RECORD FOR FOUR MONTHS

Enormous Sales of the Greenville Tobacco Market.

1,375,901 DOLLARS WORTH

Sold Here During the Months of August, September, October and November.

NEARLY 13,000,000 POUNDS.

For the month of November the Greenville market sold 2,916,226 pounds of tobacco for $299,986.75.

This makes a total for the four months, August 1st to December 1st, of 12,880,497 pounds, the total amount paid therefor being $1,375,901.70.

The market is going to sell above 15,000,000 pounds by the time the season closes and the amount paid out will reach at least $1,500,000.

This amount of money paid out in one season for one crop gives an idea of what the farmers of this section are doing.

Think of This, Also.

Anyone attending the Magistrates courts around town can, without much other speculation, explain the reason why the county jail is always crowded.

Many of the cases are against old offenders, who either appreciate the notoriety of being in court, or maybe they like the fare at the jail.

Anyway, they are constantly violating the law in some small way, just enough to be sent up to court. Failing to give bond these trifling wretches are sent to jail, where they fatten for months at the public expense.

Some lawyer will take charge of the case, for a small sum, knowing that but little effort will be required to get their client off.

The usual process is to appeal to the judge for leniency on account of "the poor fellow languishing in jail for months," when at the same time the "poor fellow" has been very well pleased at his incarceration, in that he has been able to get good board and clothing without working for them.

These "poor fellows" are always able to obtain a few dollars, enough to fee the lawyer, from their relatives, or their churches, who, through a mistaken idea of benevolence or charity, encourage the breaking of the law.

If the legislature would grant the magistrates jurisdiction in these trival cases, it would be a great saving to the county, in the feeding and clothing of a lot of worthless vagabonds, who should be forced to work for their living.

Give the magistrates power to decide all trival cases, collect a fine when the "poor fellow" can pay one, otherwise send the "poor fellow" out on some county road and let him ditch awhile. In this way Craven county would save several hundred dollars court expenses, and the public roads could be improved by what is now absolute idle labor.—New Bern Journal.

In Account With The Birds.
We are not likely to properly appreciate the value of insect-destroying birds in farming and gardening if we do not take aggregates into account.

We get at the truth in this business only when we make a summing up of the service of birds for the whole season.

We have in mind one very intelligent horticulturist who did this. He made record of what occurred in his view on a tract of forty acres of land, through which ran a willow-fringed stream.

In the course of the season seventy-five pairs of birds were counted. Each pair raised a single brood of three, which remained at least two months to be fed and to feed on insects.

"It was estimated that they consumed over 4,000,000 insects and their larvae." This is to be regarded as a low estimate of the number of insects actually eaten.

Careful count was kept of the rate at which the yellow-breasted woodpecker brought insects to its brood, and it was found that it averaged 120 visits per hour.

This helps us to understand some thing of the service which the insect-destroying birds render.

How would it have been with the vegetation on those forty acres if the 4,000,000 of insects destroyed had been left to go on operating and multiplying?

It seems that we can learn about such matters only by getting hurt. —Home and Farm.

On Kissers.

Kissing is not an unhealthy pastime if proper sanitary measures are used before and after taking. But it is a rank crime to bring girls up without proper instruction as regards kissing.

The Pastor in the Push has seen a good many things in his time.

A gay young imbecile of the he-flirt type was standing on the piazza of a human hostry not many months ago—he was about to depart from his lady acquaintances of a week. It was a cloudless evening in June and the scarlet West gleamed dimly—not so dimly as to hide the scene—as six young ladies passed along in line and pressed their Rose of Sharon lips to the great slit in the face of the brainless, soulless and characteristic trifier. By the eternal gods, what a scene!

A girl who willfully permits herself to be pawed over by Tom, Dick and the Devil, who joins in such public kissing bees, has so debauched her body and sodebased herself in mind that she is forever unfitted for noble witehood, and no man of refinement would marry her.

She is damaged goods the moment she submits to the kisses of a man who does not make her mistress of his heart.

Kissing ain't a josh.

Kissing means business.

When a man finds a girl that has submitted to such job-lot osculation, he should paste a crossbone label over her slobber trap and go on.—The Knocker, A Journal for Cranks.

WOMAN—A STUDY.

(Nixon Waterman.)

Woman, woman, winsome woman!
Tell us are you saint or human,
Or a toy Beelzebub has sent us from afar?

We've thought about you, sighed about you,
Fought about you, cried about you,
Stayed up nights and lied about you,
Puzzle that you are.

Just when we would dream we've got you
Figured out, as like as not you
Leave us topsy turvey, guessing what to say or do;
Now we hate you, then caress you,
Now berate you, then we bless you,
But our lives are stale unless you keep us in a stew.

Some there are who really dread you
Some who long to woo and wed you.
Some would banish you forever to a distant land;
Artists paint you, poets verse you,
Bishops saint you, cynics curse you,
But "for better or for worse" you are still in demand.

There are times you sadly vex us,
Puzzle, plague us and perplex us,
Till we wish you were in—Texas, very far away.
But, although we sadly doubt you,
You've such winsome ways about you,
We can never do without you, so we Let you stay.

Resigned on Account of Organ.

Lexington, Ky.—The withdrawal of Rev. James W. McGrevey, president of the Bible College of Kentucky University from the Broadway Christian church, became final Sunday, when that church, by a vote of 361 to 202, adopted the organ for use in worship. He opposed it on scriptural grounds, being noted throughout the denomination for his utterances against it. Two factions developed in the church and the campaign was intense. Rev. J. W. Searchy, late prohibition candidate for Congress, has also withdrawn, and Prof. Henry H. White, former president of Kentucky University, and others, say they will leave the church when the organ shall be put in use.

It must be very gratifying to those of our citizens who have in the past two years taken such an active part in furthering the great educational movement that is now sweeping over the entire state from the mountain to the sea, to see the attention that is being attracted to our state from abroad by reason of the inauguration of this great movement.—Washington Gazette Messenger.

The Bureau report issued today places the cotton crop for this season at 10,417,000 bales.

ORMONDSVILLE ITEMS.

ORMONDSVILLE, N. C., Dec. 1.

We have had several land sales in our section of late and at such prices that I though I would give you some of them:

David Jones bought M. E. Dail's "Pole Cat" farm, 50 acres, paying $1,750 or $35 per acre. This piece of land will rent for 10 or 12 per cent. on the cost.

W. J. Hardee has bought Mrs. Jennie Hardee's farm, 124 acres, paying $4,000 for it. It has already been rented out for 12 per cent. on the investment.

Mrs. Jennie Hardee will move to Kinston in the near future, having bought one acre from Mr. Mitchell paying $900 for same.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. L. Carr are now domiciled at F. F. Carr's and E. D. Elks is moving to the handsome country home lately vacated by them.

But a month ago our people were in high spirits and looked forward with a great hope for the future as they were then receiving remunerative prices for tobacco, but all of a sudden the price is cut down almost half, and in some instances more, so that a great change comes upon us and now we feel much disturbed for the future.

"Mackinley," R. A. L. Carr's fine horse, died a few nights ago.

We have had rural free delivery route for a month and are much pleased with it.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1902.

We feel sorry for Hennessy. Not that we don't expect to like Mrs. Dooley just as well.

Booker's present attitude is simply one of obedient service. That's all right. But what's the use of his standing cocked all the time!

One might scare up the least little bit of sympathy for Boston over a negro post master, but one couldn't possibly feel sorry for her—the old granny.

That Virginia statesman by any other name would be just as wise. In fact, if his "hind sight" is equal to his "fo' sight," which it undoubtedly is, he will be wiser as Mr. Mud than as Mr. Wise.

"The Elizabeth City Tar Heel champions Mr. Hearst as a democratic presidential candidate," says the Durham Herald. Sh! Wonder if the deadly cigarette has affected the Tar Heel editor's—O, that's too bad.

If Mr. Roosevelt should take it into his head not to allow the negro's color to mitigate against the chances of a few bucks to fat offices in the North, he would furnish a very substantial prop to the patience of several well-wishers down this way.

The latest move in contemplation is the indictment in the Federal court of several registrars of the recent election in this state. Verily, the republicans seem hard to convince that they are licked. They better be taking their medicine without so much ado.

P. H. Andrews, who for eight years was assistant postmaster at Raleigh, has been removed because he voted a democratic ticket in the late election. He has always voted the democratic ticket, but the republicans waited until now to raise a kick about it. Guess he will be able to get along without the position.

Senator Pritchard has scored quite a victory for his "Lilly White" party movement. For sometime it has been evident that the senator wanted Sam Vick, the last negro postmaster holding office in the state, removed from the Wilson postoffice, and it was predicted that he would not be able to carry his point, owing to the President's recent declarations regarding putting negroes in office when they were found qualified. But in Washington Monday the senator had a long conference with the president and so brought the latter around to his way of thinking that Vick will have to come down and a white man take his place.

The Raleigh Post has just celebrated its fifth birthday. The admirable news service of the Post combined with an editorial department conspicuous not only for ability but for an impartiality that gives weight to opinions and a conscientiousness that insures the confidence of its readers, make about the right sort of thing for the average Tar Heel.

"Color shall be no bar," says the president. It was what was expected of him. It is a mistake to think that Roosevelt is a man whom opinions change with every passing breeze. He is a republican and as such holds some views that people with democratic proclivities do not like. But he is a deal more honest and sincere than some people believe, and certainly several bow-shots ahead of the North Carolina republicans who ejected the negro out of their convention. Roosevelt is not the man to wine and dine Booker Washington and then give him the marble heart. This isn't explaining that interview between Pritchard and the president at Oyster Bay, but that will come out in the wash.—Greensboro Telegram.

An elderly man was in town a short time ago who had marvelous strength in his arms, being able to take a two hundred pound man in each hand and bring them together above his head like a pair of dumbbells. There was nothing in his appearance to indicate that he was an athlete as he was tall and slim and said he was in the Confederate army. Possibly he was Bob Glenn's gawky 16-year old reb who charged up to the Yankee breast-works all alone and brought back a Yank under his arm.—Webster's Weekly.

If you feel ill and need a pill Why not purchase the best? DeWitt's Early Risers Are little surprisers, Take one—they do the rest. W. F. Howell, Houston, Tex., writes—I have used Little Early Risers Pills in my family for constipation, sick headache, etc. To their use I am indebted for the health of my family.

Mr. Bryan makes an excellent suggestion in asking President Roosevelt to try the experiment of appointing a negro postmaster for Boston.—Winston Journal.

What's in a Name.

Everything is in the name when it comes to Witch Hazel Salve. E. C. DeWitt & Co., of Chicago, discovered, some years ago, how to make a salve from Witch Hazel that is a specific for piles. For Blind, bleeding, itching and protruding Piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin diseases DeWitt's Salve has no equal. This has given rise to numerous worthless counterfeits. Ask for DeWitt's—the genuine. J. L. Wooten.

We must educate the rising generation. It is the highest duty and the loftiest privilege. Let education be neglected and all that we hold dear is lost; pursue the policy of advanced education for one generation and a new life will be seen.—Henry Louis Smith.

A glass or two of water taken half an hour before breakfast will usually keep the bowels regular. Harsh cathartics should be avoided. When a purgative is needed, take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are mild and gentle in their action. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

President Roosevelt announces that he will not refuse to appoint a negro to a federal office on account of his color. This is eminently correct. But it shouldn't be a difficult matter to find some other reason to base his refusal on.—Winston Journal.

The Supreme Need.

Every boy born in the world should be put in the way of maintaining himself in honest independence. No education that does not make this its first aim is worth anything at all. The being able to do something is of infinitely more value than the ability to answer questions. More and more is it coming to be seen that the industrial hope of the south is in a wider dissemination of scientific, technical and manual education, in making universal so far as may be, that knowledge of the forces of mechanics that will lead to the development and mastery of the material resources that still lie slumbering in the depths of our hills and fields and forests—this is the supreme need of our impoverished Southland.—Prof. C. C. Thach of Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure.

Digests all classes of food, tones and strengthens the stomach and digestive organs. Cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Stomach Troubles, and makes rich red blood, health and strength. Kodol rebuilds worn-out tissues, purifies, strengthens and sweetens the stomach. Gov. G. W. Atkinson, of W. Va., says: I have used a number of bottles of Kodol and have found it to be a very effective and, indeed, a powerful remedy for stomach ailments. I recommend it to my friends. J. L. Wooten.

A Cold Wave.

A forecast of a sudden change in the weather serves notice that a hoarse voice and a heavy cough may invade the sanctity of health in your own home. Cautious people have a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure always at hand. E. H. Wise, Madison, Ga., writes: "I am indebted to One Minute Cough Cure for my present good health, and probably my life." It cures Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Bronchitis, Pneumonia and all Throat and Lung troubles. One Minute Cough Cure cuts the phlegm, draws out the inflammation, heals and soothes the mucous membranes and strengthens the lungs.

To improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion, try a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Mr. J. H. Seitz, of Detroit, Mich., says, "They restored my appetite when impaired, relieved me of a bloated feeling and caused a pleasant and satisfactory movement of the bowels." There are people in this community who need just such a medicine. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville. Every box warranted.

How to Prevent Croup.

It will be good news to the mothers of small children to learn that croup can be prevented. The first sign of croup is hoarseness. A day or two before the attack the child becomes hoarse. This is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy freely as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the rough cough appears, and it will dispel all symptoms of croup. In this way all danger and anxiety may be avoided. This remedy is used by many thousands of mothers and has never been known to fail. It is, in fact, the only remedy that can always be depended upon and that is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

A Timely Suggestion.

This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful house wife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is certain to be needed before the winter is over, and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the cold is contracted and before it has become settled in the system. In almost every instance a severe cold may be ward off by taking this remedy freely as soon as the first indication of the cold appears. There is no danger in giving it to children for it contains no harmful substance. It is pleasant to take—both adults and children like it. Buy it and you will get the best. It always cures. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

TWO ORDERS

(Original.)

Many were the assaults made by the Union troops upon the fort at the mouth of the harbor, and they were all repulsed. After dark their general set up his headquarters on the beach, where he received reports of his commanders. As each new list of killed and wounded came in larger even than he had expected his brow darkened deeper. Then came his aid-de-camp, whom he had missed early in the day and had not seen since.

"Where have you been, captain?" asked the general in no genial tone. "Captured. I was left unguarded an hour ago—they were too busy to keep a sharp lookout, having other use for their men—and I walked away."

"That's a likely story," said the general, with a snarl. "Captain, you've been skulking."

"General!"

"Major," continued the commander to another member of the staff, "Issue an order dismissing Captain Bell from my staff and returning him to his regiment."

The major hesitated, whereupon the general threatened to dismiss him as well. Then he wrote the order.

"General," said the young captain who was to be degraded in this summary manner, trembling with excitement, "we fight tomorrow, I suppose. Well, give me a chance to prove what I have said or to do some signal service. Hold the order till tomorrow at this hour. If by that time I have done neither, let it go forth."

The general repressed a burst of passion, for he saw the justice of the demand, and gruffly assented.

Captain Bell's story was true. Carrying an order from one corps to another, while on the way the enemy had passed behind him, and he was taken into the fort with other Union soldiers. Later, during a desperate assault of the Unionists, the prisoners were in the way, and they were taken outside. It was during this assault that Bell escaped.

"Major," he said to the officer who had been ordered to write his dismissal from the staff, "I would rather die than have that order issued, and I'm going to die. Give me the counter-sign."

"What will you do with it?" "I'm going to take some spikes and by hook or by crook work my way into that fort to spike some of their guns. There are nine chances in ten that I will be either shot or hanged. The one chance is that I will succeed. Listen just before morning for a gun. If you hear it, tell the general that I have succeeded and it is a signal for him to move on the fort."

In vain the major scouted the proposal. His friend was resolved. About midnight Bell passed out of the Union lines and groped about on the battlefield of the previous day till he found a dead Confederate officer, whose uniform he put on. Then, moving close to the fort, he hailed a sentinel, telling him that he had been out to find a wounded comrade. Entering the fort with the air of having duties there, he was stopped by an officer reorganizing the thinned forces, who asked his corps which he had seen on the hats of those who had guarded him during the day and passed on as if pressed for time. The night was hot, and the exhausted gunners instead of keeping to the casemates were sleeping mostly outside of them. Bell found an opportunity to crawl beneath one of them, where he remained till the fort was comparatively quiet. Then he took from his pocket the implements with which he had provided himself. Placing a spike in the vent of the gun from under which he crawled, he hammered it down, placing some sole leather between it and his hammer to deaden the sound. This done, he crawled from one gun to another, repeating the process till he had spiked seven of twelve guns defending the north face. Once one of the gunners awoke and, seeing an officer at the gun, looked at him quizzically. Bell, seeing that he was observed, pretended to inspect the gun, then passed on.

It was about 2 o'clock in the morning that the fort was startled by the boom of one of its own guns. Nobody knew who fired it or by whose order. At the first streak of dawn the outposts reported heavy dark masses moving against the fort from every direction. Four columns made the assault, three of them being driven back with slaughter. On the north face the men sprang to the guns to find them spiked. Bell took position at a gun that he had failed to spike and served it, with others, rubbing his powder stained hands on his face till he was unrecognizable. The north face, at which he fought, being poorly defended, the Union troops made a breach, passing through it in sufficient numbers to compel a surrender.

At sunrise the Union general sat on horseback within the fort to inspect his prisoners.

"Is there a Union soldier, Captain Bell, in this fort?" he asked.

A man with a face as black as the ace of spades stepped forth and saluted.

"Here, general."

The general got down from his horse and, running forward, grasped his aid's hand.

"Forgive me, my boy. The blood of our brave fellows who had been slaughtered crazed me."

"I rejoice in your action, general, since it spurred me to a work that I could never have done without a desperate motive."

"Major," said the general, "write an order commending Captain Bell to the president for promotion for gallant and meritorious services in the capture of this fort." EVERETT P. MOORE.

MRS. IDA McDONALD,

Supreme Deputy of the Maccabees of the World.

MRS. McDONALD, No. 477 Beaubien Street, Detroit, Mich., is a prominent woman who was greatly benefited by the great woman's medicine, Wine of Cardui. Mrs. McDonald is the supreme deputy of the Maccabees of the World, and one of the most widely known women in the United States. Thousands of women gather to hear her lecture everywhere she goes. The great work she has done for the Maccabees is appreciated by every member of the order. She was so absorbed in her work that she neglected to give her health proper care—failed to take warning that the symptoms of approaching kidney trouble gave her, the sallow complexion and torpid liver. But Wine of Cardui cured her the same as it has cured thousands of others and Mrs. McDonald has written this letter in order that other suffering women may secure from Wine of Cardui the same relief she got from it.

that I must do something to regain my health. A friend advocated your Wine of Cardui treatment so strongly that I decided to try it, although I had little faith in patent medicines. I am now very thankful that I did so, for within ten days blessed relief came to me, and in less than three months I was cured, and have enjoyed fine health ever since. I know there is nothing better for a sick woman who wishes to enjoy perfect health and am very pleased to give my hearty endorsement."

No suffering woman can afford to ignore such a letter as Mrs. McDonald writes. Her plans and advice have proved valuable in building up one of the greatest women's organizations in the United States and she takes time to give advice which she knows will help you. Do not delay in securing this medicine. There is nothing to lose by delay. The choice is before you. Will or will you not secure relief now by taking Wine of Cardui? All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui as well as 25c packages of Theford's Black-Draught.

"For four years I suffered with torpid liver until my skin looked yellow and dull. I then found my kidneys were affected and had severe pains across my back, and I felt

NEWSY HAPPENINGS AND BUSINESS NOTES.

WINTERVILLE, N. C., Dec. 3. "Many men make many minds" is a true saying. It seems, however, that all men in the country are of about the same mind as to using wire fence judging from the way it is being hauled and shipped from the A. G. Cox Mfg. Co's machines. "Bud Joe" spent Monday in Greenville.

Mrs. Hill and daughter, Mattie, who have been visiting friends here, have returned to Washington.

Misses Dora Cox and Bertha Newton attended the Baptist union meeting at Pollockville Saturday and Sunday.

The series of meetings which have been conducted here for the past week by Rev. C. W. Blanchard, closed Sunday night with baptism of six. There were twelve additions to the church. Mr. Blanchard's practical way of putting things makes it a pleasure to both young and old to talk with him as well as to hear him preach.

Misses Cornelia and Daisy Mumford, of Ayden, attended church here Sunday and stayed over Sunday night till after the baptism.

George Perry, who has been spending a few days here with the boys, has returned to New Bern.

Miss Mary Smith spent Thanksgiving in Greenville with her sister, Mrs. Ambrose Johnson.

Mrs. Taft, from Lexington, Ky., is visiting her daughter, Mrs. W. B. Ricks, of this place.

The holly industry bids fair to be a good one in this section. We have a company just organized here who have orders for three car loads to be shipped at once with a guaranteed price. About half this quantity has been brought in during the past three days. Those having green holly well berried on their land can find out how to get the most money out of same by conferring with either of the following gentlemen: C. A. Faii, R. H. Hunsucker, G. A. Kittrell or F. O. Cox.

Rev. C. W. Blanchard returned to his home in Cary where he will spend the holidays.

Mr. Everett, of Gold Point, spent Thanksgiving with his brother who is a student here.

Mrs. Ambrose Johnson, of Greenville, spent Monday visiting her parents near here.

Miss Jennie Newell, of Greene county, spent Thanksgiving with Misses Effie and Hattie Kittrell.

Mrs. G. E. Lineberry is spending some time with her parents at Rennert. She was accompanied as far as Rocky Mount by Miss Annie Stocks.

Misses Roberson and Everett, of Gold Point, spent Thanksgiving with Miss Lydia Roberson and sister, students of the Winterville High School here.

We now have a lot of new fence stretchers on hand which we will sell cheap or loan our customers on deposit of a small sum to guarantee prompt return of same.—A. G. Cox Mfg. Co.

There were several Beaufort county farmers here today with tobacco. Among them was Mr. J. F.
