RATHER DIE THAN WORK.

A "Weary Willie" From the Fatherland

COULDN'T STAND IT 30 DAYS

"To Work or Die" Was the Question, and He Was Lead Out of the World With a Bandanna Halter.

(Special to REFLECTOR.)

Tarboro, N. C., Dec 9.—Charles Muchlethaler, a German hobo, who was sentenced to the county roads for 30 days for vagrancy by Mayor Pender, committed suicide in jail at 5 o'clock this afternoon, by hanging himself from the top of the cell with a large bandanna handkerchief.

On his person was found a letter addressed to his wife at Allegheny City, Pa., with a note addressed to the sheriff directing that his body be shipped to the same address.

GREAT STATESMAN.

Brief Sketch of the Life of the Late Thomas B. Reed.

The nation lost one of its greatest men in the death of Mr. Reed. As a lawyer, as a statesman, publicist and friend, he made his impress and will long be remembered by the nation.

Mr. Reed was born in Portland, Me., October 18, 1839. His parents had little other than an heritage of good, sturdy health with which to endow him. Back of each of his parents was traced a good line of American ancestors.

He received his early education in the public schools of Portland and was graduated from Bowdoin College in 1860, winning one of the highest honors of the college, the prize for excellence in English composition. He taught in the public schools, and studied law until his appointment as acting assistant paymaster in the navy, April 19, 1864. From his salary received in the navy he paid off the last of his debts contracted to see himself through college. He served on the "tin clad" Sybil and was honorably discharged November 4, 1866. Soon after this he was admitted to the bar, and, after a year's stay in Oakland, Cal., he returned to Maine and began the practice in Portland. In 1868-69 he was a member of the lower branch of the Maine legislature, and in 1870 he sat in the State senate. He was attorney general of Maine from 1870 to 1872, being the youngest man to hold that office in the history of his State. In 1874-77 he served the city of Portland as solicitor.

His Congressional career began with the Forty-fifth Congress, which assembled in December, 1877, and since that time he has been a leader of his party and subject to many criticisms during his public career.

Despite these criticisms he stood steadfast in all his views and lived to see many of them triumph.

Above all, Mr. Reed believed in doing that which he had set out to do. He was a strong man and the country loses a man of great ability in his death, as did the Congress when he some years ago returned to private life.—Winston Journal.

ANNUAL BANQUET

Of the End of the Century Book Club.

Reported for the Reflector.]

The annual celebration of this club was indeed a fait accompli, on Tuesday night, when a delightful banquet was given by its members to its lesser contingents, the husbands.

Mrs. L. C. Arthur had generously tendered her handsome and commodious residence as the place of meeting, and the various members, accompanied by their said husbands and a few visiting friends, were arriving from 8 to 9 p. m., until about fifty guests were assembled.

The spacious grounds were prettily illuminated, while the interior of the house gave ample evidence of the careful supervision of artists of no mean reputation. Potted plants, shrubs and draperies combining the colors (red and white) of the club were profusely in evidence, and a band from Richmond discoursed entrancing strains of music that came

"O'er the ear
Like the sweet South;
Breathing upon a bank of violets,
Stealing and giving odor."

The dining room, some 40 feet in length, was thrown open at 10 o'clock, and tables with handsome floral decorations, beautiful china and silver met the eye. And speedily a feast of good things was offered the material man, who, while not too deeply impressed with the poetic features of the occasion to partake thereof with evident relish, expressed their verbal appreciation of the same in sundry flattering or interesting short speeches.

Mrs. R. E. Cotten, the gifted president of the club, occupied a seat at the large centre table while presiding over these festive boards with easy grace and consummate tact, and after being presented with a pretty gavel in a short but appropriate speech by Mr. E. B. Ficklen, Mrs. Cotten arose and announced the various subjects for comments which were as follows:

- 1st. "Our Husbands," a theme affording ample opportunity, and treated with admirable skill and humor from start to finish by Mr. W. F. Harding.

- 2nd. "Greenville and her needs," by Dr. E. A. Moye, giving interesting and wholesome advice regarding woman's opportunity for promoting sanitary improvements for the town.

- 3rd. Gov. T. J. Jarvis on the benefits to be derived by the husbands, and society, from the existence of women's clubs in general. The distinguished ex Governor did not speak with his usual clearness on the first clause of his subject, but he declared he had felt it.

The evening ended with cordial expressions of appreciation of the studious courtesy and hospitality of the delightful host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Harding and Mr. and Mrs. R. W. King were, to the regret of their many friends, unavoidably absent.

Bond Money.

The Board of Aldermen will be ready to refund the money collected on the city improvement and graded school bonds Thursday. Checks will be issued by the mayor.

Call at his office at once and you can get your order.

If those persons who have not paid their town taxes for this year will apply thereon the orders received in refunding the bond taxes they would hardly feel it.

Autumn Fancies

Beautiful display in our Men's Furnishing Department. An array of Neckwear, Shirts, Gloves, Underwear, Hosiery, Collars, Cuffs, Night Robes—Oh, well, we can't tell you the half here, so we will say, etc. Every little detail belonging to a man's wardrobe is here.

The whirl of fashions in Men's Furnishings is exacting. Its demands are met here correctly in every detail. Our stock is now putting on a holiday air, presenting the novelties as well as the staples in splendid variety.

The elegant dresser, the economically inclined, and the gift-giver may come here with the assurance of obtaining exactly what is in the best taste and at money-saving prices.

To carry you through the stock in a general way means to write a book. Come here for the things wanted in Men's Furnishings.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1902.

EIGHT YEARS OLD.

How rapidly time speeds by. It was eight years ago today when the first regular issue of THE DAILY REFLECTOR was published, then a small sheet the whole of which did not contain as much as one page of the present paper. Three times in its history the paper has enlarged—first from three to four columns, next from four to five, then from five to six—and it is anticipated that the end of its growth has not yet been reached. These eight years of its history have been busy ones, for it is no easy undertaking to conduct a daily paper in a town the size of Greenville, especially as it was eight years ago. Greenville has progressed in these years, and the policy of THE REFLECTOR has been to progress with it, in fact to take the lead in the forward movement. It thinks nothing is too good for Greenville and Pitt county folks, and it always gives them the best advice it can command. The paper has endeavored to instill progressive ideas in the community, and the results of those efforts are apparent all around us. To labor for the advancement of its town and people is a labor of love with THE REFLECTOR, and it believes its services in this particular have been helpful.

There may have been instances where mistakes were made, but the purpose of the paper has been to say and do at all times just what it believed was for the best. And this policy will continue to be its guide—not a parasite merely to sap an existence from its surroundings, but a helper, giving full value, and more, for all it receives. When it ceases to be useful let it cease to exist.

While THE DAILY REFLECTOR is eight years old, its parent, THE EASTERN REFLECTOR, will be twenty-one—old enough to vote—in January.

Everyone who, by reason of favorable circumstances or by superior endowments, achieves a success and a respectable prominence much above the average, does so in spite of obstacles that the average man would probably not be likely to surmount. There is not a more mistaken idea among young people than that all is fair sailing to those who shove ahead, get what they want, and so control the forces that make for fame that there does not appear to be any opposition in the way. We explain the matter by attributing genius and luck. The facts in the case are quite different from any such presumption. A genius is a dreamer of dreams, it is true; and blessed is mankind for its dreamers; but his life is a definition of toil and struggle. It is the dream that marks the way and bouys him on where others grope and fail. He not only has to combat difficulties inherent in the task of the moment, but those also which accident and personal opposition conspire to raise. Not infrequently the successful man encounters his greatest drawbacks in his own temperament, or in some defect of training or of character. These he must strive against—sometimes to conquer, sometimes to win in spite of them.

The following from the Washington Post points out a characteristic of the late Thomas Brackett Reed that would prove a serious handicap to any man whose life work brought him in much contact with his fellows. The fact that Reed succeeded in spite of an inability or an indisposition to make many friends serves to emphasize the sterling qualities that marked his character and made him the master of men as he was in most respects the master of himself:

"All admired him. Few liked him.

"I know no better way of expressing the attitude of the members of Congress toward the late ex-Speaker Reed," remarked Hon. Charles L. Henry, former member of Congress from Indiana, last night at the Ebbitt House. "He had few friends. Most of the members were afraid of his sharp tongue. It was difficult to become intimately acquainted with him. He did not seem to care to have intimate friends. Few men who were associated with him seemed to make any effort to win his friendship.

"His sarcasm undoubtedly prevented him from becoming as great a power as he might have been with his remarkable ability. Any man who has had an opportunity to hear Mr. Reed speak, and who watched his work as a presiding officer, must admit his superiority. He compelled admiration, but seemed to lack the qualities which win friends. If he had done more to cultivate the good will of the men with whom he was thrown, I believe he would have attained even a higher place among the statesmen of his time."

The Greenville REFLECTOR wants the Legislature to put a tax of $1 on every dog in the state for the benefit of the public schools. This is a good suggestion, and the next Legislature could not be called a failure were it to meet in Raleigh and after passing an act of this kind to go home. We realize the fact that we are engaged in a dangerous business when we talk about taxing the dogs, and the Legislature that would have the nerve to do it should have a monument erected to its memory.

There are men in North Carolina who would rather see their children grow up in ignorance than have their dogs taxed. Make them do both and the state will be better off.—Sauford Express.

Our esteemed contemporary seems to have the dog tax on a straight, but—er—isn't the other a little crooked? We do not think our friends who oppose the dog tax should be forced to bring their offspring up without some education, nor is it quite plain how the state would be benefitted through compulsory ignorance of any of its citizens.

The General Assembly of North Carolina convenes in the capitol in Raleigh on Wednesday, January 7th, this being the first Wednesday after the first Monday.

How to Prevent Croup.

It will be good news to the mothers of small children to learn that croup can be prevented. The first sign of croup is hoarseness. A day or two before the attack the child becomes hoarse. This is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy freely as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the rough cough appears, and it will dispel all symptoms of croup. In this way all danger and anxiety may be avoided. This remedy is used by many thousands of mothers and has never been known to fail. It is, in fact, the only remedy that can always be depended upon and that is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

If you want a nice Bible for a Christmas present you can find it at Reflector Book Store.

A Timely Suggestion.

This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful house wife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is certain to be needed before the winter is over, and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the cold is contracted and before it has become settled in the system. In almost every instance a severe cold may be warded off by taking this remedy freely as soon as the first indication of the cold appears. There is no danger in giving it to children for it contains no harmful substance. It is pleasant to take—both adults and children like it. Buy it and you will get the best. It always cures. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

A Parker Fountain Pen makes an ideal Christmas present. They are the best make and sold with a guarantee. Nice lot to select from at Reflector Book Store.

A Cold Wave.

A forecast of a sudden change in the weather serves notice that a hoarse voice and a heavy cough may invade the sanctity of health in your own home. Cautious people have a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure always at hand. E. H. Wise, Madison, Ga., writes: "I am indebted to One Minute Cough Cure for my present good health, and probably my life." It cures Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Bronchitis, Pneumonia and all Throat and Lung troubles. One Minute Cough Cure cuts the phlegm, draws out the inflammation, heals and soothes the mucous membranes and strengthens the lungs.

The harder a woman chases a man the harder she has to.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure.

Digests all classes of food, tones and strengthens the stomach and digestive organs. Cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Stomach Troubles, and makes rich red blood, health and strength. Kodol rebuilds worn-out tissues, purifies, strengthens and sweetens the stomach. Gov. G. W. Atkinson, of W. Va., says: I have used a number of bottles of Kodol and have found it to be a very effective and, indeed, a powerful remedy for stomach ailments. I recommend it to my friends. J. L. Wooten.

It is so natural for a girl to be coquettish that when she is trying to kiss a man she pretends to be fighting against it.

To improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion, try a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Mr. J. H. Seitz, of Detroit, Mich., says, "They restored my appetite when impaired, relieved me of a bloated feeling and caused a pleasant and satisfactory movement of the bowels." There are people in this community who need just such a medicine. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville. Every box warranted.

When a man begins to go down hill he meets a lot of people with their noses turned up.

What's in a Name.

Everything is in the name when it comes to Witch Hazel Salve. E. C. DeWitt & Co., of Chicago, discovered, some years ago, how to make a salve from Witch Hazel that is a specific for piles. For Blind, bleeding, itching and protruding Piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin diseases DeWitt's Salve has no equal. This has given rise to numerous worthless counterfeits. Ask for DeWitt's—the genuine. J. L. Wooten.

NERVOUS ENERGY.

Don't Overdraw Your Account in the Bank of Nature.

You have a deposit of nervous energy placed to your account in the bank of your body. It may be large, in which happy case you are a millionaire in strength and accomplishing power, or it may be so microscopic as to need careful husbanding and little expenditure to keep it from dwindling out altogether.

But many millionaires become paupers, and some "dime savings" swell into millions. It depends upon the way the capital is managed. You may think you have so much that there is no need to be economical. You get up in the morning and feel the blood bounding through your veins like mountain cataracts, and you think you can turn the mill wheels of the world.

You work day and night or you play day and night, which is sometimes more exhausting, and go at the limit of your speed all the time. You are over-drawing your bank account of energy, and that needlessly, for you probably have enough to last a long and useful lifetime. It pays to sit down and sharpen your tools, and it adds cent per cent to your body bank deposit.

Another with not half your brains or bustle will get ahead of you in the end, for he makes every act, every thought, go straight to the mark. He wastes no effort. Everything he does means something. It helps toward some given end. You spend a great deal of ammunition on your quarry because you are over-anxious. He keeps cool, takes steady aim and wings his bird.

You get wrinkles and frost tipped temples and become a bankrupt in vitality when you should be in your prime. You have overdrawn the best and most valuable bank account the Lord ever placed on the books of life—the ability "to love and to work and to play and to look up at the stars."

A MONTE CARLO LEGEND.

The Story the Croupiers Tell of the Wandering Jew.

All gamblers are superstitious, and some of their pet superstitions are now so old as to have acquired the respectability of venerable traditions. The croupiers of Monte Carlo have an interesting set of traditional superstitions of their own, most of which are entirely unknown to the many thousands of visitors who toy with the "tiger" in that gilded court of chance.

The most striking of these is the story of the Wandering Jew, which the croupiers believe as fervently as they do that the bank will down any "system" that ever was invented. There is one day, and one day only, in the year on which the rooms of the casino at Monte Carlo are closed—that is on Good Friday. When the rooms are opened on the following day, they say, the first person to enter the "Grand Nouvelle Salle de Jeu" is an old man of venerable appearance. He wastes no time; but, walking straight to one of the tables, he places with the trembling fingers of extreme old age a piece of money upon a certain number. The wheel is turned, the croupier's nasal cry falls upon the ear, announcing that the number selected by the old man has won. With a bitterly savage exclamation the aged man seizes his winnings, throws them about him and hurries from the room to disappear, no one knows where.

He is the Wandering Jew, and until he can lose a bet at Monte Carlo he must continue his wanderings. Get on the "blind side" of any of the old croupiers of Monte Carlo, and they will tell you this legend. Have they seen him? Of course they have and are fully persuaded that the aged and mysterious stranger is none other than the man condemned to perpetual earthly wanderings nearly 2,000 years ago.

An Obstacle to Piety.

A story told by a western congressman is about two brothers, Ed and Jim, who dealt in wool at their home in Iowa. Jim went to a revival meeting (unthinkingly, the congressman says) and "got religion." In his first burst of enthusiasm he told his brother of how much better he felt since his conversion and urged Ed to come into the fold. The latter pondered gravely for a time and then said: "Ain't any doubt but what religion's a good thing, and I'm glad you've got it, Jim, but I guess you better let me alone just now," he continued reflectively. "You see, Jim, one of us has got to weigh the wool."

Chase That Frown.

Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine. Learn how to tell a story. A well told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sickroom. Learn to keep your own troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to care for your ills and sorrows.

Learn to stop croaking. If you cannot see any good in the world, keep the bad to yourself. Learn to hide your pains and aches under pleasant smiles. No one cares to hear whether you have the carache, headache or rheumatism.

Thoughtful Nature.

"How wondrous is nature!" sighed the dreamy eyed person.
 "You bet!" answered the practical man. "Why, you know how little love is lost between the Hibernians and the Africans, and just look how nature has arranged things so as to prevent the Irish potato from coming in contact with the blackberry." — Baltimore American.

Merely a Suggestion.

"Man proposes and woman disposes," remarked the young man who gets quotations twisted.
 "Well," replied the beautiful blond on the other end of the sofa, "I'm disposed to do my part if some man will do his."
 Three minutes later she had him landed.—Chicago News.

MISS IDA M. SNYDER,

Treasurer of the Brooklyn East End Art Club.

MENSTRUAL irregularities are generally the beginning of a woman's troubles. With the vitality at a low ebb, the blood weakened, the digestion disordered, she goes about pale-faced, hollow-eyed and haggard, a piteous contrast to the blooming health of her former self. But over 1,000,000 women have found health again by taking Wine of Cardui. As a regulator of the menstrual periods Wine of Cardui has never been known to fail. It has seldom failed to restore perfect health, even in the most persistent and aggravated case of weakness.

to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would use more intelligence in the matter of medicines, observing results, they would find that the doctors' prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for.

"In consulting with my druggist he advised McElee's Wine of Cardui and Theodor's Black-Draught, and so I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me."
 You may secure the same relief as Miss Snyder, if you take Wine of Cardui as she took it. Theodor's Black-Draught is the companion medicine of Wine of Cardui and it is a liver and bowel regulator which assists greatly in effecting a cure. If you take these medicines according to directions, the relief and cure is simple. Some cases are cured quickly and others take longer because the disease has run longer. Remember how Miss Snyder took Wine of Cardui and has health. The same medicines are offered you to-day.

The boys of the Vance Literary Society will have a public debate next Friday night. All are invited to come out and see which side beats, how bad they beat, &c.

The pound party given by the young people of the town at the home of Mrs F. O. Cox last Saturday evening was a noted success in every respect. All was cheerful and lively and the girls exceedingly fair. Mrs. F. O. Cox in her usual kind and hospitable manner showed the young folks every courtesy possible that would add to their enjoyment. At 8 o'clock the house was brilliant and lively with pretty faces and light hearts, all seeming to forget everything for the time being except pleasure. At 9:30 all were invited to the dining room where fruits of different kinds, nuts and confectionaries of every description were found, and this was a feast indeed. Music was furnished by Miss L. Kemp Carlton and W. H. Kouse. Under such strains who wouldn't have been loath to leave. All feel indebted to the originators and truly hope it may be repeated some day.

J. E. Greene spent Monday night with his sister in Gritton who is quite sick.

Rev. W. L. Bilbro, of Ayden, will lecture at the school chapel here Thursday night. F. C. Harding and others from Greenville will be present and an Anti-Saloon League will be organized after the speaking.

Wire fence is most economical. Readily moved about. Every animal's master. Fits all kinds of ground. Entire hedgerow saved. Never blows down. Cannot burn up. Extremely cheap.

There are several ways of looking at wire fence. In the above lines you see it both vertically and horizontally. We are anxious to help you see it from every standpoint and then you will be competent to judge for yourself. While styles of wire fence on the market have some of the good qualities above referred to we do not know of any make coming fully up to all of them except on the styles used by the A. G. Cox Mfg. Co., of this place. Easy will be glad to give you all the information you desire.
