YOU know our policy concerning the cleaning up of seasonable merchandise in its season. To make thorough work of a clearance sale every item must suffer the severest cuts. Not an item in this store that has not suffered with the "price knife." If you will take the time to make a careful investigation the economy of buying now will impress itself upon you.

HOLDING UP BILLS FOR GREENVILLE

Representative King Reported to be Obstructing Them.

COUNCIL COMMITTEE TO GO.

The Liquor Question Still in a Tangle and Legislators Are Mum.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RALEIGH, FEB. 9, 1903.

Though we are—(no, won't tell) years old and have been sucking the end of a newspaper pencil for now nearly a quarter of a century, in all our "wanderings up and down in the earth and walking to and fro in it," never until now have we struck the capital city of the state while the legislature was in session. Having a desire to see what legislators in action look like—not that they are different from other ordinary every day folks—we stopped over to spend Sunday in Raleigh on the way to Greensboro. Of course we did not expect to find them in session on Sunday, but the solons gathered around the big lobbying quarter—the Yarrow borough house—is about the next thing to it. Beside, it gives us a chance to "see 'em gwine and see 'em comin'," provided we can stop on the way back, which is now expected. Though many of the members had gone home to spend Sunday, enough of them were there to hear things talked. And the biggest matter of all under discussion is the liquor question—or the temperance question—which ever way you want put it. Yes, it is a big question, and not a few of the members are trembling before it. But you can't get a mother's son of them to commit himself and say what he is going to do and how he will vote on it. They say solemnly that whiskey is a great evil and the bar rooms ought to be closed, but will not say just what they are going to do to close them. It is easy to see that a powerful influence is at work here to prevent any strong legislation against the saloons.

The senate committee on propositions and grievances met Saturday afternoon to consider the London bill. The committee was equally divided between reporting the bill favorably and referring it to a sub-committee, when Chairman Vann decided with the latter and the matter will come up again before a sub-committee next Thursday. The opinion seems to prevail now that this sub-committee will take under consideration all the temperance bills that have been introduced and draw a new bill from them. So as the matter stands, everything is yet at sea. The temperance advocates over the state should not relax their activity or interest. Keep the petitions rolling in.

Another matter of especial interest to REFLECTOR readers is the Greenville improvement, school and charter amendment bills which have passed the senate and are being held up in the house. Representative King was out of the city and could not be asked about it, but from others it was learned that he is the obstructionist. The education committee had the school bill under consideration Saturday afternoon. Senator Blow and Representative Little were present to advocate the bill, but Representative King wanted it "held up until I can be heard from." When asked for his reasons or his petitions asking that it be held up, he had none, but said he wanted it held up "because I want it held up." And that seems about all there is in the objection. A representative from another county told us Representative King had told him, "I am going to tear the bill all to pieces." We did not hesitate to say that such a course was entirely opposed to the wishes of the people of Greenville. When the Greenville committee arrives the committee will give the matter another hearing.

While stopping over for an hour between trains at Goldsboro, we were approached by a gentleman who said, "You are from Greenville. Tell me how everything is getting on in your town." "Yes. Everything is getting on well and satisfactorily, and we have the best business town of its size in the state," was the reply given him.

"Well," he continued, "I spent much time in a neighboring town during the past tobacco season, and do you know I never saw one town more jealous of another than that town is of Greenville? Why, they never lost an opportunity of making a thrust at your town and talking it down in every way possible."

"Oh, Greenville does not mind a little thing like that," we interrupted. "We are doing the business, and that is what counts."

"So I see. You do not seem to mind it in the least. The fact is they are just advertising your town. I believe the more they say against Greenville the more they help it. Yes, sir, you have got a good town."

On the train between Goldsboro and Raleigh we had the pleasure of seeing ex-Judge Francis D. Winston, who was coming to Supreme Court. The Judge is the same affable, genial gentleman he has always been and it is a pleasure to be in his company. He says he has settled down in his law office at Windsor again, and is as contented and happy as ever. Well, we never see or think of Judge Winston without recalling to mind that the state lost one of her best Superior Court judges by failing to renominate and elect him last year. D. J. W.

A Good Play.

"Under the Southern Cross," presented at the opera house last evening by an amateur company from Greenville, has been pronounced by those who witnessed it a most creditable performance. Some of our most careful critics were most complimentary of the play. Our sister town, Greenville, never does anything by halves. She possesses histrionic ability of a high order.—Washington Messenger.

A Missouri legislator has introduced a bill which makes a paper liable for libel for every copy of the paper containing the article. Since there are 114 counties in that state an editor whose paper goes into every county, could, under this act, be sentenced to the penitentiary for 114 years. That bill must have been introduced by one of the St. Louis boodle gang.—Raleigh Times.

The new depot race between Durham and Winston-Salem is getting as exciting as the senatorial caucus. Winston is ahead this morning by several lengths, but neither has yet crossed the line.—Winston Sentinel.

Try Our Pants

It isn't possible to improve on the style, workmanship and perfection of fit of our Trousers. We are showing many patterns in fine Cassimere, Cheviot and Worsted Trousers. They are absolutely correct in every detail. These Trousers were made by specialists—men who design and make Trousers and nothing else. We feel safe in saying no custom tailor could match them for double the price.

When your Trousers commence to look a little the worse for wear, come in.

Brief Mention of People Met With in the Social World

Mrs. W. B. Quineley, of Ayden, and Miss Bettie Tucker, of Centerville, are visiting Mrs. R. W. King.

Mr. Ed H. Shelburn's children, Lee and Ivor, are ill.

Heber Tripp left Monday evening for Kinston, where he has accepted a position with the Kinston Mantel Co.

Miss Addie Johnson, of Kinston, who has been visiting Miss Rosa Lind Rountree, returned home Monday evening.

M. H. Tucker left Monday evening for Wilmington.

L. I. Moore left Monday evening for New Bern.

Miss Blanche Cromartie, of near Fayetteville, has taken a position with Mrs. L. Griffin as assistant trimmer with Mrs. Mrs. Ella Greene.

Maj. Lipscomb's Condition.

The following is from a Columbia, S. C., paper;

The condition of Maj. C. T. Lipscomb is much improved. Yesterday he was allowed to sit up for the first time, and will be able to be sent home in a few days. The bullet taken from his leg has been presented to him as a souvenir. It was mashed flat by its contact with the large bone in his leg. Maj. Lipscomb is one of Columbia's most popular young men and his hundreds of friends will be rejoiced to know he is better.

"Talking about stringent temperance legislation," said a Senator last night, "how would you like to vote for what has just passed the Tennessee senate?"

"What is that?" asked a member of the house.

"They have passed a law absolutely prohibiting the sale of whiskey in any town of less than 5,000 inhabitants. This means that it can only be sold in eight cities, Nashville, Memphis, Knoxville, Chattanooga, Jackson, Bristol, Columbia and Clarksville.—News and Observer.

Mothers Crushed Oats.

Have you read carefully the booklets placed in your homes telling you about Mothers Crushed Oats and the premium given away with them? Remember each 2 lb package of these high grade Oats sells for 10c per package; each package contains a coupon and all the coupons have a value. A coupon with a red letter on it will be found in each package of Mother's Oats. Save these coupons until the red letters on the coupons spell the word Mothers. Note the outside back page of booklets bear the letter M and this will be accepted as first letter in word Mothers. Enquire of your retail grocer for them.

Frightful Accident in Newbern.

Ad Harris, an employee in the saw mill of the Pine Lumber Co. which is located at Hawkside, met with a terrible accident yesterday morning, while engaged in attempting to adjust the thumbscrew on some part of the machinery. His clothing caught in the belting and not being able to extricate himself he was carried around the shafting at the rate of at least 100 revolutions a minute and it is asserted that the unfortunate man must have been carried around the shafting for fully one minute if not longer.

Physicians conducted an examination and found both ankles broken the legs lacerated in a fearful manner and his head and body having numerous severe contusions.—New Bern Journal.

Also Discourteous.

It seems that the resolution introduced into the state legislature yesterday by Mr. Blount, to have the Governor appoint a special commissioner to investigate the charges of discrimination freight rates brought by North Carolina shippers, is not showing the proper consideration for the state's railroad commissioners. Matters of this nature should properly be brought before this body or carried to the Inter-State Commerce Commission for adjustment and as the latter tribunal now has under advisement the case of the North Carolina shippers, it would seem unnecessary to put the state to the expense of a special commissioner.—Charlotte News.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON, FEBRUARY 10, 1903.

ON TO RALEIGH!

From our editorial correspondence on first page it appears that Representative King is obstructing the passage in the house of the bills for charter amendment, graded schools and improvement bonds for Greenville, these bills having readily passed the senate. Representative King fails to assign any reason for his arbitrary action save "I want them held up." We believe this will not appeal to Mr. King's constituents as either reasonable or statesmanlike, and we suggest to the committee appointed by council to go to Raleigh in behalf of the bills that they leave at once for the capital. The will of one man, acting in direct opposition to the wishes of the people, must not be allowed to shut Greenville out of her rights. Gentlemen of the committee, the cry is, "On to Raleigh."

Of course the bill to pension slaves is all nonsense and can never pass, but the South would not be called upon to make a face if it did pass. We would have to pay only a part of it, and would get nearly all of it. A nigger just can't help handing over his money to white people. They inherited this trait from their ancestors who brought all their gold down to the sea-shore and gave it to the white men for glass beads, &c. Columbus, dead and gone now, poor fellow, was a mighty good one at trading with the natives, and if he were alive to day he would no doubt whoop it up for the pension bill. If he could manage to happen round at a camp meeting soon after the pension money came, he'd have more money than he'd know what to do with.

President Roosevelt showed wisdom in writing the speech which Secretary of War Root delivered in New York recently. The president seems not to be able to open his own mouth without putting his foot in it, so he elected Secretary Root to proclaim his preachment.

Electric light globes are now considered as among the poisons fatal to man—and also woman, as the young lady who thoughtlessly swallowed one last week no doubt realizes in another world.

The Charlotte Observer's Raleigh correspondent writes that the London bill is becoming unpopular in Raleigh. We fail to see what that has to do with it. Raleigh is not all of North Carolina.

It will be noticed that the Hon. David Hasbeent Hill cut out the "I am a democrat" part of the program when in New York recently. Can it be that David intends to let the old gag rest awhile?

The Raleigh Evening Times is appearing in improved form and local and editorial arrangement. The Times is a popular paper in Raleigh, and richly deserves its prosperity.

The regular weekly revolution in Honduras has begun to revolute

"The little things overlooked are what makes life uncomfortable," says the Winston Journal. And little things looked over sometimes make life more comfortable.

We read of "Minister Bowen's Splendid Victory," which probably means that Venezuela will be allowed to raise the mortgage on the installment plan.

In transferring the question of Venezuela's debt to the Hague Venezuela no doubt wishes the seat of war could be likewise carted off to some foreign port.

It is stated that Rockefeller does not dispense charity at haphazard. No doubt he will apply his charity system to the telegram feature of his menu in future.

Senator Baldwin, who introduced the anti-high hat bill, will be lucky if he gets in to his backdoor without good and sufficient explanations, when he returns home.

Gudger is a nerry man to continue to contest for Moody's seat when he has no idea where the same is located.

A well known boozer passed by a saloon on Main street the other day, but it wasn't his fault—his wife held him in the buggy.

A New York custom house clerk stole $8,000 in eight years. Any bank cashier could do it in less time than that.

Doubtless Mr. Rockefeller can now see the beauty of a cipher telegram in giving orders to his senators.

It is hard on the country that spring poets and municipal elections come along about the same time.

Aunty Trust bids fair to reach a ripe old age, for all the harm a republican congress will do the old lady.

Paradoxical as it may seem, it is both hard and easy to be poor.

Tendency of the times.

The tendency of medical science is toward preventive measures. The best thought of the world is being given to the subject. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. It has been fully demonstrated that pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases medical men have to contend with, can be prevented by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Pneumonia always results from a cold of from an attack of influenza (grip) and it has been observed that this remedy counteracts any tendency of these diseases toward pneumonia. This has been fully proven in many thousands of cases in which this remedy has been used during the great prevalence of colds and grip in recent years, and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. Pneumonia often results from a slight cold when no danger is apprehended until it is suddenly discovered that there is fever and difficulty in breathing and pains in the chest, then it is announced that the patient has pneumonia. Be on the safe side and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the cold is contracted; it always cures. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

A Weak Stomach.

causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cures cures and strengthens the stomach, and wards off and overcomes disease. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chriesman, Tex., says "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and run down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefited me, and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health."

A Mother's Recommendation.

I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years and have no hesitancy in saying that it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and croup I have ever used in my family. I have not words to express my confidence in this remedy.—Mrs. J. A. Moore, North Star, Mich. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

The Easy Pill.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe nor weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive liver, by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a decided tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble.

BY WHAT RIGHT?

[Original.]

Nellie Blake was a very nice girl. The only trouble with her, a trouble common with most girls whose parents are abundantly able to support them, was that she hadn't enough to do to keep her out of mischief. Having finished her education, there seemed nothing more for her to do but to wait for her affinity and be married. This was not to her taste, and she proposed to her father to study—well, something, anything, so that if she should be left without—

"Nonsense!" said the father. "I'll not permit anything of the kind." Then Nellie considered matrimony. The only man who wanted her, so far as she knew, was Fred Langley. But Fred was too matter of fact. He was a plodder. He had plodded at college, at the law school and was now plodding in his profession. She thought over a number of others, but they all had something about them unsuited to her taste. She gave up the matrimonial problem, but one day, on reading a matrimonial advertisement, just for fun she thought she would advertise for a husband and see what kind of answers one receives in such cases.

Sitting down at the mahogany writing desk in the library, she wrote in a large hand (her own was very delicate) with a stub pen and very black ink a communication in the usual form. Then lest some one should find out that she was so absurdly engaged she took the precaution to carry it to the newspaper office herself.

It would require a large volume to fill in the body of this story, for a correspondence sprang up between Nellie and an unknown gentleman who called himself Alois Courtney, Nellie writing as Clarissa Varian, the letters growing in length till near the end an average letter covered twenty-four pages. Nellie had expected to have a good laugh at her replies. She was mistaken. The first was so delicate and deferential that no one but a thoroughbred could have written it. All denoted extreme refinement. Then the original and attractive ideas the man had! And how those ideas appealed to her! It was marvelous that one who had never seen her should have such an insight into her most hidden feelings. His letters became more and more impassioned till at last he begged for a meeting.

Had not Nellie Blake fallen in love with a soul she had seen expressed on paper she would not have granted such an interview. As it was, taking advantage of an evening when her parents would be out, she wrote Mr. Courtney that she would receive him at 8 o'clock. When the hour arrived, she was in the drawing room in her most becoming costume, pink silk, her hair done high and no jewels. The lamps were dimmed with artistic porcelain shades, and she had arranged when her correspondent arrived to be standing with a screen and a large palm for a background. When the doorbell sounded, her heart went up in her throat. Then came the card of Mr. Alonzo Courtney, and while he was getting off his coat and hat in the hall she thought she should faint. The drawing room door was pushed open, and in walked the matter of fact Fred Langley.

To say that Nellie was angry gives no idea of her condition. She was too enraged to say anything for a few moments. Then she hissed:

"Impostor!"
"Is it an imposture for a man to transcribe his inner self in words to one he loves?"
"How did you know that I advertised?"

"One morning, doubtless soon after you wrote your advertisement, I called on you when you were not at home. The maid, who did not know that you were out, showed me into the library and went upstairs to deliver a message from me. While waiting for her return I noticed some large black letters in reverse on the blotter on the desk. I amused myself deciphering what made an excellent puzzle and had nearly finished before it occurred to me that I was reading a secret. For this I must apologize. Will you forgive me?"

"And then?"
"It occurred to me that you had written the duplicate. I wanted to discover under cover what of strength or weakness, good or evil, there might be in you. I watched for your advertisement and answered it."

"Had you a right to do so?"
"No. One has never the right to lie in concealment for a friend. Yet had I not been your friend I should have had a perfect right. A girl who advertises for a husband is open to all the world. Would you deny me the right you had given millions of strangers?"

Nellie winced.
"Nevertheless," he went on, "the indiscretion has brought a revelation to me. I had no idea of the depth of feeling there is in your nature, your noble conceptions and especially your desire to be something more than a drone. Had you not been born to wealth you would have been, may be, of great service in a world that needs so much."

He could have said nothing that would have so well pleased her. She turned away to harmonize her conflicting emotions. The Alonzo Courtney she had pictured in her imagination was giving place to the plain Fred Langley. But that being who had been photographed in his letters—there he was waiting for her to speak again.

Without turning she reached her hand backward. Langley sprang forward and took it. She looked for some of the impassioned smiles she had read so often and received into her heart. Instead there was but one word:

"Sweetheart!"
Nevertheless it was the word she wanted. EMERY S. TORBERT.

Distrust of Left Handed Barbers.

"I have struck all kinds of barbers in my trips about the country," said the man who travels, "but the one kind that always makes me feel as if I was balanced on the very brink of eternity is the left handed barber. I have been shaved by several of their class. They have been good barbers, too, every one of them, but no matter how well they knew their business they always gave me a bad turn, and every time they drew the razor across my face I felt as if life and I were about ready to part company. Of course it is foolish, but nowadays when I find myself assigned to a left handed barber I leave the shop on some pretext or other and go elsewhere to be beautified. Other men whom I have sounded on the subject have confessed to the same weakness, and women have told me that they have a like unexplainable dread of left handed hairdressers. In the dressmaking business, too, I am told, a left handed cutter and fitter is pretty sure to give the customer a crop of goose flesh, while even a harmless occupation like manicuring can always be relied on to produce real shivers if pursued by a person whose cleverness lies in her left hand."

What Tilden Lent.

When Mr. Tilden in 1874 was nominated for governor of New York, Mr. Dorsheimer received the nomination for lieutenant governor. The ticket thus headed was elected by about 50,000 majority. A little knot of Germans in New York city who usually voted the Republican ticket took Mr. Dorsheimer from his name to be a German, and they scratched their ticket in his favor, so that he had a majority of nearly 53,000. One day after Mr. Tilden and Mr. Dorsheimer had been inaugurated they met at a political breakfast at the former's house in Gramercy park. Mr. Tilden had always felt a little sore at Mr. Dorsheimer's extra majority, and so when in the current of conversation Mr. Dorsheimer jestingly said, "Well, governor, you must remember I had 3,000 more majority than you," as quick as a flash Mr. Tilden retorted, "Yes, you supplied the 3,000, and I lent you the fifty."

A Fine Piece of Work.

"I tell you," exclaimed the young medical student, "our professor is an eminent surgeon."
"How's that?" asked his chum.
"Well, a fellow was brought in with a crushed leg. The professor said it must come off. But by some means or other he cut off the wrong leg."

"Do you call that a fine piece of surgery?"
"Wait a bit. The professor said it would be terrible for the poor fellow to go about with no legs at all, so he splintered up the crushed leg instead of cutting that off, too, and now it is as good as ever. An ordinary surgeon would have left the fellow legless. Wonderful skill, the professor's!"

An Effective Threat.

A youth was engaged as junior clerk by a firm of lawyers, and by way of filling in his time and testing his worth on his first day he was told to write a letter demanding payment of a debt from a client who was long in arrears. To the great surprise of his employers a check for the amount arrived the next day. They sent for the young clerk and asked him to produce a copy of the letter which had had such an astonishing result. The letter ran as follows:

Dear Sir—If you do not at once remit payment of the amount which you owe us, we will take steps that will amaze you.

An Event With Him.

Sartor—The well dressed man is one whose clothes do not attract unusual attention.
Famley—It isn't possible for me to be well dressed, then?
Sartor—Nonsense! Just get a neat new suit.
Famley—That's just it. I couldn't get a new suit without attracting unusual attention.—Philadelphia Press.

One Little Day.

"It is a blessed secret," says one, "that of living by the day. Any one can carry his burden, however heavy, until nightfall, and any one can do his work, however hard, till the sun goes down. Any one can live patiently, lovingly and purely for one day. And this is all life means to us—just one little day." Why not try this truth.—Philadelphia North American.

A Still Greater Contrast.

"Are you going to take that ugly pug dog with you again, Carrie?" asked Charles. "I really believe you take him simply to make yourself look prettier by the contrast."
"Don't be jealous of poor Pug, Charles," replied Carrie. "I'll take you some time when I want to look especially handsome."

The Way of the World.

"There go the Spicer Wilcoxes, mamma! I'm told they're dying to know us. Hadn't we better call?"
"Certainly not, dear! If they're dying to know us, they're not worth knowing. The only people worth our knowing are the people who don't want to know us."

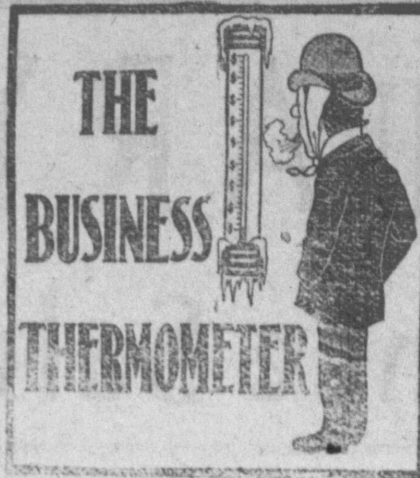

A Matter of Tact.

Mrs. Highblower—Elsie, you never speak outside of the quarrels between your papa and myself, do you?
Elsie—Oh, no, mamma, but whenever you are pleasant to each other I always mention it.—Life.

Propinquity.

Crawford—Why do lovers sit and sit and sit in blissful silence?
Crabshaw—Because, as a general thing, there isn't room for either of them to get a word in edgeways.—Judge.

The future is purchased by the present.—Johnson.

The Weather.

For North Carolina:
Rain, warmer tonight, Wednesday rain.

A Man, a Mule and Jag.

A booze artist from the rural districts stole a mule from a resident of Forbestown Saturday night upon which to transport himself and jag to the country. Whether the mule, the boozer or the jag became dissatisfied with this arrangement is not known but the mule and the man with the jag parted company about 10 miles from town. The owner of his Muleship left for the scene of his animal's wanderings this morning. The inebriated purloins of mule-flesh is a white man, but it is doubtful if it can be proven upon him, as very few if any travelers could have seen him, owing to the cold and dreary rain. The mule is about 13 years old, the man about 40; age of jag not given.

Mr. Alfred O. Crozier, treasurer of the National Conference of Charities and Correction, is in Washington attempting to promote a new form of trust to be known as the "Philanthropic Trust." The purpose of the organization is to be the receipt and disbursement of funds for philanthropic purposes. All funds are to be invested and only the interest used. President Roosevelt has been requested to become a member of the board of directors and has taken the matter under consideration. Among the objects of this trust will be the accumulation of funds for use in each emergency as the Galveston disaster, the Mr. Pele eruption, the Johnstown flood, etc.—Washington Correspondence.

It is Indeed.

It must be mortifying to some counties to see what they have sent to the legislature.—Durham Herald.

Train to Weldon.

An effort is being made by the business men of Greenville to induce the Atlantic Coast Line officials to give them an extra passenger train daily to leave Kinston in the afternoon and to arrive at Weldon on time for passengers going north or south to make connections with the main line trains. The putting on of such a train would place Washington as well as Greenville in closer touch with the outside world. A passenger could then take the 1.45 p. m. train here and connect at Parmele with the train going to Weldon and thence either north or south. May Greenville be successful in her efforts.—Washington Messenger.

"You may as well give up trying to be a lawyer," said the old legal practitioner. "It isn't in you. You might study for fifty years and you'll never learn the first principles of law."
