blink away as hard as you can with the other till the grit is dislodged. This hint was given to me by a commercial traveler and how it acts is more than I can tell you, but it does, and that is all that matters to the sufferer."

Long or Short, Men of all Sizes,

Are fitted here. We have suits that will fit the largest or the smallest man in town. We request the men who are under size or over size to come here before they conclude that there is no clothing made that is just their shape. We have Overcoats, Suits and Trousers made to fit men who think they cannot be fitted. Our "Stouts" and "Slims" are a special feature of our business. So, we say, come along, you men of abnormal sizes. Here are clothes for you, made in every good style of right fabrics, and no extra charge on account of your size. Glad you read this ad, aren't you?

The King Clothier.

LEFT! That's what you'll be if you don't get your copy for ads in the Christmas Number of the Daily Reflector in this office by Wednesday, December 10th. Come on, now; don't be like the cow's tail.

Interested in Public Schools.

Public attention in Virginia has been directed to the common schools of the country, both by the discussions and action of the Constitutional Convention, and by the effective work of the Southern Education Board. Mr. Harry St. George Tucker and Prof. Robert Frazer have spoken with ability and great earnestness at many places through the state. There are evidences of an awakened interest, and some improvements are already on foot. In a number of counties schools have been combined for better work, securing better wages, and improved buildings. We have come to a new era in the history of the rural public schools, and it will be well if every county and every district will share in the advance. We counsel our country readers to give the schools their sympathy and encouragement. Show your interest by intelligent assistance of your local board, and by kindly attention to the teachers.—Central Presbyterian.

If in one sentence I were required to give what I believe to be the most valuable discovery of the educational world up to this present, it would be that poor teachers are worse than no teachers.—Prof. Hoyt.

As is the teacher, so is the school. As is the superintendent, so are all the teachers and all the schools.—Dr. W. H. Ruffner of Virginia.

PERSONAL NOTES

Brief Mention of People Met With in the Social World

Ex-Sheriff Mooring was in town today.

H. A. White went to Parmele today.

J. J. Laughinghouse was in town today.

Rev. F. A. Bishop went to Robertsonville today.

C. P. Snuggs returned this morning from New Bern.

Mrs. N. E. Smith, of Farmville, is visiting her son, R. L. Smith.

A young gentleman—name not given—is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Monchia Cherry since Wednesday.

Mayors Court.

The following cases have been disposed of by Mayor H. W. Whedbee since last report:

John Collins, drunk and down, $1 and cost, $3.30.

Nathaniel Dawson and Bud Hardee, affray, bound over to Superior court.

Bud Hardee, carrying concealed weapons, bound over to Superior court.

Sanny Hewell, drunk and down, $1 and cost, $3.30.

It Took Work.

The special Thanksgiving issue of THE DAILY REFLECTOR represents a large amount of work, nearly all of which was done at night. The force put in several extra nights on it to avoid any interference with the regular daily editions, and the work has been done well. The faithfulness of our employees deserves this mention. Thanks are also due the several contributors for their excellent articles in the Thanksgiving issue.

Finger Cut Off.

Newman Eare, son of Rev. H. M. Eare, lost the end of a finger today by getting it caught in a bicycle chain.

Thanks.

THE REFLECTOR force is indebted to Bryan & Nichols for a tray of Digestine, their new and popular drink. It is excellent and healthful and deserves to take the lead at all soda fountains.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1902

The Greenville REFLECTOR says:

"If the next legislature will put a tax of $1 on every dog in the state for the benefit of public schools we will take back what we thought about it."

Possibly the legislature may get around the constitution on this point by valuing the franchise of the dog high enough to make the tax equal to $1 per head. Otherwise we fear our friend will not have the opportunity to take back its thoughts.—Raleigh Post.

Our esteemed contemporary is right, as usual. A dog tax is limburger to the legislature.

Judging from sundry editorial hints in columns ever devoted to orthodox democracy, a respectable republican party in North Carolina is a contingency devoutly to be wished for. Many unprejudiced and sober minds would regard such a thing as one of the best results of the Amendment. It would give a balance to the discussion of public questions that would seriously affect future legislation in the State, for the public good. It is certain that many who gave strenuous support to the Amendment had such a result in mind. They regarded it as not simply a possibility but a logical consequence.

To the orthodox, however, how much more is wrapped up in that sort of thing than pertaineth merely to the public good. And when that respectable republican party materializes, to the satisfaction of these present well-wishers, there are grave doubts that some of them will recognize it if they meet it on the public road.

North Carolina Crop Report.

The North Carolina Department of Agriculture issues the following North Carolina crop report for November, the basis of the percentage of crops being 100 per cent for an average crop. In one case—that of cotton—the report is that the average this year is above that of last year, while the quality of tobacco is put down as being average.

The report gives these figures, each being a comparison with the average crop, except as indicated:

Yield of cotton	86
Yield of cotton compared with last year	102
Yield of tobacco	97
Quality of tobacco	100
Yield of corn	90
Yield of peanuts	91
Yield of sweet potatoes	98
Yield of cowpeas	85

PAROLES NOT REVOKED.

General Grant Laid Down the Law to President Johnson.

Daniel E. Goodloe, for many years a distinguished resident of Washington and chairman of the commission to free the slaves of the District, once told this story:

"One morning soon after the surrender at Appomattox I was one of a group of gentlemen standing on Pennsylvania avenue, discussing the momentous questions of the day. As we talked General Grant rode toward us, smoking his usual cigar. Recognizing several of us, he dismounted and joined us.

"What's the news?" he asked.
"I answered, 'We are discussing a piece of news which comes to us directly from the White House and which gives me no little concern.'"

"What is it?" asked the general.
"I understand that President Andrew Johnson intends to revoke the parole of General Lee and other generals of the late Southern Confederacy."

"Who was your informant?" asked General Grant.

"I gave him the name of the gentleman who had given the information."

"General Grant quietly said, 'Thank you, gentlemen,' remounted his horse and rode rapidly away toward the White House."

"We leisurely turned our steps in the same direction, and as we entered the portico we saw Grant coming down the steps looking more excited than I had ever seen him before. I went upstairs and met a friend who had been in conference that morning with Mr. Johnson on the subject above mentioned. He said to me: 'If you have any request to make of the president this morning, keep it until some other time. He is angrier than I have ever seen him. A moment ago General Grant strode into his presence and peremptorily demanded, 'Do you intend to revoke the parole of General Robert E. Lee and other officers of the late Confederacy?'"

"I am considering the subject," Johnson replied. "You need not consider it. Those paroles were signed by me as general commanding the army of the United States. My promise to them shall be kept in good faith if it takes the army of the United States, plus the army of the late Confederacy, to enforce it."

"Saying this, Grant retired and left Johnson white with rage."

"We never heard any more of the revocation of the paroles."—Indianapolis Sentinel.

OLD FASHIONED.

What has become of the old fashioned man who called a boil a "gathering?"

What has become of the old fashioned man who referred to coal as "stone coal?"

What has become of the old fashioned woman who bought wall paper and hung it herself?

What has become of the old fashioned boy who believed that eating gunpowder would make him fierce?

What has become of the old fashioned mustang pony that had to be broken every time it was hitched up?

What has become of the old fashioned person who said to a child that had fallen, "Come here, and I'll help you up?"

What has become of the old fashioned woman who used to say to her boy when he came in late, "I'll attend to your case after supper?"—Aitchison Globe.

Carefulness of Surgeons.

It is an object lesson in godliness to see a surgeon washing his hands after performing an operation, says the Chicago Chronicle. He works of course with sleeves rolled up to the elbow, so that the washing extends from the crazy bone to the tip of the finger nail. First there is a hard scrubbing with plain soap and sterilized water. This is followed by a swabbing with tincture of green soap and sterilized water. Then comes a genuine scouring with equal parts of quicklime and soda in sterilized water and finally a rinsing in a solution (1 to 2,000) of bichloride of mercury. Without these four separate washings no surgeon would think of venturing out to scatter germs of disease.

Romance of a Marriage License.

There is a record of a marriage license issued to two parties, and written across the face of the entry in red ink is the note by the judge: "Returned unused. See page so and so." On turning to the page referred to there is another record and the same red ink note. In short, the record shows that a license was procured and returned unused four different times. The fifth time, however, was the charm, and they were married, he at the age of sixty-four and she at forty-eight years.—Ottawa Republican.

Stepped Against a Hot Stove.

A child of Mrs. Geo. T. Benson, when getting his usual Saturday night bath, stepped back against a hot stove which burned him severely. The child was in great agony and his mother could do nothing to pacify him. Remembering that she had a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the house, she thought she would try it. In less than half an hour after applying it the child was quiet and asleep, and in less than two weeks was well. Mrs. Benson is a well known resident of Kellar, Va. Pain balm is an antiseptic liniment and especially valuable for burns, cuts, bruises and sprains. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

The Best Remedy For Croup.

[From the Atchison, Kan., Daily Globe.]
This is the season when the woman who knows the best remedies for croup is in demand in every neighborhood. One of the most terrible things in the world is to be awakened in the middle of the night by a whoop from one of the children. The croup remedies are almost as sure to be lost, in case of croup, as a revolver is sure to be lost in case of burglars. There used to be an old-fashioned remedy for croup, known as hive syrup and tulu, but some modern mothers say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better and does not cost so much. It causes the patient to "throw up the phlegm" quicker, and gives relief in a shorter time. Give this remedy as soon as the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

For a Bad Cold.

If you have a bad cold you need a good reliable medicine like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to loosen and relieve it, and to allay the irritation and inflammation of the throat and lungs. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

A Thanksgiving Dinner.

Heavy eating is usually the first cause of indigestion. Repeated attacks inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach, expose the nerves of the stomach, producing a swelling after eating, heartburn, headache, sour risings and finally catarrh of the stomach. Kodol relieves the inflammation, protects the nerves and cures the catarrh. Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia, all stomach troubles by cleansing and sweetening the glands of the stomach. Jno. L. Wooten.

If you are bilious and seeking advisers, Take DeWitt's Little Early Risers Just before going to bed. You will find on the morrow you are rid of your sorrow—That's all; just enough said. These famous pills do not gripe, but move the bowels gently and easily, cleansing the liver. Their tonic effect gives strength to the glands, preventing a return of the disorder. Jno. L. Wooten.

One Minute Cough Cure.

Is the only harmless cough cure that gives quick relief. Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Pneumonia, Asthma, LaGrippe and all Throat, Chest and Lung troubles. "I got soaked by rain," says Gertrude E. Fenner, Muncie, Ind., "and contracted a severe cough and cold. I failed rapidly; lost 48 pounds. My druggist recommended One Minute Cough Cure. The first bottle brought relief; several cured me. I am back to my old weight, 148 pounds. One Minute Cough Cure cuts the phlegm, relieves the cough at once, draws out inflammation, cures croup. An ideal remedy for children. Jno. L. Wooten.

CAPTAIN FYFE OF THE SIXTH

By J. M. LYALL

Copyright, 1901, by A. S. Richardson.

When the Indians of the United States begin the ghost dance, the army prepares for an outbreak. In India when a new prophet comes down from the Himalaya mountains and begins to stir up the people orders are issued to suppress him at once. He is either captured by the military and banished from the province or arrested by the civil authorities and immured in a dungeon until forgotten. The English in India are arbitrary and autocratic. They realize that they are living over a volcano which may spout flame and death any hour. They move quickly and strike hard.

The coming of a prophet means popular excitement, plots and conspiracies, rekindling of the flames of hatred, danger to the English rule. Strong hands must be laid on the holy man at once. Perhaps there will be resistance, and a score of natives will be killed, and the resistance may even grow into an incipient rebellion, but the English put it down, bury the dead and give out nothing for publication. To rule India without gloves of steel would be to lose her in a year.

When the Prophet Rajmahal came down to the province of Behar from his mountain retreat, in which he claimed to have slept and dreamed for twenty years, intense excitement followed in his track. He headed straight for Moorshedabad, on the Ganges, to visit the ruins of an ancient temple and the tombs of his long dead ancestors, but he was headed off sixty miles to the north of that place. A lieutenant in the Sixth rifles had been detailed with half the troop on this special duty.

While it is true that most of the so-called prophets and holy men wandering about India are fakirs of the worst sort, who stir up excitement and sedition for the money there is in it, it is also true that a few of them are earnest and conscientious and should be dealt with harshly only after argument has been exhausted. The lieutenant found the Prophet Rajmahal to be a venerable and distinguished looking man. His age must have been eighty years or more, and yet he was sturdy and upright and had a voice like a clarion. He was a fluent speaker, full of argument, reason and appeal, and he was lighting a flame of zeal in every village he passed through. He utterly refused any cash contributions, lived on what the dogs would hardly eat and addressed the people without fear of consequences. He had dreamed of emancipation and a new ruler. It was sedition straight from the shoulder, and in less than a month he could set the whole province in rebellion.

When the lieutenant came face to face with the prophet, he resolved to try reason and argument. The officer could not yield respect and did not desire to see him dragged around the country, disgraced and degraded. Rajmahal was for defiance at first, and he had enough adherents in his train to have eaten the troops ten times over, but after an interview lasting for hours he recognized the force of English logic and announced that he would return to his mountain lair.

The prophet was as good as his word, but his return was slow. This was caused solely by the crowds blocking his way and exhorting him to defy the government. He had not yet made fifty miles on the backward track when Captain Fyfe came on with the rest of the troop. The lieutenant was relieved from duty under a cloud, and orders were issued to push the old man out of the province at the point of the saber. Captain Fyfe overtook him, pronounced him a fakir, an impostor and a charlatan, and, wishing to make the degradation complete, pulled him by the beard and spat on his raiment.

This scene took place in the open air in sight of 3,000 people and the full company of soldiers. The act mortally offended every law of caste and religion, and instead of raising shouts of indignation the natives simply groaned in horror. It was the handsome, contemptuous Captain Fyfe, clad in full uniform, who stepped forward and gathered the long white beard in his clutch. It was a wan faced, misshapen and cringing native who fell back before the uplifted hand of the prophet. Captain Fyfe had disappeared off the face of the earth while the eyes of all that vast crowd were full upon him. Three thousand people looked upon the strange scene, and 100 of them were English soldiers. A hundred different men swore to it, and it was talked over wherever two Englishmen met in India. But the press dared not refer to it for fear of encouraging the natives.

The second lieutenant, now in charge of the troop, rode through that crowd a score of times, but his captain was not to be found. He beat up the country around, he coaxed and threatened, but the Prophet Rajmahal strode on, with his face to the mountains, and his followers were dumb. The troops had to turn back. No sooner had the report reached the colonel at Gyah than the second officer was put under arrest. At his trial every man in the command testified to the facts as above related. It was against common sense to believe the story, but could they say that a hundred men had conspired to lie? They had to accept their testimony and clear the officer, and the only thing left was to poohpoo it and forbid the soldiers to talk.

What had become of the native who had stepped into Captain Fyfe's boots, as it were, no one could say. He had drawn back and mingled with the crowd and then disappeared.

Weeks and months went by. Then one day a strange Hindoo was seen hanging about the cantonment. His face was like that of a monkey rather than of a man, and his misshapen legs gave him a queer gait. A soldier went forward with a stick to drive him away, but the idler protested, weeping, and after speaking in a strange jargon he forced out the words:

"Take me—take me to the colonel!"
Ambling and clucking and chattering, he was passed to the colonel. Now and then a native came in with reports worth heeding, and this "thing" was supposed to be the bearer of some such news. Standing before the colonel, he stuttered and stammered and giggled like a fool. What few words he did utter no one could understand. The colonel lost patience and spoke to him sharply, and the "thing" groveled at his feet.

"Try your cane on him," said the colonel to a captain who had been drawn thither by curiosity.

"That will make him speak," replied the captain as he brought the cane down over the chatterer's shoulders.

So it did. He sprang up, screamed out like a wild beast two or three times, and then, holding out his hands in appeal, he cried distinctly:

"Colonel, don't you know me? I am Captain Fyfe!"

"God in heaven!" gasped the colonel, springing to his feet.

"I am! I am! I tell you, I am Captain Fyfe, and I want to come back here!"

Horror struck, the officers looked into his hideous face and at his deformed limbs, and no man could speak.

"I tell you, I am Captain Fyfe!" screamed the "thing," "but you won't believe it—you don't want me. I will go back!"

And as the group continued to stare and wonder and feel their blood run chill he ran out of the room, fled across the grounds with growls and cackles, and before a move was made to prevent he was out of sight behind some buildings. The closest search was made, but in vain. For months and months watch was kept for him, but he never returned.

Nature Study That Failed.

A certain clever teacher in a public school once congratulated herself on having given her geography class a vivid idea of islands by cutting out pieces of brown paper and pinning them on the wall. "That's all very well," said the master of the school, speaking from a longer experience of the youthful mind, "but those children will go out into life with a fixed idea that an island is a piece of brown paper pinned on the wall." The New York Post says that two little "fresh air" girls were noticed on the morning after their arrival gazing at the landscape with evident disapproval.

"What's the matter, children?" asked their hostess. "Why are you disappointed with the country?"

"Why, there's no grass here," said one, pulling a blade and biting the end of it.

The lady could only stare. "What is your idea of grass?" she asked at last. Little by little the truth came out. To begin with, grass, they thought, was about the height of a man.

"If this were taller, would it be like grass?" asked the lady.

"Oh, no!"

"How is it different?"

"Why, grass is black," said one child.

"Black and white," added the other.

Then the explanation became apparent. They had drawn their idea of vegetation from the black and white prints of newspapers and books.

Lines in Maple Wood.

Nobody seems to know what cause it is which produces those delicate and beautiful lines in maple known as birdseye. Some people think they come from the hundreds of little branches which shoot out over the trunk of the tree as soon as a clearing is made around it. Expert timbermen say that is not the case. The only way to tell a birdseye maple tree is to cut it. There are no outward signs by which one can judge. The Railroad Gazette tells a story of the late George M. Pullman. Many years ago he was offered a mahogany log for $3,000, to be cut into veneers. It was supposed to be a very fine piece of wood, but this could only be determined by cutting it. He declined the offer, but agreed to take the log cut into veneers for what it was worth. The owner had it sawed and was paid $7,000 for his veneers. Any one who can discover the secret of determining the interior nature of wood from the outside will have a fortune.

Unhappy Princesses.

The figures the old maids presented to the astonished court when they returned to take their places at Versailles may be seen today in the portraits by Nattier, which adorn the walls of the palace where they lived their futile, often mischievous lives. The very names Louis jovially fastened upon these melancholy dames illuminate the scene and the attributes of the royal maidens. Loque, Coche, Graille and Chiffe were the endearing titles by which the fond father addressed his daughters. The terms are not quite translatable, but they signify Rag, Piggy, Sloppy, Tatters. None possessed a single trait of beauty, none had intellectual resources above the ordinary scullion maid save the elder, Mme. Adelaide, who had just enough ability to make misery in court and camp. Their existence was a constant mortification of the flesh.—Era.

Mrs. Fred Vnrath,

No. 226 Territorial Street, Benton Harbor, Mich.

"I am pleased to give my experience with Wine of Cardui as I am very grateful for his help. After my first baby was born I could not seem to regain my strength, although the doctor gave me a tonic which he considered very superior, but instead of getting better I grew weaker every day. My husband came home one evening with some Wine of Cardui and insisted that I take it for a week and see what it would do for me. As he seemed to have so much faith in it I did take the medicine and was very grateful to find my strength slowly returning. In two weeks I was out of bed and in a month I was able to take up my usual duties. I am very enthusiastic in its praise."

Mrs. Fred Vnrath.

hers, as are their ambitions, triumphs and defeats. Healthy women do not suffer miscarriage nor does a woman who is healthy suffer tortures at childbirth. It is the woman who is ailing—who has female weakness—who fears the ordeal of becoming a mother. Wine of Cardui builds up the womanly in a woman. It stops all unnatural drains and strains—irregularities which are responsible for barrenness and miscarriage. It makes a woman strong and healthy and able to pass through pregnancy and childbirth with little suffering. After the ordeal is passed the Wine prepares a woman for a speedy recovery to health and activity.

MOTHERHOOD is the noblest duty and highest privilege women can achieve or aspire to. Without this privilege women do not get all there is in life—too often they go through the world discontented, wrapped up in their own selfish cares and troubles. How different is the happy mother, watching her children grow into manhood and womanhood. A mother lives as many lives as she has children—their joys and sorrows are Wine of Cardui, in re-inforcing the organs of generation, has made mothers of women who had given up hope of ever becoming mothers. Wine of Cardui will cure almost any case of barrenness except cases of organic trouble. How can you refuse to take such a remedy that promises such relief from suffering? Wine of Cardui simply makes you a strong woman, and strong, healthy women do not suffer. They look forward to motherhood with joy.

A business getter for the holidays—Christmas Number of the Daily Reflector, out Dec. 18.

Wrote a Book While Waiting for His Wife.

Madame de Genlis, in a work on "Time," tells us that the famous Chancellor D'Auesseau, observing that his wife always delayed ten or twelve minutes before she came down to dinner, and, reluctant to lose so much time daily, began the composition of a work which he prosecuted only while thus kept waiting. At the end of fifteen years, a book in three quarto volumes was completed, which ran through three editions, and was held in high repute. Madame de Genlis profited by this example. Having to wait at the dinner hour in the Palais Royal for Madame de Chartres, who was always fifteen or twenty minutes late, she utilized the time by copying a selection of poems from eminent authors. It is told of a German critic that he could repeat the entire "Iliad" of Homer with scarcely an error. How many years, think you, did he spend in depositing the immortal epic in his brain? Years he had not to spare, or months, or weeks, or even entire days, for he was a physician in the full tide of practice; but he contrived to store in his memory the twenty-four books of the old bard of "Scio's rocky isle" in the brief, disconnected snatches of time while hurrying from one patient to another. Dr. Mason Good, a celebrated English physician, performed a similar feat, having contrived to translate the whole of Lucretius during his long walks in London to visit his patients.—William Matthews, in December "Success."

A Clean Sheet for Today.

If you could increase your happiness and prolong your life, forget your neighbor's faults. Forget all the slanders you have ever heard. Forget the temptations. Forget the fault-finding, and give a little thought to the cause which provoked it. Forget the peculiarities of your friends, and remember all the good points that make you fond of them. Forget all the personal quarrels or histories you have heard by accident, and which if repeated would seem a thousand times worse than they are. Blot out, as far as possible, all the disagreeables of life; they will come, but they will grow larger when you remember them, and the constant thought of the act of meanness, or worse still, malice, will only tend to make you more familiar with them. Obliterate everything disagreeable from yesterday; start out with a clean sheet for today, and write upon it for sweet memory's sake, only those things which are lovely and lovable.—Selected.

Still Unconscious to the World.

St. Louis, November 24.—A special from Centralia, Mo., says:

Dora Meek, who after a quarrel with her sweetheart fifty-six days ago, immediately fell into a somnolent trance, has not in that time evinced distinct consciousness or spoken a word. Restoratives in the hands of physicians have failed to arouse her. Once when aroused to breath ammonia fumes she coughed, half arose from bed, mumbled incoherently a moment and then relapsed. The further use of ammonia was desisted from for fear of suffocation. She eats a little each day, yet apparently does it instinctively. Every effort is being made to restore her to consciousness, but apparently to no effect.

In the coming North Carolina legislature the upper house will have fifty members; one independent democrat (Major Conley, of McDowell,) four republicans and forty-five democrats. The lower house has 120 members; one independent democrat (E. G. Simpson, of Perquimans,) nineteen republicans and 100 democrats. It is claimed by the friends of Locke Craig that in the general assembly there will be 145 democrats to vote for Craig for United States senator.—Asheville Citizen.
