ORGANIZE FOR PROTECTION.

Independent Tobacco Manufacturers Seeking Mutual Benefits.

Washington, February 2.—Independent tobacco manufacturers from Virginia, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, New York and other states met in this city today and organized for mutual protection. About twenty manufacturers were present and proxies and letters made up a total of about fifty tobacco manufacturing concerns representing in the movement. A temporary organization was affected this afternoon by the selection of John Lanstreet, of Richmond, Va., as chairman, and D. L. Snead, of Lynchburg, Va., secretary. E. D. Miller, Philadelphia, S. C. Penn, Reidsville, N. C., and C. D. Larus, Richmond, Va., were appointed a committee on permanent organization to report at a meeting tonight.

One of the purposes of the manufacturers is to appear before the house ways and means committee and urge legislation prohibiting the tags and coupons for redemption purposes, pictures etc, with tobacco and tobacco products bearing internal revenue stamps.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY AT WINSTON-SALEM.

A Young Man Kills his Wife and Immediately Takes His Own Life.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Feb. 3.—Banks Miller, a young white man, shot his wife tonight and then killed himself. Both died a few minutes after the pistol was fired. Miller and his wife had a dispute yesterday and decided to separate. She left her husband, taking their children to the home of relatives. Tonight Miller called to see his wife and, after talking over their misunderstanding, the wife consented to live with her husband again. As he started to leave the room he asked his wife to come to the door and kiss him good night. She complied with the request. Miller immediately turned around and fired at his wife, the ball taking effect in her right breast. The husband then placed the pistol to his head and fired. When officers arrived at the house Miller and his wife were lying on the floor dead. There were two eye witnesses to the tragedy.

Burned Out of Home.

Wilmington, N. C., Feb. 3.—Fire last night destroyed the residence of W. Harris Northrop, Jr., on Wrightsville sound, eight miles from this city. The building and contents were a total loss. The property was valued at $3,500 with $2,100 insurance. Mr. Northrop was awakened at midnight by the flames roaring over his head. He got his wife and children out of the building only a few seconds before the entire roof fell in. All were forced from the house in their night clothes and barefooted. They were taken to the home of a neighbor.

Whiskey Men Organize.

Louisville, Feb. 3.—The Herald tomorrow will say: "It has just been ascertained that a secret meeting of over 20 Kentucky distillers, held in this city Saturday night, it was determined to begin an organized campaign against the anti-liquor legislation now being considered by the various legislatures of the country and especially by the general assemblies of a number of southern states. A large fund has already been raised to defray the expenses of the movement."

Hell hath no fury like a woman's corn, if you step on it.

THE LEGISLATURE.

The large number of petitions or temperance legislation that were presented to both branches of the legislature Tuesday marks the increased interest in the movement to abolish the liquor traffic. Every day many such petitions are presented.

SENATE—TUESDAY.

Some of the new bills introduced in the Senate were these:

McBryde, of Robeson. To amend chapter 332, public laws of 1901, being an act for the relief of certain Confederate soldiers and widows.

Baldwin of Forsyth, by request. To regulate the contracts of laborers and renters.

Spruill, of Tyrrell. To amend chapter 9, section 46, laws of 1901, abrogating the penalty for not listing notes.

Baldwin, of Forsyth. To prohibit the obstructing of the view of persons in theatres, halls and opera houses, where theatricals and opera performances and entertainments are held, where an admission fee is charged.

HOUSE—TUESDAY.

The house committee on propositions and grievances decided by a vote of 16 to 4 to make a favorable report on the Watts bill, after three amendments were made to it. The amendments do not affect the main purposes of the bill.

The most interesting bill to this section was one introduced by Drewry, of Wake, to incorporate the Raleigh and Eastern North Carolina Railroad. The bill charts a road from Raleigh to tidewater.

The route of the road is described as from Raleigh east through Wilson county, touching the town of Wilson, then through Pitt county to Greenville, then on the south side of the Tar river to some point at tidewater near the Pamlico river or sound.

Exactly.

The Times has received a marked copy of the Kansas Prohibitionist, which contains several long editorials on the race question.

These articles were written because of the lynching of a negro in Kansas. We have read the editorials and see nothing new in them. The only reason we can imagine for sending marked copies is to prove that the "best people" in Kansas do not approve the lynching. So far as that goes exactly the same thing would be true in Raleigh if a drunken negro killed a policeman as happened in prohibition Kansas. The "best people" here would want the law to take its course and it would, too.—Raleigh Times.

Meeting of Teachers' Association.

There is some danger of the teachers in the county getting the date of the next meeting of the Teachers' Association confused. The meeting is to be held on Saturday, the 14th of February, and not on next Saturday, which is the 7th. The meetings are always on the second Saturday and not the Saturday before the second Sunday. It is desired that every teacher shall be present at the next meeting and in consequence this notice is given so that there may be no confusion as to the date.

The Greenville REFLECTOR thinks that if the President continues his present course he should be impeached. Let him keep it up. The South can take care of herself as she has been doing since the war, and that part of the country that helped to make him president will have to grin and bear it.—Durham Herald.

POINTERS

THERE'S just as much difference in Sack Suits as in the men who wear them. Some men are just a little behind the times. Others just a little ahead of the times. Suits ditto. #### Murderer Utley Escapes

Fayetteville, N. C., Feb. 3.—Ed. L. Utley, under twenty years' sentence for killing Hotel Clerk Hollingsworth, of this place, escaped from jail last night. All the cell doors were found unlocked. Several prisoners were on the same floor and the jailer roomed in the building, but all profess ignorance of any unusual occurrence during the night. An alarm was given about 9 o'clock this morning. The opinion is general that money did the work.

At this hour, 8 o'clock, there are no tidings of Utley. The commissioners have been investigating all day. $400 reward by the county and $200 additional by Sheriff Marsh was offered this morning.

The jailer learned of the escape at 7 o'clock, but gave no notice until 8:45. Numerous telegrams have been sent all over the country and twenty odd extra deputies are now searching this section.

On searching the prisoners considerable sums of money were found in their possession, which they could not satisfactorily explain, and a woman in a cell adjoining Utley's had his keys and a note for his brother, asking a big loan and bidding him good bye.

Everything is being done by the authorities to apprehend the fugitive.

GREENVILLE IS ALL RIGHT.

There is not a more solid town for its size anywhere, or one in which safer investments can be made. The eagerness with which any real estate that gets on the market is bought shows how people look upon the town. There is no likelihood that there can be any decline in the value of real estate here, and those with money to invest do not hesitate to buy when they have the opportunity. Rid the town of the many obnoxious saloons, issue the bonds and get the public improvements underway, put the graded school in operation, and we will show you the fastest growing town in the state.

DESTINY AGAIN.

We would ask the Greenville REFLECTOR if a state or national guard, subject to federal service for a few months in the year in case of emergency only, the men then to return to their former peaceful avocations, is not preferable in a republic to a large standing army of professional soldiers located in barracks through the country and trained to strict military rule and knowing no law but the orders of their officers? We have got to face conditions as they are, not as we wish they might be. The man who thinks we are ever again going to return to the position our government occupied regarding the other powers before the Spanish war is mightily off in his calculations. That war may have been a great mistake, but it is a mistake that cannot be remedied at this late date or to any great extent by any party which may come into power at some future day. We have become one of the world powers and we have got to govern ourselves accordingly, and there is no use in talking about returning to the old days of Jefferson and Jackson. Times have changed and we per force of destiny have changed with them.—Wilmington Messenger.

We insist that it is not a question of which wrong is preferable. Injustice and national unrighteousness made the "conditions" which we are facing, and true American principles can unmake them. "We have become one of the world powers," says the Messenger. We were a world power before Santiago and Manila bay—a power unto all the world as an example of a just and brave nation, to whom the little people looked not in vain. We had no large standing army, yet our arm was strong for the succor of the oppressed. Oh! destiny, the butcheries, and heart and hope breakings that are committed in thy name!

"We suggest to the Greensboro Record that it explain to those of its farmer friends who are opposed to the Audubon Society what 'Audubon' means. How could the farmers be expected to take kindly to a society with a name that sounds so much like 'Obedam'?"—Greenville REFLECTOR.

If the editor of THE REFLECTOR has never heard of the famous naturalist Audubon he should visit the state library the next time he goes to Raleigh and ask the librarian to let him look at the book of this great and world wide renowned man.—Wilmington Messenger.

It was the Record's farmer friends for whom THE REFLECTOR suggested enlightenment. Did the editor of the Messenger ever hear of the city of Philadelphia, in Pennsylvania? If he is thus far advanced, we suggest that he take a voyage to the above city and visit the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts, where may be seen a good portrait of Audubon, and other pictures illustrating his researches. If this is too expensive for the editor of the Messenger, he might call on Greenville school children for information.

"Oi see be the papers," said the only Irish citizen of Greenville, "thot a mon be the name of Naw debone has intrajuced a bill in the legislahure for the prevenchun of croolty to burruds. Now where the divil does this sinator or representative be comin' frum, anyway? Oi niver heard of a North Carolinian besich a furrin' name."

Hobson is tired of the navy and wants to resign, but the department continues to chase around after him and beg him to stay. Some poor devil of a private would be given 30 days in the brig on bread and water.

Love's young dream must be the genuine article if it does not receive a severe jolt after the first attempt to buy a $200 suit of furniture with $14.78.

The poor man thinks it is easy to be good on ten thousand a year, and the rich man knows that the truly good man never will have that amount.

Raleigh is again engaged in its annual going-to-build-a-hotel talk. If the agitation is kept up a few centuries longer the city may get another hotel.

In the winter young man's fancy takes a hop and jump and swing as he yearns with ceaseless longing for the overcoat he pawned last spring.

"Man wants but little here below, nor wants that little long" and one of the things he doesn't want is that rag time Bill Bailey song.

The bills providing for improvements for Greenville ought to be provided with an injunctionless attachment.

To the father of the first born wireless telegraphy doesn't seem anywhere as near necessary as a cryless baby.

Rudyard Kipling ought to issue a catalogue of his poetry, showing price per ton and in car load lots.

Tendency of the times.

The tendency of medical science is toward preventive measures. The best thought of the world is being given to the subject. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. It has been fully demonstrated that pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases medical men have to contend with, can be prevented by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Pneumonia always results from a cold of from an attack of influenza (grip) and it has been observed that this remedy counteracts any tendency of these diseases toward pneumonia. This has been fully proven in many thousands of cases in which this remedy has been used during the great prevalence of colds and grip in recent years, and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. Pneumonia often results from a slight cold when no danger is apprehended until it is suddenly discovered that there is fever and difficulty in breathing and pains in the chest, then it is announced that the patient has pneumonia. Be on the safe side and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the cold is contracted; it always cures. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

It's all right to forge your way to the front, provided you don't forge another man's name.

A Weak Stomach.

causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures and strengthens the stomach, and wards off and overcomes disease. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Christman, Tex., says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and run down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefited me, and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health."
Jno. L. Wooten.

A woman's palmy days are when a lot of suitors are after her hand.

A Mother's Recommendation.

I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years and have no hesitancy in saying that it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and croup I have ever used in my family. I have not words to express my confidence in this remedy.—Mrs. J. A. Moore North Star, Mich. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

The woman who marries a man to reform him soon discovers that her leisure moments are few and far between.

The Easy Pill.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe nor weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive livers, by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a decided tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble.
Jno. L. Wooten.

The Cynical Bachelor observes that no man is old enough to marry until he is old enough to know better.

The scratch of a pin may cause the loss of a limb or even death when blood poisoning results from the injury. All danger of this may be avoided, however, by promptly applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It is an antiseptic and quick healing liniment for cuts, bruises and burns. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

SAFE ROBBERS CAUGHT.

Four Men Captured in Monroe After Battle With Revolvers.

Charlotte, N. C., February 2.—Four men who are believed to have blown open safes in this section of the state with nitro-glycerine during the past few days, were captured to day near Monroe and are now in jail there.

Two were caught after a day light battle with revolvers on the streets of the town and the other two were captured in the afternoon. Shots were exchanged at both encounters, but nobody was hurt. The captured men were heavily armed and a turn out of their pockets resulted in the recovery of $100 in money. In the chase for the two men who were captured in the afternoon blood-bounds were used. One of the men shot one of the dogs.

In consequence of the operations of the safe crackers in this section some of the Charlotte banks have employed night watchmen. It is believed that the men captured at Monroe are the ones who blew open the safe at the Mocksville bank and also one safe in Charlotte and two in Matthews, a town near Monroe.

Interesting Facts in Mr. Overman's Record.

In connection with the election of Hon. Lee S. Overman as Senator several significant things are recalled. First both Senator Simmons and Senator Overman are graduates of Trinity College. Second, Salisbury has both a member of the national House, Congressman Kluttz, and a senator, Mr. Overman. Third, Mr. Overman has been first defeated and afterwards elected to both high offices that he has aspired to. When the democratic caucus named him for speaker of the house in 1885 a combination of republicans and independents elected Mr. John R. Webster speaker over him. Mr. Webster is now a democrat. He came to Raleigh and strenuously opposed Mr. Overman's election to the senate this time. In 1895 Mr. Overman was nominated by the democratic caucus to succeed Senator Vane, but a combination of republicans and populists elected Senator Pritchard. Fourth, both the North Carolina senators will be among the youngest men in that body. Both were mere infants during the civil war.—Raleigh Times.

To Investigate Alleged Cruelty

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 2.—A resolution for full investigation of the alleged brutality in moving convicts from Mitchell and other charges against the penitentiary, passed both houses. It provides for a sub-committee of five to visit Marion and take evidence.

The following bills were introduced: Vann, taxing dogs for benefit of the school fund; Mitchell, regulating the sale of concentrated feed stuff; a resolution for a committee to meet the shippers tomorrow in investigating freight discrimination; Freeman, eliminating the oath feature from the Mecklenburg election law in certain cases.

Salisbury.

When Hon. Lee S. Overman, the newly elected senator, returned to his home town he received an ovation. He was met at the railroad station by several hundred citizens and escorted home to the music of brass bands. In the evening a citizen's reception was held at the opera house, at which time addresses were delivered by a number of representative citizens. Mr. Overman is universally popular, and the entire town will enter into the cordial welcome to be accorded him.

WAS IT A DREAM?

(Original.)

Edward Holmes was packing to go to his wedding, which was to take place the next day, when he received the following telegram from his betrothed's mother:

Come at once. Lillian is very ill. Snatching his handbag, which was ready, he hurried to the depot and took the first train. It was 6 o'clock in the evening in June, that month chosen by so many lovers in which to consummate their happiness, and the foliage along the route had in it the first freshness of summer. But Edward Holmes did not notice it. He was far away, fearing, hoping. On reaching N., a large summer resort, he was inexpressibly distressed to find that the train went no farther. He must wait for one that passed at 11 o'clock. It was still twilight, and he walked to a hotel not half a mile from the station. The house was brilliantly lighted, while the guests were fitting about in picturesque costumes preparatory to a fancy dress ball. This was no place for one in anxiety, but Holmes, not relishing waiting at the station, took a wicker chair in a dark corner of the piazza.

There he spent the evening. When a dance was finished, couples would promenade on the piazza. Holmes found it a relief to watch them, and the time passed more quickly for his mind being distracted till half past 10. Then, impatient to be again in motion, he was about to rise and return to the station when, glancing aside and slightly behind him, he saw what at first he took for a shaft of light coming through a window. Then he noticed that it was a woman. Her dress was of white, though of what material he could not tell. Looking up at her face, he saw that it was masked, also with white. He would have risen, but at the moment he felt a hand rest lightly on his shoulder.

A great deal passed through Edward Holmes' mind in a very few moments. Who was this girl, for she had the appearance of a young person, and what was her interest in him? It did not occur to him that she could be a stranger to him. She must be one of the guests, some friend of his who had seen him when he first reached the hotel and had sought him out. Doubtless she would amuse herself with his efforts to discover her identity.

For a moment he sat still. Then, notwithstanding the hand on his shoulder, he rose and faced his visitor. "You are"—He paused. The form seemed familiar, but there was too little light for him to identify it. She did not answer his question, but slipped her hand within his arm and led him for a walk, not toward the entrance, brilliantly lighted, but to a dark end of the piazza. She did not speak, and Holmes, who was in no mood for such an adventure, could think of nothing to say to her. He thought of confiding his anxiety to her; but, after all, she might be a stranger. One thing made him start. On passing a chink in a window blind he noticed orange blossoms on her head. His own wedding, set for the morrow—would it be a wedding or a funeral? Would the flowers be orange blossoms or tube roses? If it had been difficult for him to speak to his companion before, it was well nigh impossible now. A strange dread came over him. Then during a momentary breeze from behind a light substance touched his hand. It must be a bridal veil.

Was the costume of a bride an unusual or a common one for such occasions? He could not recall in all his social experience having seen one. A strange influence seemed to be passing from the girl to him. It came in waves, now happiness, now grief. Whatever it was, he did not wish it to end. He took no thought of time, forgetting that he was waiting for a train to take him to Lillian. She spoke no word, nor did he wish her to speak. His senses seemed to become gradually benumbed. There was a mystical mingling of chat, music and laughter, besides the dripping of a fountain in the center of a lawn before the hotel. Then the sounds all melted away together. Suddenly he was awakened as from a dream by a clock striking. He was still sitting in the dark corner, and his companion was not with him. He looked up and down the piazza, but she was not to be seen. Had he fallen asleep and dreamed? No; it was all too real. He arose and strode back and forth to make sure he was awake. Then he heard a train approach the station and knew that he had not time to reach it before it should start on. Hurrying to the hotel office, he inquired the hour of leaving for the next train and was shocked to hear that he could not get away from the place till morning.

Who was this girl who had kept him away from his beloved, lying on a sick bed and doubtless listening every moment to catch the sound of his step? How could he have been so affected by her presence as to forget the passing time? There was nothing now for him to do but take a room and go to bed. This he did, but not to sleep.

He rose early and went to the station. The time came for the train, but no train came. Locomotives hurried by, some carrying box cars, and one bore wrecking apparatus. "What's the matter?" he asked of the station master. "The train that left here last night at 11 o'clock went down a hundred feet with a bridge. Every passenger was killed."

When Edward Holmes reached his destination, Lillian was dead. She had passed away the night before soon after he reached the hotel. When he tells of the girl in orange blossoms and bridal veil, his friends say he was dreaming. He knows that Lillian saved him from the wreck.

A gentleman approached THE REFLECTOR to-day and asked, "Why did the ground hog go back in his hole Monday?"

We thought that was easy, so promptly answered "Because he saw his shadow."

"Oh, no," replied the gentleman, "you are wrong. It was because he thought Roosevelt would put a "coon" in his hole if he stayed out of it."

Illicit Distilleries in North Carolina.

In the report of the Commissioners of Internal Revenue which was published a few days ago are found some interesting figures as to the blockade whiskey business in North Carolina.

From July 1st, 1901, to July 1st., 1902, there were 260 illicit distilleries destroyed by the revenue officers in North Carolina. There were 23,949 gallons of spirits reported for seizure, valued by the department at $34,057.54. There were only 36 arrests made at the stills when seized. Eighty-three registered distilleries were reported for seizure for some irregularities or non-compliance with the law.

In Georgia there were 389 illicit distilleries destroyed and 459 arrests made.

LETTER TO C. S. FORBES,

Greenville N. C.

Dear Sir: You know all about shoes. How many customers have you who know anything about 'em?

You have bought and sold shoes for years, and have learned what you know by your customers' liking one sort, and not liking another. They find out by wearing 'em.

So with paint; but we go deeper. We are 149 years old in the business; and we make, not buy—we make a good deal of paint.

We paint a good share of the railroad and steamer property in the United States, and may as well paint the private property. Yours as well as anybody else's.

Devoe Lead and Zinc is your paint. Costs half as much as mixed paint or lead and oil because it takes fewer gallons and wears twice as long.

Beck Bros. & Co., Williamsport, Pa., write:

Mr. Ezra Rathmel had used 11 gallons of a well-known mixed paint for his house; he repainted it this year with Devoe Lead and Zinc; bought 11 gallons and had 5 gallons left.

Yours truly,

Let Us Treat The South Fairly

In theory, we of the North regard the negroes as entitled to equal rights, privileges, and recognitions in politics and business with ourselves. But as a matter of fact we believe nothing of the kind.

Our practices here, at least, are almost an antipodal distance from our theories. Therefore, in truth, few neighborhoods in the North where a colored man in any conspicuous official position would be much more welcome than he is in the South. Especially would this be true in a small postoffice, the worst of all possible places to put a person who, for any reason, is socially obnoxious.—Leslie's Weekly.
