ANTE-BELLUM DAYS IN GREENVILLE

Stories of People Who Lived Here Before the War.

MR. DAVIS WRITES AGAIN.

Lights and Shadows of Other Days.

Our Fathers' and Grandfathers' Lives.

BY T. C. DAVIS.

THE HATTON FAMILY.

On the lot in the rear of Nelson Brother's factory on the same square fronting the next street Mr. Thomas Hatton lived. He was very old and infirm and never left home for twenty years before his death. But from his appearance he must have been a perfect giant when young. His daughter, Miss Tiny Hatton, lived with him and also a widowed daughter whose name I have forgotten. [She was a Mrs. Johnson.—Ed.] He had two sons, Capt. Jas. K. Hatton, of Washington, and Mr. Arden Hatton.

Uncle Tommy had the best water in town, that is, it had that reputation with Miss Sallie Ann Jones' boys, and they no doubt made her believe it. But it has been shrewdly suggested that the long distance from the school house added very much to its merit, as it required two boys to carry the bucket and afforded a temporary relief from exhausting mental efforts, which was fully appreciated and taken in turn by the whole school. And the bucket was always on the move.

Arden Hatton was a familiar name in Greenville fifty years ago. And without the prefix of Enoch it was easy to discover in racial marks that his ancestors were the countrymen of Tennyson's hero. Mr. Hatton was a very proper, sedate, and highly honored citizen when I knew him. But unlike the gentle Enoch, when a young man in the mould of a gladiator and with the chivalry of a Godfrey, it is said he espoused the cause of the town against a set of drunken bullies who frequently came there to make mischief and a brawl, and successfully drove them off, greatly to the relief of the community. But in a rough and tumble fight with them on one occasion he had the tip of his nose bitten off, the sign of which he carried to his grave.

W. K. DELANEY.

On a lot adjoining Dr. Blow lived Mr. W. K. Delaney and wife. They had no children, but were clever and well mated, and their house, a home of hospitality, was a dwelling and store under one roof.

Some men are distinguished for one thing and some another, and Mr. Delaney was justly pre-eminent among his friends and acquaintances for being the neatest and best dressed man of his day. And everything about him bore the mark of his individuality. His store was such a miracle of order it actually looked like desecration to disturb anything to make a purchase. He dressed every day with as much care as if he expected to attend a swell entertainment, notwithstanding he sold groceries and bought and weighed turpentine with his own hands. But he never incurred the risk of soiling his clothes by sitting on the steps and benches as other men did who habitually gathered about his store. He could not afford it and when he used a chair, which was seldom, he always dusted it carefully and was so particular and thoroughly poised in all his movements he would usually smoke a whole cigar without breaking the ashes from it. And not being afraid of what people would say he always acted naturally and the consequence was he became a great favorite and never the object of ill-natured criticism. When shall we see him like again!

DULL DAY IN THE LEGISLATURE

SENATE.

Following were among the bills introduced:

B. Hoey, of Cleveland, a bill to provide for the winding up and settling of partnership estates.

By Gilliam, of Edgecombe, a bill to amend section 1229 of the code and repeal chapter 226 of the laws of 1893. These changes refer to extending the time of court when adjournment comes during the trial.

By Pollock, of Lenoir, a bill to increase the number of county commissioners of the county of Lenoir.

By Pollock, of Lenoir, to amend chapter 28, laws of 1901, by increasing the number of criminal courts held yearly in Lenoir county.

By Burton, of Rockingham, a bill entitled, "An act to give to Superior courts an equitable jurisdiction of contingent remainders in the distribution of estates."

HOUSE.

Guion: To regulate purchase of live stock.

Guion: Relating to contracts of attorneys and others.

Guion: To remove disabilities of married women.

Guion: To allow damages for mental anguish.

Guion: Relating to sales by executor and administrator.

47. Smith, of Gates: To carry out the constitutional requirement relating to schools.

The moving of the distilleries into the towns under police protection would relieve the country people of a great nuisance. And when you think about it, if this thing is wrong and should be hedged about by the law and regulated by high license, why not do away with it altogether. In dealing with this question it sometimes looks as if the law licenses wrong-doing for a consideration.—Durham Herald.

"How to support a wife on a salary that won't support me" is a question that is agitating the minds of some young men in Greenville just now. And the echo answereth not.

Who Pays the Cost in Your Case?

In this day of sharp competition every merchant is striving to sell a little cheaper. We claim that we will be able to do that since we sell only for cash. Every merchant who charges, loses some. Then somebody pays a dollar for what should sell for 90 cts.

Watch our store and our prices. See if we do not prove our contention. ZENO MOORE & BRO.

Well Go Home and Forget It.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 13.—The legislature caucus met last night, and after taking eight more ballots adjourned until tonight without being much nearer a choice for senator than at the beginning.

Overman is still in the lead, having made a net gain of 10 votes in the eleven ballots, though only 3 votes ahead of the number he had at the close of Saturday night's caucus.

Watson has also made a gain of 2 votes, while Craig has lost 2 and Carr lost 1. After the eleventh ballot the caucus adjourned until 8 o'clock tonight. The vote then stood: Overman 53, Watson 39,

Craig 26, Carr 16, Alexander 8.

Fish for Ponds.

Congressman John H. Small asks THE REFLECTOR to advise the people of this district who have private ponds that he may be able to secure a small supply of young fish from the U. S. department of fish and fisheries for stocking same.

Fish might also be obtained for stocking the upper tributaries of our rivers and creeks. Mr. Small will furnish blanks upon which to make formal application to any one desiring them.

Sunday School Officers

The Presbyterian Sunday school has elected the following officers for the present year:

Superintendent, F. L. Walker.

Assistant Superintendent, J. B. Moore.

Secretary, E. W. Mosely.

Organist, Mrs. P. M. Johnson.

Epworth League.

A meeting was held at the Methodist parsonage, Monday night, for the purpose of organizing an Epworth League. The following officers were elected:

President, C. V. York.

1st Vice President, L. H. Pender.

2nd Vice President, Mrs. G. E. Harris.

3rd Vice President, Miss Bessie Harding.

Secretary, Miss Sarah Hocutt.

Treasurer, Miss Laura White.

The league will meet next Monday night in the Methodist church.

"Then you are not one of those who advise a young man to keep out of politics?"

"Certainly not", answered Senator Sorghum. "Trying to get in and not succeeding is what costs a man money and causes him disappointment."—Washington Star.

EVIL DAYS.

The editor, whose business it is to keep informed as to the news of the world must be a case-hardened, callous, individual indeed if at times he does not grow sick and disgusted with the harrowing details of divorce proceedings which are dished up every day in the year by American newspapers. And the worst of it is, that all the foul, evil-smelling tales are so very nearly true that it is useless to attempt to draw the line anywhere. Of course the world has always been full of meanness, sin and sorrow since the historic event in the Garden of Eden, but it is enough to make one sick at heart to realize that there is today so much moral degradation in the homes of the people—the holy of holies of domestic life. Here a wife, the mother of helpless children, sin against her husband, children. Heaven and earth and society by allowing herself to become polluted with the touch of a heartless moral leper. There the vile, degenerate thing called man forsakes right and decency, and those he has sworn to cherish and protect, for the sin-stained love of a destroyer of homes and happiness.

And the half of the story of shame and ignominy has never been told, shocking and revolting as the details are that are known. People to whom much has been given of power to lead and influence others, are proving slothful servants of the Master, are hiding their talents beneath shameful examples. They are forgetting the God of purity and virtue, and turning away from the Bible as an old-fashioned, out-of-date law. The God of our fathers is cast down and every man is for himself and his selfish passions.

Strong, earnest lives are needed—lives that leave a path of light behind them, that the sin-stricken and weak may follow to higher aims than the world, the flesh and the devil.

The laws of Solon, one time ruler of ancient Greece, provided for the punishment of all who refused to take some part in the government of the country. In America we reserve punishment for those who do take office, and the penalty does not seem lessen the number of candidates.

There! Charlotte has made another step in progress by adding a hot tamale vender to her industries. Now some other neighboring towns will be red hot with envy.

It is probably a judicious economy not to light the street lamps on very dark nights. Lightning bugs would do just about as much good, anyway.

THE CUSTODIAN

[Original.]

While on a visit to the south I one day passed a plantation that had fallen into decay. The roof to the manor house had caved in, the window panes were broken, the fences down. Behind the house was a solitary hut. The only thing left of the former splendor of the place was the trees. A desire came over me to know something of this noble ruin. I walked up to the house and, seeing no one, went back to the hut, where I found a venerable negro sitting on a box before his cabin door, smoking a cob pipe.

"Good morning, uncle."
"Mornin', sah."
"Are you the only person about the place?"

"Spec I am, sah, an' I've been de only pusion 'bout de place fo' fo' ty yea's."

I offered the old man a cigar, which he declined, preferring his pipe. Throwing myself on the grass, I waited for him to talk. As he did not, I made a remark by way of a starter.

"I suppose this was once a busy place."

"Reckon it was a busy place, sah. It belonged to Cunnel Peyton. He was Cunnel Peyton befo' de wah, though he didn't nebber command nothin' den, an' General Peyton while it was a-goin' on. He owned a hundred t'ousand niggers."

"You mean a thousand."
"Yes, 'bout dat. Dey all libed in de cabins 'long hyer."

"What has become of the cabins?"

"I burn 'em all up fo' firewood. Missy Dorothy Peyton was 'bout twenty yea's old when de wah kum on. Dat war de time when dis place war fine. All de Peyton fambly, five chillun, war growed up, fou' boys an' one girl. De flower ob de flock war Missy Dolly. De cunnel an' de boys went away to de wah, leavin' Missy Peyton an' Missy Dolly. Dere war three Pickerin' boys on a plantation ober dar, an' dey war all three in love with Missy Dolly. Dey all went to de wah, an' when dey lef' Missy Dolly war 'gaged to George Pickerin', de oldest."

"Well, de fus' Peyton killed war Howell Peyton, at Manassas. Nex' kum de cunnel, at Sharpsburg. Roger tuk de camp fever, kum home an' died dere in de house. He had no mo' 'n died befo' George Pickerin' war brought home to de Pickerin' house ober dah an' died. Missy Dolly nussed him. Dat war de fus' yea' ob de wah, an' one day, two yea's aftah Marse Tom Pickerin' kum marchin' up with he troops, lookin' so harnsome an' so lak he brudder George dat when he went away Missy Dolly done promised to marry him."

"After de time when de messenger rode up to tell dat de cunnel had been shot Missy Peyton done pine away, specially dat her favorite son, Howell, war taken, an' when de news ob de battle of Gettysburg kum, an' dat Marse Roger had been shotted daid, Missy jes' done gib up an' died in de summer. Dis leabe Missy Dolly all 'one. But, as luck wud hab it, Marse Donald, de las' ob de Peyton brudders, tuk sick an' kum home on leabe. 'Twas lucky, fo' Tom Pickerin' war blowed up in de mine at Petersburg, an' Missy Dolly was lef' a sort ob widder nudder time."

"Donald Pickerin' hung 'long an' died in de spring ob '65, at de season when de roses air bloomin' an' 'bout de time when de Confederacy stopped bloomin'. Ob all de fine people alive fou' yea's befo' on de two plantations only Missy Dolly an' Alan Pickerin' was lef'. Soon 's de south'n men gib up de job Marse Alan kum back an' an' Missy Dolly libin' all 'one hyer on dis plantation. Mos' ob de niggers had done gone. Dey warn't none ob 'em lef' 'cept me an' my fambly hyer in dis cabin. Marse Alan war de only one ob Miss Dolly's lovers lef', an' after awhile he done 'suaded her to marry him. Dey didn't mak no fuss 'bout de weddin', fo' dere warn't nobody to kum to it 'cept de ghosts."

"Dey tried mighty hard to stay on de plantation, but 'twarn't no use fo' Missy Dolly to try to lib whar she had been so happy befo' de wah, an' now not eben de niggers war lef'. So one day she says, 'Uncle Peter, me an' my husband a-goin' to lib in New York, an' we want you to stay hyer an' tek care ob de plantation.' De nex' day dey lef', an' it seemed 's if de ole place had drawed its las' breath an' gone to sleep, lak putty nigh all de fambly in de buryin' groun' ober on de hillside dar."

"Missy Dolly didn't lib berry long; spec dere war too much noise an' fuss in de city fo' her delicate 'stution. She had some chillun. One ob 'em kum down hyer onct, but he war a city pusion an' didn't carry no weapons an' didn't look lak de fine gentlemen with long ha'r what used to ride 'bout on dis plantation. Marse Alan Pickerin' married nudder wife an' had mo' chillun, an' when he died dis place got all mixed up in de law, so nobody can't do nothin' at all 'bout it."

"My ole 'oman died a yea' ago, an' my chillun air all waken in udder places. I keep watch ober de ole home. It's mighty lonesome sometimes, an' when I caln't stan' it no longer I jes' shet my eyes an' see de place swarmin' with niggers, an' Cunnel Peyton bossin' 'em all, an' Missy Peyton takin' care ob de sick ones, an' de Peyton boys galopin' 'bout on de hosses, an' de Pickerin' boys all tryin' which 'u'd git Missy Dolly. Den I reckon I soon git fo' heaben an' an' 'em all dar on nudder plantation jes' lak dis befo' de wah."

I feed the narrator, liberally and left him, walking under the great trees which hung their branches over the manor house in a vain effort to protect it from time's ravages. As I passed out where the gate had been I looked back and saw the aged custodian still sitting before his cabin door.

A TOUCH OF RUSSIA

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]
 Soon after reaching St. Petersburg on my globe circling trip I found an American who had just arrived that morning, a man from Stamford, Conn., named Joshua H. Bidwell. He was the inventor of the wire clothesline and, having patented it in England, France, Germany and other foreign countries, had arrived in Russia with the same object in view. He was a thorough Kankee from top to bottom.

I had scarcely shaken hands with him when he informed me that the police already had a spy on his track and added:
 "I'm here on straight business, I am. I'm here to patent and sell the right to manufacture the only galvanized wire clothesline ever invented. If the police let me alone, I shan't hurt anybody, but if they tackle me they'll wake up a barful of bumblebees."

It was Mr. Bidwell's intentions, after knocking about for two or three days, to visit the American legation and solicit advice on how to proceed to get his patent. We set out to St. Petersburg in company. It was the cause of our coming to grief. The spy who had been following him appeared to be more alert than before; but, fearing that Bidwell would do something rash, I did not mention the fact of our being dogged. He did not catch on until the afternoon of the second day. We then were knocking about on foot and were in the national aquarium when he walked straight up to the spy, tapped him on the shoulder and said:
 "Look here, Mister Man, have you any business to transact with us?"

He spoke in English, and the Russian could not understand a word of it. He evidently got the drift of things, however, and seemed greatly surprised and annoyed at being addressed in that offhand fashion.

We went out, turned into Warsaw place and entered a wine-shop. Bidwell presently went to the door to see if the spy was around and almost bumped into him.

"Now, then, you mean looking son of a gun, but this is a little too steep!" exclaimed the Yankee. "I gave you fair warning, and now?"

He seized the fellow by the shoulders and slammed him about in a terrific manner, but it wasn't more than a minute before five or six policemen were at hand and both of us were under arrest and being hurried away.

We were first taken to a police station about four blocks distant. There we were searched, stripped of every article that our clothing might be overhauled and held for about an hour. We were not questioned at all, and if the official in charge understood anything we said he did not betray the fact. Bidwell was so provoked by the situation that he fired a whole broadside of Connecticut oratory into the official, ending up by threatening a suit for $100,000 damages, but he might as well have saved his breath. By and by we were taken to headquarters under a strong escort and there ushered into the presence of the chief of police. We were taken in singly. My turn came first. The chief consulted a memorandum and began:
 "You arrived in St. Petersburg on the 9th. You claimed to be an American tourist. You received a letter from Paris on the 10th and one from Hamburg on the 11th. You have spoken disrespectfully of the police to the proprietor of the Park hotel. You were very disrespectful toward the officer who was ordered to follow you about. Do you wish to leave St. Petersburg by the evening train?"

I replied that I had come to visit the city as a tourist and had planned to remain for at least a month.
 The chief touched a bell, and two police officers appeared. Out of my own money they bought me a ticket for the German frontier, and both rods with me for the first 300 miles.
 What happened to Bidwell I learned long afterward from his own mouth and through the American press. He thought it beneath the dignity of a free born American citizen to bend the knee to the autocrat of St. Petersburg. The charge against him was more serious. His baggage at the hotel had been overhauled, and his samples of wire clotheslines were at once "spotted" as a menace against the peace of the car. He also had laid violent hands on the sacred body of a police spy, and that proved him a desperate man if not a conspirator. He was defiant when put on examination, and the upshot was that he was taken to the fortress of St. Peter to be held for further investigation. That simply meant to be held at the pleasure of the chief of police. No papers were ever served on him nor was he ever taken into court. He was put into a dark, damp cell, confined to prison fare and treated like a criminal. It was three months before he saw any other face than the jailer's. Then a police official came to ask him if he would agree to leave Russia and never return in case of release.
 "Not by a long shot!" was his ready reply. "For every month you hold me in here I'll demand $50,000 extra, and if Uncle Sam doesn't back my lawsuit every Bidwell in Connecticut will move out of the country."

At the end of seven months he was set at liberty. He started for the American legation, but was intercepted and taken to the depot and forced to enter a train. Two officers accompanied him to the frontier, and he received such a solemn warning against attempting to recross the line that he never tried it. He filed a claim on reaching the United States, but it was rejected and heard of no more.

E. QUAD.

Men Who Do and Don't.

Men, after all, are, and always will be, of two kinds—the men who accomplish and the men who don't. The other day there was an important conference at the office of one of the biggest men in American finance. It began early in the morning, and at noon it was not concluded. Promptly at half past 12 the clerks went out to lunch. The financier apologized to one of his stenographers for keeping him ten minutes after the regular hour—indeed, if it had occurred often the stenographer would have indignantly sought another position. He did not, however, apologize to the other seven or eight millionaires who sat about his desk until well after 7 o'clock, with no thought of luncheon or dinner. These men were willing to make the sacrifice which success demands, says the Cosmopolitan. There is no dearth of openings for the man who will fit himself to accomplish. The fact is that the development of business has been more rapid than the development of men, and today there is a greater need of men of the right sort than ever, and every great business is looking for them.

Pumice Stone For Building.

Pumice stone is used for building purposes in the Canary Islands, where it is difficult and expensive to procure stone of any other description. The loose cinder dug from the sides of the volcanic cones is also used for the manufacture of huge blocks of concrete for the harbor works at Las Palmas and Santa Cruz. Pumice stone was originally used for the dome of the mosque of St. Sophia on account of its lightness, but even this proved to be unsafe, and the building has been reconstructed.

In Ceylon the most useful building stone is "cabook," a species of pumice. Scientifically it is known as latelite and occurs in beds lying between basaltic and other lava flows, from the decomposition of which it has resulted. At the foot of Vesuvius there are large building quarries of basaltic lava, and at the same spot, as well as near Rome, a volcanic ash or pumice called "pozzolana" is wrought for the same purpose.

Too Clever For Exclusion.

Thomas B. Reed often related an incident which happened when he first sought to be admitted to the bar. Mr. Reed and a young southerner were before Judge Wallace of the state supreme court to be quizzed on their knowledge of the law. Turning first to the southerner the judge asked abruptly, "Is the civil rights bill constitutional?" "No, sir," replied the young man. Turning to Reed, the judge propounded the same question. "Yes, sir," replied Reed. Whereupon Judge Wallace looked gravely from one to the other before he spoke. "You are both admitted," he finally announced. "Two young men who can handle constitutional questions in an offhand manner like that can't be kept out of the bar."

The Case Stated.

"Did U. Miss. Me., Pa.," said the loving and convalescent wife, "when I was so ill? I had to have the M. D."
 "More than tongue Kan. tell," replied the husband. "Not for the Ind. would I have it so again."
 "La." said the wife. "I hope the woman did the Wash. all right. When I get out, I'm afraid I'll look like I came out of the Ark. And all that Mass. of stuff the doctor gave me! O, you must take me to Del.'s and let me have a feast Ala. carte."

And then he sadly thought that even in the sacredness of home there are Conn. games.—Baltimore American.

At the Matrimonial Office.

Agent—Now, please state what conditions you require on the part of the lady.
 Suitor—A pleasant exterior, 20,000 marks dowry, domestic training and 6 1/2 size gloves.
 Agent—May I ask you fix upon the last named condition?
 Suitor—Well, you see, a few years ago I won six pairs of ladies' gloves, 6 1/2 size, in an exhibition lottery, and you can't expect me to throw them away.—From the German.

Juvenile Theology.

Two little girls, aged respectively six and eight years, were discussing religious matters, relates the Christian Register. The older one said to her sister, "Which would you rather do, live or die and go to heaven?"
 "Why," the young one said, "I would rather live." Whereupon the older one burst out with the emphatic question, "Sarah B., what does your religion amount to?"—Troy Times.

Well Behaved.

Mother—I don't like the looks of that boy I saw you playing with on the street. You must not play with bad little boys, you know.
 Son—Oh, he ain't a bad little boy, mamma. He's a good little boy. He's been to the reform school two times, and they've let him out each time on account of good behavior.

A Sense of Certainty.

"Is you sho' he loves you?" asked Miss Miami Brown.
 "Is I sho'!" rejoined the other pityingly. "Is I sho'! Didn't he refuse a invitation to a dog fight so's he could come a-courtin' las' Wednesday night?"—Washington Star.

Good Horse Sense.

Gumme—Skidmore has good horse sense.
 Gargoye—I suppose you mean he knows how to pick the winners at the races?
 Gumme—No; I mean he never bets.

A conceited man admires his own mistakes because he makes them.—Chicago News.

Kamchatka has many volcanoes, the only ones in Russia that are still active.

One Hundred Dollars A Box.

Is the value H. A. Tizdale, Summerton, S. C., places on DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. He says: "I had the piles for 20 years. I tried many doctors and medicines, but all failed except DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It cured me." It is a combination of the healing properties of Witch Hazel with antiseptics and emollients; relieves and permanently cures blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles, sores, cuts, bruises, eczema, salt rheum and all skin diseases. Jno. L. Wooten.

The roll-top desk covers a multitude of untidiness.

Don't Worry.

This is easier said than done, yet it may be of some help to consider the matter. If the cause is something over which you have no control it is obvious that worrying will not help the matter in the least. On the other hand, if within your control you have only to act. When you have a cold and fear an attack of pneumonia, buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and use it judiciously and all cause for worry as to the outcome will quickly disappear. There is no danger of pneumonia when it is used. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

Nothing but learning will teach a man how ignorant he is.

Unconscious From Croup.

During a sudden and terrible attack of croup our little girl was unconscious from strangulation, says A. L. Spafford, postmaster, Chester, Mich., and a dose of One Minute Cough Cure was administered and repeated often. It reduced the swelling and inflammation, cut the mucous and shortly the child was resting easy and speedily recovered. It cures Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, and all Throat and Lung troubles. One Minute Cough Cure lingers in the throat and chest and enables the lungs to contribute pure, health-giving oxygen to the blood. Jno. L. Wooten.

It is either too hot or too cold for the lazy individual.

Croup.

The peculiar cough which indicates croup, is usually well known to the mothers of croupy children. No time should be lost in the treatment of it, and for this purpose no medicine has relieved more universal approval than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Do not waste valuable time in experimenting with untried remedies, no matter how highly they may be recommended, but give this medicine as directed and all symptoms of croup will quickly disappear. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

When a man is stingy of kind words he is the meanest kind of a miser.

A Scientific Discovery.

Kodol does for the stomach that which it is unable to do for itself, even when but slightly disordered or over-loaded. Kodol supplies the natural juices of digestion and does the work of the stomach, relieves the nervous tension, while the inflamed muscles of that organ are allowed to rest and heal. Kodol digests what you eat and enables the stomach and digestive organs to transform all food into rich, red blood. Jno. L. Wooten.

A badly told story bores one almost as much as a poor relation.

The crowned heads of every nation. The rich men, poor men and misers. All join in paying tribute to DeWitt's Little Early Risers.

H. Williams San Antonio, Tex., writes: Little Early Riser Pills are the best ever used in my family. I unhesitatingly recommend them to everybody. They cure Constipation, Biliuness, Sick Headache, Torpid Liver, Jaundice, Malaria and all other liver troubles. Jno. L. Wooten.

A woman can do almost anything with a hairpin except sharpen a pencil.

"The nicest and pleasantest medicine I have used for indigestion constipation is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets," says Melard F. Craig, of Middlegrove, N. Y. "They work like a charm and do not gripe or have any unpleasant effect." For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

Dislocated Her Shoulder.

Mrs. Johanna Soderholm, of Ferguson Falls, Minn., fell and dislocated her shoulder. She had a surgeon get it back in place as soon as possible, but it was quite sore and pained her very much. Her son mentioned that he had seen Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised for sprains and soreness, and she asked him to buy her a bottle of it, which he did. It quickly relieved her and enabled her to sleep, which she had not done for several days. The son was so much pleased with the relief it gave his mother that he has since recommended it to many others. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Kodol

Digests What You Eat

Mrs. Loring Nichols of Penn Yan, N. Y., writes: After eating, my food would distress me by making my heart palpitate and I would become very weak. Finally I got a bottle of Kodol and it gave me immediate relief. After using a few bottles I am cured.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders, and gives the heart a full, free and untrammeled action.
