NO. 2520

PRICE UPON HEAD OF GARDNER

$1,000 Reward for Arrest of Enemy of Society.

R. Lawrence Gardner, the traveling salesman from Richmond, who is charged with the seduction and death of Miss Victoria Barnhill, at Williamston, has a $300 reward upon his head. Governor Aycock yesterday offered this amount for Gardner's capture and return to the Williamston officials. Gardner, it will be remembered, is the cause of the scandal that has stirred up Eastern Carolina and resulted in the death of a well known and prominent girl.

Upon the death of Miss Barnhill little was known to implicate anyone until letters from Gardner to the dead girl were unearthed, in which he spoke of the close relations existing between the two and the suggestion that Miss Barnhill take the medicine which he was furnishing her.

Gardner is thought to have gone South and all police and detective officers are on the look-out for him.

When last seen Gardner wore an attractive suit of brown clothes. He is rather a good looking man who always appealed to women, and is thirty odd years of age.

In addition to this reward being offered by the state, there are several private rewards aggregating about $700, offered for his capture by interested parties.

NEW WITNESS IN WILCOX CASE.

Startling Development Expected in the Second Trial.

Elizabeth City, N. C., Jan. 7.—A new and important witness is to be introduced at the trial of James Wilcox next week. The witness is a man named Norris residing in Baltimore, though he lived here up to and during the early stage of the Cropey mystery. At this writing Lawyer Andrew Cropey of Brooklyn is enroute to Baltimore to get Norris and accompany him to this city. The nature of Norris' testimony cannot be ascertained, though that it will greatly concern the fight of Wilcox is evidenced by the caution maintained by the prosecution.

An attorney for the state, when interviewed, said: "I knew old man W. H. Cropey wouldn't keep his mouth shut." He appeared much upset over the report being circulated and would divulge nothing. Mr. Cropey would no doubt relate an interesting story, but for the forthcoming rebuke from his attorneys.

Cale Parker's wife will be another new witness. Confinement barred her appearance at the last trial.—Raleigh Post.

INDEPENDENT COMPANY.

Giant Tobacco Organization Formed to Fight the Trust.

Detroit, Mich., January 7.—Prominent Detroit capitalists and men well known in the cigar and tobacco business have nearly completed plans for the organization of a $1,000,000 Independent Cigar Company to compete with the trust. J. H. Brown, who was head of the firm of Brown Bothers of Detroit when that concern sold out to the trust last spring, is credited with having engineered the deal and the entire amount of the capital stock has already been subscribed.

GREENVILLE BEFORE THE WAR.

"Light of Other Days Sheds its Beams Around Us."

EDITOR REFLECTOR:

In writing "Recollections of Greenville" sometime since the notes of some incidents, which I enclose, were mislaid and did not appear in the story. For the benefit of the incredulous allow me to state in advance that the outline of the story of "The Wandering Jew" is true. And I saw the man with my own eyes at the time, and was startled some years afterwards on meeting a stranger who was his exact counterpart.

T. C. DAVIS.

PRINTER BROWN.

In a small house before which stood a large elm tree across the street from Mr. Hanrahan's, Mr. John Brown, universally known as Printer Brown, resided. Mr. Brown was a man of intelligence and education but much addicted to turkey hunting and sporting generally, and was a great fancier in all kind of fire arms. He owned the first revolver I ever saw, and at one time had a gun walking case, which came very near being the end of uncle Ben Briley, who came upon Brown one day when practicing at the mark. Being anxious to try his skill with this unusual weapon, he was permitted to do so, and handling it awkwardly when he fired, the gun rebounded, struck him on the nose, knocking him down and making the blood fly, whereupon Brown, a scamp, convulsed with laughter rolled over on the ground, unmindful of the pitiable condition of my old friend who called lustily for help and verily believed he had received his death blow.

W. S. BONNER.

On the corner lot opposite Nelson Bros. factory stood Capt. W. S. Bonner's store and residence. Capt. Bonner was a successful merchant and studied the wants and tastes of his customers, and being convinced that it was to his interest pecuniarily to do so, he kept cider as well as something stronger, a custom not uncommon with merchants some years earlier. While his store was by no means a common tipping place, he was indulgent to his friends from a distance on cold days, and the saws and patriotic remarks over their cups of certain of his older customers who were pleased with an opportunity of publicly showing their condemnation and contempt for an aggressive temperance movement then being waged, and designed in their estimation to interfere with the liberty of the individual, and the forerunner of oppressive sumptuary laws, were frequently repeated behind their backs with merriment by the boys of the town.

Capt. Bonner eventually moved to Goldsboro and Mr. Gray Jordan bought the place and moved to Greenville from his farm in the neighborhood of Pactolus. I remember to have spent a very pleasant evening there on one occasion with Miss Violet in company with Dr. Joe Bynum, then a student of medicine.

TOWN MATTERS.

The Aldermen Discussing Schools and Improvements.

The Board of Aldermen held a special meeting Thursday night, to discuss the bills to be prepared and sent to the legislature to give Greenville an opportunity of voting on the question of issuing bonds for the purpose of establishing graded schools and for public improvements.

There will be two bills, one for the graded school and the other for improvements, both of which will be furnished for publication as soon as they are finally passed upon by the Board and ready to be sent to the legislature.

The school bill will provide an expenditure of not exceeding $10,000. A school board is named, consisting of M. A. Allen, W. H. Bagwell, D. S. Spain, E. A. Moye, Jr., T. J. Jarvis, J. R. Moore, B. F. Patrick, E. B. Ficklen, W. B. Wilson, R. W. King, W. L. Brown, Chas. Cobb, R. L. Carr and S. T. White, who will be in entire control of this department.

The improvement bill will be for an amount not exceeding $65,000. A board of internal improvements is named, consisting of J. G. Moye, J. L. Wooten, S. T. Hooker, C. T. Munford and W. H. Long. This board will have entire charge of the improvements and the expenditure of the money, and the Aldermen will sell the bonds in installments of such amounts as the board of improvements shall direct. The board of improvements will also have the selection of a treasurer, who is to be a man outside of their number and required to give bond.

These bills are far better than the ones that were passed by the legislature two years ago, we see no reason why they should not be favored by every citizen of the town and the school and improvements secured.

Major Morehead's correspondence shows that interest in Guilford Battle Ground is growing all the while. Lately he has received from E. C. Myers, of the Apalachia Tannic Acid Company, of Apalachia, N. C., a letter inquiring about the proposed article in Harper's Weekly on the battle ground and offering information about Captain Kirkwood, Mr. Myers' wife being a lineal descendant of the brave Revolutionary officer mentioned.

Another letter is from President L. L. Hobbs, of Guilford College, regarding Major Morehead's plans to interest Congressman Joseph G. Cannon in the battle ground. Dr. Hobbs endorses Major Morehead's efforts and states that he has invited Congressman Cannon, who was born in Guilford, to deliver an address at the college commencement May 26.—Greensboro Telegram.

RENTON ITEMS.

RENTON N. C., Jan. 9, 1903. Sunday's rain disappointed our entire neighborhood. Everybody anticipated a grand time at the dedication of Reedy Branch church.

Chas. McGlohn went to Greenville Monday.

Miss Annie McGlohn spent Saturday night and Sunday with Miss Eva Langston.

Messrs. Jim, John and Claude Barnhill, and sister, Miss Bessie, of Grindle creek, spent from Saturday till Monday with their sister, Mrs. Chas. McGlohn.

Miss Lossie Barnhill spent from Friday till Monday with Mrs. Chas. McGlohn.

Little Miss Larue McGlohn is visiting at her grandfather's on Grindle Creek.

Policeman McGowan Resigns.

At the special meeting of the Board of Aldermen, Thursday night, Assistant Policeman W. H. McGowan tendered his resignation to take effect on the 19th. Night Policeman S. I. Dudley was elected assistant day police to succeed Mr. McGowan, and at a special meeting of the Board next Thursday night a night police will be elected.

Two Aldermen Came Near Scrapping.

At the special meeting of the Board of Aldermen, Thursday night, an unpleasant incident arose that came near involving two of the members in an altercation. The question of amending the charter and extending the limits of the town was being discussed, and it seems that Alderman Tyson made some remarks which at the time were misunderstood by Alderman Ficklen and regarded by the later as a reflection upon him. Words followed and the two started together, when other members interfered and stopped the difficulty. Explanations and apologies followed and the unpleasantness was soon closed.

FRIDAY, JANUARY, 9, 1903.

THE SENATORSHIP.

The legislature starts out well by setting an early date for holding the caucus which is to determine who shall succeed Pritchard in the United States senate. The caucus will meet at eight o'clock tonight and while it is probable that the matter will be settled then, yet it is possible that the contest will be so close as to require several ballots to get a majority.

It is a wise and business like arrangement to dispose of the question without delay, leaving the legislature unhampered in its work of law making.

Any prediction as to who will be the successful aspirant can only be mere guess work. While a blind man can see that it will be Watson, Overman or Craig, not even the wisest of men can pick the winner from these three. They are all statesmen of a high degree of ability and integrity, and North Carolina should feel proud of them. May the best man win.

The nation gazes upon the pathetic figure of the venerable Senator Vest, as he pleads for relief from the distressing conditions growing out of the shortage of the coal supply. The aged senator from Missouri probably knew that the gods of the powers that be are gods of gold and silver, and humanity's cry goes up in vain. Yet he has lifted his voice for the people, he has done all that man could do to soften the hearts of protected robbers who dispoil the people under cover of the law. There will be a day of reckoning.

While the sunshine of a bright summer day was smiling over the Carolinas a rip roaring howling, snorting cyclone struck Omaha, Nebraska, and proceeded to swat things 'till further orders. No, thank you; this country is good enough for us.

Carnegie gives Philadelphia a million and a half for libraries, but the thousands of poor starved sinful wretches in the "City of Brotherly Love" who never heard the name of Christ except in an oath, are just as bad off as ever.

The republican members of the general assembly who went through the form of nominating candidates probably had an idea that it would keep them from getting homesick.

Scientists have discovered another deadly germ in the air we breathe, but they haven't been thoughtful enough to discover something else for us to breathe instead of air.

Ten to one if Roosevelt had asked Booker Washington's advice, and taken it, the Indianola post office would still be a contributor to the finances of the government.

It is announced that the Southern edition of Harper's Weekly is delayed, and will not appear until November. Well, we'll try to get along without it.

It looks as if Greensboro's luck had turned at last. A street carnival proposition now has designs on High Point's thriving suburb.

North State News

Dr. W. D. Hubbard, pastor of the tabernacle Baptist church at Raleigh, has resigned.

The telephone linemen's strike in Asheville has been settled, the demands of the linemen being acceded to.

In the next three weeks a meeting of the Association of Chambers of Commerce will be held in Raleigh to perfect their organization.

The Roanoke river has been on a rampage this week. At Weldon Thursday it was 35 feet above low water. The crops have all been removed from the low grounds.

Sixty cotton mill men of the state, in session in Greensboro this week, adopted resolutions for the presentation to the legislature pledging the mills to foster improved conditions for labor in textile mills of the state.

The board of aldermen of Goldsboro are up in arms against the whiskey business. They have not only refused to grant license to sell whiskey on the streets near the locations of the new city hall and market, but they have passed an ordinance prohibiting the sale of liquor on that street. Two bar-rooms have been closed, and another will have to be closed on the first of September, when the license expires.

The latest arrival in the "Hall of History" in the State museum at Raleigh is a buffalo, which is placed opposite the elk, both representing animals once numerous in North Carolina. A panther is also being prepared for mounting. There are yet panthers and wolves in the Western part of the State, and five counties are authorized by law to offer bounties for wolf-scalps.

A meeting has been called of the citizens of Northampton and Halifax counties at Weldon tonight for the purpose of organizing a Confederate monument association. It is the purpose of those interested in the move to erect a monument here to the memory of the soldiers who volunteered from the counties mentioned in the war between the states, and to reinter at the foot of the monument the remains of that gallant son of old Halifax, General Junius Daniel, who lost his life in the battle at Spottsylvania court house.

Sail For Liberia.

New York, January 7.—In the steerage of the White Star Line steamer Teutonic, which sailed today for Liverpool, were thirty-two colored men, twelve women and ten children, who are going to Liberia to settle. They came from Irwin county, Georgia. One of the men said:

"We are just poor farmers. Business is not very good with us, so we got together, sold out our farms and are going out to Liberia to begin life again."

Sans Souci Club.

Reported for THE REFLECTOR.]

Among the many pleasant social events of new year's week, none was more enjoyable than the meeting of the Sans Souci Club, which was held at the home of Miss Mary Moye, Jan. 6th, 1903. The fact that Miss Moye was hostess made the meeting a great social success.

The club was called to order by the president, Miss Louise Latham.

While the whole program was a great literary treat, the special feature of the evening was the story "A Garden Plot," which was very charmingly read by Miss Louise Latham. During the evening dainty and choice refreshments were served, after which each guest, wishing that every meeting during the present year might be as enjoyable and profitable as this one, bade the charming hostess good bye. The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Miss Rosalind Rountree, Jan. 20th, 1903.
